ness stand for the prosecution soon after the opening of the trial of Mrs. Anne Buzzi for the murder.

Mrs. Schneider said her married life had been happy until Mrs. Buzzi took her husband away from her. Dist. Atty. Glennon said the state would prove that Mrs. Buzzi had lived with Schneider for several years up to the night he was found shot in his automobile. He said that a short time before the killing Mrs. Buzzi had borrowed a pistol from her brother-in-law, William Turk, and that this pistol was the one found beside Schneider's body. The pistol, he said, had been given by a man in Boston an attaché of a circus and loaned by the latter to Turk.

James F. Donnelly, counsel for Mrs. Buzzi declared he would prove that another person shot the contractor. Dist. Atty. Glennon declared he would show that Mrs. Buzzi had told Turk a few days after the crime that she had killed Schneider, saying that "if she could not have him, no other woman would."
