

scheme , might spend a half hour with this chapter.

I read with keen interest your speech at Cobourg, in which you set forth the political situation then described as a constitutional crisis. Since coming to Ottawa I have heard it discussed on many occasions, and your presentation of the facts has been most instructive and helpful.

There are other chapters of deep interest; but it would be unfair to expect you to traverse with me the whole book.

Perhaps I should apologize for the length of this letter -- indeed, perhaps I should apologize for having written it at all. But I would like you to know that I place a high value on the particular volume in my possession.

Trusting that you are enjoying good health, and expressing the hope that it may long continue,

Sincerely,
