

SOME INTERESTING BOOKS

ESSAYS MODERN AND ELIZABETHAN

By PROF. E. DOWDEN.

Demy 8vo, 7s. 6d. net.

In every one of the fourteen essays the master-critic rises above the mere learned professor, and gives us an imaginative and sympathetic insight into the life of many widely different men of genius, and a discussion of the really vital part of their message.

Times.—"Prof. Dowden's five studies on Elizabethan subjects strike us, not merely as imparting a great deal of information (which they certainly do), but also as providing an illuminating example of the way to approach Elizabethan writings if they are to be understood as they were understood by their first readers."

NOTES ON NOVELISTS

By HENRY JAMES.

Small Demy 8vo, 7s. 6d. net.

Henry James, himself a famous novelist, deals with contemporary workers in the same field, including JOSEPH CONRAD, H. G. WELLS, ARNOLD BENNETT, JOHN GALSWORTHY, and HUGH WALPOLE.

Nation.—"A golden book of criticism."

Times.—"The integrity, the consistency, the penetration, depth and fineness of this comprehensive body of criticism."

SWINBURNE: AN ESTIMATE

By JOHN DRINKWATER.

Small Demy 8vo, 5s. net.

A study of Swinburne's lyric technique, his lyric thought, his lyric art, his dramas, and his position as a critic.

Mr. EDMUND GOSSE in The Morning Post.—"A very welcome contribution to what is not common in England—pure criticism of the higher class."

GEOFFREY CHAUCER

By EMILE LEGOUIS.

Translated by L. LAILAVOIX. Large Crown 8vo, 5s. net.

The first full-length study of Chaucer from a French critic.

Westminster Gazette.—"Not merely for the fine insight and scholarly research shown in the critical sections is this study remarkable, but the biographical sketch is an excellent example of sound constructive work."