SILAS GRIMGBIN'S TRAP.

"They are very simple, Miss Thuggle, Presented an altered check at the Oxide bank this morning—in jail for forgery this "But there may be some explanation," timidly remarked the young lady, at whose simplicity Mr. Grimgein smiled, and Miss

Thuggle sniffed,
"He should have made it at once, then,

"He should have made it at once, then, said Mr. Grimgrin, "Instead of standing dumb before his accusers; after explanations don't go much in such cases"

"Poor Edith! it will break her heart," the young lady could not help adding.

"Pooh," said Mr. Grimgrin, "as you will find out some day, heart breaking is only a nignre of speech."

Leaving the rest of Miss. "Physical".

I Leaving the rest of Miss Thuggle's party to laugh, and the young lady to blush, at Mr. Grimgrin's sententious observation, let us go back a step.

Ernest Jasper, whose arrest for forgery was just now the subject of conversation, has hither-to borne an unblemished character. He and his brother George, out of moderate salaries, after supporting their widowed mother, managed to lay up something every year, and each was looking for a happy time, not far distant he hoped, which would no longer need to be deferred. The course of true love never ran smoother than in the case of Ernest Jasper and or than in the case of Ernest Jasper and Estith Wade. Too trusting to allow mischief to make it between themselves, what would disturb the even tenor of two such

George Jasper was of a different temper from his brother. With a heart as true, he was impulsive and passionate. It is such men that are easily excited to jealousy, and who act rashly under it!

When George Jasper and Mildred Heath plighted their troth they would have staked their lives on each other's loyalty. But civil tongues came between them. Stories which should have been scorned—and were at first—in time began to be listened to. Then came quarrels and reconciliation, time and again repeated till at last it was insinuated to George that he had a rival in

"And what is it, pray?"
"That he is not guilty."
"Then who is?" said Silas, sharply.
"You!" retorted Bunce, planting himself before the door, and displaying a badge, at the sight of which Silas trembled.

"What proof have you for such an accusa-

An examination which I, as well at you, know how to make proved that it contained a check; the same—for by a process of my own I was able to read its contents—was to-day presented at the bank by Jasper, and is now in my possession."

"But all that," argued Silas, "does not prove that I either opened the letter or delightful surprise.

To add to the effect, graceful evergreens, or attractive low-growing deciduous trees might be planted at the corners of plots, and a belt of evergreens along the northern side of the garden. In many other ways that will readily suggest themselves to the tasteful reader, the fruit garden may be made to minister to the asthetic as well as to the sensuous nature of men.

The soil of the fruit garden should be good, deep, retentive, naturally or artifi-cially drained, and worked up deep and fine before planting. THE FAMILY FRUIT GARDEN.

It is to be hoped that the number of farm residences without a family fruit garden, are rapidly diminishing, and will grow beautifully less until a farmer shall no more think of dispensing with this important adjunct of the complete home than he would with a spring or well of water for drinking and culinary purposes. A good fruit garden is not only a luxury of the highest order, but it is a necessity to the complete nourishment of a family. A family can exist on a diet of bread and meat and potatoes, but to be nourished on as to develop fully the entire nature, affectional, intellectual, and animal, a range of diet must be employed broad as the providence of Nature.

A family fruit garden may be so laid out and planted as to be one of the greatest ornaments of the homestead. Unlike the front lawn; it should be made of straight lines and parallelograms to facilitate its culture, but care may be exercised in selecting fine specimens of trees in pruning them into proper shape, and in keeping the vines, canes and bushes of the smaller fruits pruned and trained in an attractive way.
