Women's Institute

The singing of the Institute ode, "A Goodly Thing It is to Meet," served to open the meeting of the Echo Park Women's Institute held on Friday last. Mrs. Barnes presided at the piano, and Mrs. L. H. Hurley, the president, occupied the chair. It was decided to continue Red Cross work through the summer months, though no regular meetings will be held. A quilt for the hospital and a Red Cross autograph will be undertaken.

Miss Abernethy favored the gathering with a solo, "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," following which a most interesting paper upon the life of William Shakespeare was read by Mrs. Hurley. His writings are considered the highest work of man," the paper stated, "and are ranked next to the Bible." A piano duet was next excellently rendered by Miss Isabel and Master Frank Wood, niece and nephew respectively of Mrs. Devereaux, Jr. With Mrs. Quilly at the piano the Institute then joined in the singing of "O Canada," following which an admirable address was delivered by Miss Guest, government delegate, upon the subject of "The Mother: Her Duty to Herself, Her Children and Her Home." "In every walk in life," stated the speaker, "there is a standard set which all must pass before they are considered fit. In the vocation of motherhood, the greatest calling, until very recently no education was thought necessary." Miss Guest went on to point out the multifarious duties which confront a mother and the unequalled opportunities presented to her for exercising a good influence over so many others.

Enthusiastic applause greeted Miss Guest's address, which was so given as to be helpful to all. A dainty dinner by the Misses Grace and Alberta Williams, daughters of one of the Institute members, then brought the program to a close, following which tea was served and a social hour spent in welcoming visitors and new members.

SIX HUNDRED ATTACKS AND SIX RUSSIAN COUNTER-ATTACKS

But Germany Won in Seventh Attack, Says Enemy Writer.

FURIOUS STRUGGLE IN VOLHYNIA

Muscovites and Teutons Fought All Day, Each Regardless of Loss.

Amsterdam, June 27.—Some idea of the fierceness of the fighting on the Russian front is given by a correspondent of The Koelnische Zeitung, who says that the dogged persistence of the Russians shows that their determination to continue the offensive in Volhynia is as strong as ever.

Shell Firing Heavy
Describing the battle for Stokhod he telegraphs:

"Both sides were strongly supported by artillery, and at times the battlefield was real hell. Around the German advanced trenches howled the diabolic song of the Russian shells. When the Russian attack burst forth the clash was terrific, as the enemy rushed forward in dense masses.

Slowly Withdraw
"The battle surged back and forth from eight in the morning. So powerful and determined was the thrust that our lines, which had been subjected to the heaviest fire, slowly withdrew, fighting step by step for the ground they had won in the course of the day.

Six Attacks
"As the afternoon progressed, the Russian artillery fire grew ever more violent, the Russian machine guns working with redoubled energy. Finally we again lost part of a Russian main trench, before we were able to break the massed attack, but the hot fighting still was not ended. The Bavarians and Saxons had already made six attacks and six strong Russian counter-attacks had come.

Held the Positions.
"Still our troops had not had enough. In the evening they attacked for the seventh time, and the success they had won had to be repeated. The Russian main position was again captured, and this time it was firmly held.

"During the night the Russians made three fresh attacks against the lost trench. There was no respite for our men, but they had in the meantime firmly placed our machine guns in position and the enemy assaults collapsed with sanguinary losses."
