The Reviewer.

BRITISH POLITICAL SITUATION.

The first vote in Great Britain's new parliament gave a majority of 31 against tariff reform.

Within two years we expect to see the present government defeated at the polls and tariff reform triumphant with a substantial preference to the overseas colonies.

One thing is settled by the unionists and that is that there will be a 10 per cent. preference to the colonies. This has been definitely settled by the unionist party and its significance as applying to Canada can hardly be overestimated.

To what extent the present liberal ministry will be able to reconstruct or improve the Lords is a problem. During the past month or so since the Budget was introduced by Mr. Lloyd George, the press of Canada and the United States have for the larger part proclaimed the Lords as a mere house of privilege dominated only by old Toryism consisting mainly of ancient families whose glory had passed away and their character with it.

It is a body concerned only that the social privileges of their order should be preserved and quite indifferent to the masses of the British Empire. That is caricature existing only in the imagination of the politician by whom it was painted.

Price Collier, an American writer to whom a good deal of attention has been directed, says: "The House of Lords exists because it is the most democratic institution in England and because in the long run it has been recognized as an assembly whose opinion is as nearly as possible the opinion of a consensus of the competent and a surer interpreter of the sober wishes of the English people as a whole than the House of Commons."

We must admit frankly that the titled world of Great Britain in the last generation should command the respect of the thinking world. Practically every really great man of Great Britain of this generation has been titled by the King or Queen.

Lord Kelvin, the great physicist, Sir Hiram Maxim, the notable inventor, Sir Henry Irving, the great actor, Lord Tennyson, the poet, Sir Henry Stanley, the explorer, Sir William Van Horne, railroad and empire builder, Lord Strathcona, Lord Mount Stephen and many more that might be mentioned.

If the citizens of a republic need and require a Dead Sea level of equality for materialistic purposes the people of Great Britain are sure to recognize real merit, realizing that so high civilization was ever established on a purely materialistic foundation.

What about the Senate of Canada? Is there no name in literature or in art or in law that Sir Wilfrid Laurier could honor with a seat in our Senate? Is partisanship the one and only qualification for appointment to the Canadian Senate? We say that it is a discredit to us all that such men as Mr. Goldwin Smith, Sir Sanford Fleming, Col. George T. Denison, Mr. B. E. Walker, Sir Edward Clouston, Sir A. Curliam Irving, Mr. H. D. MacLeod and other men of similar distinction and capacity were not offered seats in the Senate long ago.

They would enormously strengthen that chamber in character and in ability to serve the state. If the liberals were in a minority they could hardly expect Sir Wilfrid Laurier to ignore party considerations. But with a majority of sixty he surely falls far short of his professions of other days. It is certainly with poor taste that the liberals of Canada criticize the Lords of England for their want of character or ability.

The land question in England has got to be settled exactly as it was in Ireland, and until a land owning, not a mere land leasing class as proposed in the Lloyd George Budget, is created and on the credit of the state, land reform will not advance.

The general attitude of conservatives towards reform in general has been sure but too slow while the radicals went too fast.

Social conditions in England are no worse or as bad as they are in Canada. The connections between the classes of England are as sympathetic and intimate as between any on earth.

What of the boasted absence of class distinctions in Canada when in the House of Commons there are only two labor members and both have party connections? In the United States Senate and House of Representatives there is not one while in the British Commons there are over forty, and they were on the benches and in parliament treated with as much respect as any member of a titled family.

The present Premier is a commoner, and the most brilliant of London journalists, admitted to any literary or social circles, was a founding member in no other country do men who carry on the world's progress, men who achieve things which are of high or low estate, rise to regard them as readily as in old England across the sea. If society is to be composed of hereditarily or wealth we would not choose wealth.

Hockey Notes.

By winning the hockey game from Mt. Allison last Thursday evening in the Evangelical rink Acadia became Acacia, holder of the championship of the intercollegiate league and of the Summer trophy.

Much interest was felt in the outcome of this game as each team had a win to their credit. The result was a score of 8-2 in favor of Acadia. The ice was in splendid condition and the game was witnessed by about eight hundred spectators.

The game started at eight o'clock, the puck going to Acadia territory, but was soon returned to Mt. Allison territory. By the combination play of the Acadia forwards, Patillo shot on goal but was met in pretty form by Seaman. Black then got possession of the puck and was in the act of shooting when Boon tripped him, getting three minutes in the penalty box.

At the end of the game after fifteen minutes play. Three minutes after the face off Patillo scored the second goal for Acadia on a pass from Corey. On resuming play Black was caught tripping, receiving three minutes penalty. Mt. Allison then got together and rushed matters, Cameron scoring the first goal for his team.

The play then became a little looser, with the puck travelling from end to end. Black securing it shot Acadia's third goal from cover point. Half a minute after the face off McDougall scored the second goal for Mt. Allison. The game now began to get interesting with both teams playing fast hockey, the puck going to Acadia territory where Curry securing it lifted from point position for Acadia's fourth goal. From the face off Mt. Allison rushed to Acadia territory where Black securing the puck lifted it into the goal from centre ice.

The play now began to get rough. Just before the bell rang for half time Murray and North were sent to the penalty box for three minutes each for roughing it, which they had to serve in the second half. The half ended 5-2 in favor of Acadia.

One minute after the second half started Patterson hurt his knee, delaying the game for three minutes, when he pluckily resumed play. Three minutes after Eaton scored the sixth goal for Acadia, Patillo soon following with another. The play continued very rough, considerable tripping being indulged in by both sides, Murray and McKee going to the penalty box for three minutes, followed soon after by Black. The puck was now kept in Mt. Allison territory, and the work of Seaman at goal deserves the highest praise. He made some phenomenal stops. McKeen again got three minutes for tripping. Cameron then gained possession of the puck and worked towards the Acadia goal, but lost to Black, who in a pretty dribble scored the eighth goal for Acadia. The line up was—

In a game of hockey played last Saturday evening, between the Freshman and Sophomore classes of the College, the former won by the score of 2-1.

The Victoria hockey team defeated Canada on Tuesday by the score of 3-1, which gives a good idea of the game.

This evening Wolfville goes to Windsor to play a game of hockey with the Swastikas. The latter team will come to Wolfville some time soon.
