

PURSE OF GOLD FOR REV. T. J. DEINSTADT

Exmouth Street Methodists Bid Him a Formal Farewell.

HE'S GOING TO MAINE.

Takes Church at Millbridge for Seven Months, Then Will Return to This Conference--Welcome to New Pastor of Exmouth Street Congregation.

Rev. W. C. Matthews was formally welcomed to Exmouth street Methodist church Tuesday evening and formal farewell was said to Rev. T. J. Deinstadt by a congregation which filled the church school room.

Dear Sir--In the Providence of God, the relation which has existed between pastor and congregation has been severed, but we cannot permit you to depart from our midst without expressing, however imperfectly, our appreciation of your indefatigable labors and your earnest zeal for our moral and spiritual improvement.

We wish also to take advantage of this opportunity to express our deep sense of the loss which we feel in your departure.

Yours truly, W. C. Matthews, Pastor of Exmouth Street Methodist Church, St. John, N. B.

Rev. T. J. Deinstadt, Exmouth Street Methodist Church, St. John, N. B.

As a token of our regard, we ask that you will accept the accompanying gift, and may the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, and may the blood of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do His will, working in you that which is well pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

St. John (N. B.), Oct. 17, 1919.

Those who have been reporting that the Missouri apple crop is comparatively a failure have perhaps not heard from Scott county. The Scott county Kieler tells of a tree near Mabel that is bearing a second crop of fine apples, has a third crop in the small, green stage, and has the blossoms out for a fourth crop.

EDUCATING THE CHILDREN IN MUSIC IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

An Object Lesson Furnished in North Sydney, C. B.

A Tuning Fork the Sole Equipment--Making Singers from "Bad Voices"--Should Be Followed in All the Schools of the Province, Says Educational Review.

There is being tried in North Sydney (N. S.) an experiment which, as Superintendent Mackay says, is an object lesson to each pupil, including music, in fifty cents a year.

In October last, C. L. Chisholm was engaged by the school board to teach the system known as the "educational music course," used in the public schools of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and elsewhere throughout the United States.

Not only are the 1,100 school children of the town and their parents enthusiastic over this new experiment in musical education, but Principal O'Connell, with the staff of teachers and the sisters of St. Joseph's school, are giving it their cordial support, and are being trained by Mr. Chisholm to carry on the work in the future.

Mr. Chisholm has had nine years' training in the best schools of Boston and Europe, and the experience of eleven years of private teaching in the home conservatories. He is a firm believer in the benefits of the proper cultivation of children's voices, the pleasure and relief that this will bring to thousands of homes, and the laying of a good foundation for a further musical course.

What is being done for the North Sydney school children, which the home conservatories, who on the other hand, ought to be thanked for exerting their influence with the natives in the interests of the community.

ST. JOHN MAN WHO CAME THROUGH THE BOXER TROUBLES.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bellingham in This City Now on a Visit--They Left China on a Long Tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bellingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bellingham, of Tien Tsin, North China, registered at the Royal Hotel yesterday and will leave for Boston and New York today.

Mr. Bellingham was born in St. John about fifty years ago, and was educated in England and France, since which time he has been in most countries of the world in pursuit of his profession of civil engineering.

Mr. Bellingham gave it as his opinion that the true origin of the revolt was to be found in the industrial conditions, together with the superstitious element in the minds of the natives. Those of the natives who made their living as boatmen on the canals and those who were the carriers overland, thought that their occupation would be given by the introduction of the more rapid mode of transit.

It was a cowardly wrong, he said, to send a man to die through the hands of the missionaries, who on the other hand, ought to be thanked for exerting their influence with the natives in the interests of the community.

ALCOHOLISM THE GREAT NATIONAL PERIL OF FRANCE.

The Rapid Growth in the Consumption of Liquor a Calamitous Sign--Statistics That May Well Frighten the Gauls--Lunacy and Degeneracy Becoming Common.

Paris, Sept. 30.--Downing alcohol at 100 degrees, France consumed in the year of grace 1900 the amount of 18.5 litres per head of her inhabitants, men, women and children.

This does not mean that France is afflicted with the violent, speaking drunkardism which is the cause of the social and commercial temporary lunacies at the most unexpected times and places. It does mean that a certain portion of the French population is becoming drugged with this consistent use of alcohol as a steady stimulant, even though it is taken in the shape of mild drinks like wine, beer and cognac.

In 1830 each average inhabitant of France absorbed during the course of a year a little over 9.5 litres of alcohol, namely, in wine, compared to the present figure this is 100 to 233, while the increase in population has been only as 100 to 112.

In 1820 the average inhabitant of Sweden consumed annually 28.15 litres of pure alcohol; in 1900 he had reduced his ration to a little less than 5 litres. In Finland, in 1850, each inhabitant consumed 20 litres of alcohol, while in 1900 the quantity had sunk to 2 litres.

It is a cowardly wrong, he said, to send a man to die through the hands of the missionaries, who on the other hand, ought to be thanked for exerting their influence with the natives in the interests of the community.

YANKEE OPINION OF BRITISH NAVY.

Colonel Thompson, Guest of Beresford, Talks of Fleet's Manoeuvres.

Washington, Oct. 8--Colonel Robert M. Thompson, of New York, well known for his public spirited interest in the affairs of the American Navy, has been telling his friends in Washington of his observations, while a guest of Lord Charles Beresford, on the flagship Majestic during the recent manoeuvres.

When the three fleets participated in these manoeuvres were combined, remarked Colonel Thompson to the Transcript correspondent this evening, "there were 72 battleships and cruisers, with nearly 40,000 men, all under the command of one admiral--probably the strongest fleet ever brought together in the history of the world."

The British Navy is in a splendid state of efficiency. The largest practice is excellent; the drill is excellent. The esprit de corps is as near perfect as anything can be. The entire force works together, and every man from the bottom up takes the greatest interest in what he is doing. That navy with our own could meet the navies of the world.

The average Parisian drinks each year 44 litres of alcohol at 100 degrees in strong liquors; 208 litres of common wine at about 10 degrees; 61 litres of liquor wines (vins doux); and the appetition for spirits is also excessive, which adds other things to alcohol, and some 8 litres of beer and cider.

It is not alone a question of nervous and physical degeneration among certain classes, especially among the working classes, but a general degeneration of the entire population of France will depend on the issue of this struggle.

LOST HIMSELF A WHOLE YEAR.

Forgot His Name and His as Well as His Family and Friends.

IN A CRAZY WARD C

How William B. Austin of C

Discovered His Missing Ide.

Oman, Oct. 12.--Physicians at last are at a loss to explain the lapses of memory that made it possible for William B. Austin to be lost almost in his home city, nearly every day and conversing with familiar people, not being able to communicate a family.

Austin was president of the local stationery engineers. His disappearance was as mysterious as it was sudden. One Saturday night he left his home and started for work. That was the last seen of him. He was missing for twelve months.

Friends and relatives made diligent inquiry for him first at his home in St. John and then in towns where he might have wandered. No trace of the man was covered. The police department was unsuccessful in getting track of Austin had lived in St. John.

It was the following September a newspaper man was strolling through the streets of St. John, and he saw a man who looked like a familiar face. The man inside arose from a newspaper and looked at the reporter. He recognized the face at the sight.

"Who are you?" was the anxious question and query. "Who am I?" the name and nickname occur in the reporter's memory.

"That's it!" he ejaculated, "Will B. Austin!" Then set up a babel of questions. "Now I know who you are," he informed them. "I'm William B. Austin, of Twenty-fourth and Pitt streets, and I want to get out of this fast as willling feet can take me."

He hurried to his home and immediately advised Austin's release. "I quietly saw people and from I well know Austin's name. I know who the man is for the life of me I couldn't tell you whether I had seen him a week or ten years ago, in this city or another town, or in another world. It needs pronouncing of my own name to be past all back to me like a flash."

Nature's Cure. Fuller's Blackberry Laxative. The fishers of the Breton and Channel coasts are peculiarly unfortunate. Often their employes insist on this grisly distilled alcohol, made from apple and pear galls, sometimes imported in a state of half-fermentation from the United States, or from refuge grapevines, without any of the scientific apparatus of great distilleries, and with all the impure "heads and tails" which indeed give the favorite of these home-distilled liquors. In the fishing villages of Andoume, in Brittany in the year 1900, there passed through the hands of the "vetrol" (excise) 30,000 litres of such stinky grog, which being watered down and flavoured according to custom supplied 600 inhabitants with 126,000 litres of beauty at forty-five degrees, or 27.15 litres per head of the population (A litre is one and three-quarter imperial pints, something more than the ordinary American quart.) Within twenty years alcoholism has tripled in the inland Norman department of the Eure.
