FIRE IN CALGARY. CALGARY, Nov. 21. Fire yesterday swept the Woolworth Store and Royal Bank Building, causing a loss of $200,000.

INTERED REMOVED. CORN, Nov. 21. The last of the interned Irish Republican sympathizers in a bunch of 400, guarded by 300 troops, have been moved from Spike Island to the former convict settlement of Mayborough. One complaint made by Sinn Fein officials was that Spike Island was unsanitary.

WIRELESS CHAIN NOT FAILED. LONDON, Nov. 21. Postmaster General Kellaway has issued a statement declaring the report in the daily papers that the scheme for an Imperial wireless chain had collapsed is devoid of foundation. The statement adds that the scheme was approved by the Imperial Conference and endorsed by the Committee of the Imperial Conference, it being agreed that the Imperial Government should take steps for the erection of wireless stations not already provided for.

FRANCE WANTS ASSURANCE. WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. War would have broken out in Europe three or four times since the signing of the armistice had it not been for the French army, Premier Briand declared yesterday in a conversation with newspaper correspondents. "We are alone," the French Premier said. "If it were possible for Great Britain, the United States and Italy to say, 'if you are attacked we would be with you, then it would be possible for us to disarm, but if you simply say, 'don't be afraid, don't worry, nobody is going to attack you, that is not enough.'"

JAPAN AND NAVAL DISARMAMENT. TOKYO, Nov. 21. The Cabinet Council was reported yesterday to have agreed to approve a draft of amendment to the naval proposals at Washington Conference submitted by the Japanese delegation, subject to further reference of the draft to a diplomatic advisory council.

JAPAN AND AIRPLANE CARRIERS. WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. The airplane carrier is the type of ship referred to by Admiral Kato as one in which Japan might like to approximate its tonnage to that of the United States and Great Britain, it was learned from authoritative sources. With hundreds of islands to protect, Japan apparently wants to be able to transport airplanes in large numbers.

SUSPENSION CRITICIZED. LONDON, Nov. 21. Suspension of all naval construction by Great Britain is heartily endorsed by the majority of the morning newspapers. Two or three of the principal papers refrain from comment. "Deeds speak louder than words," says the Daily Chronicle, "and the decision shows beyond a doubt that when we accepted the principle of Hughes' proposals we meant all we said." Referring to the fact that the United States will continue building warships, the newspaper says, "the choice of the United States is not our concern. Our shipbuilding has never been directed against the United States."

WHAT HE REMEMBERS.

Sometimes he forgets that his collar is soiled. And carries the signs of the way he has toiled. Sometimes he forgets what is proper to do. He will travel for days without shinning a shoe. He forgets his engagements and goes on his way. Unmindful of all that his business friends say. But just ask his wife, and she'll proudly reply: That he's never forgotten to kiss her good-bye.

His methods are careless—there's no doubt of that. Men say that he'll promise and let them down flat. Because he forgets, and they frequent him when he comes in. But his children will tell you he makes them his pets. And the things they have asked for he never forgets. And his wife will declare with a light in her eye: That he's never forgotten to kiss her good-bye.

He's not much to look at, his fortune is small. But he owns a treasure that's richer than all. They are happy together, and nobody frets. Because of the duties he often forgets. So what of his calling and what of his life, that he's living is surely worth while. His wife says he's splendid, and like-for-like she's never forgotten to kiss her good-bye.

Co-Operation.

The phrase "Anglo-American understanding" is often used. Lightly. What does it mean? An understanding about what?

There are some Americans who seem to want it to be an understanding about everything. They seem to want the United States and the British Empire to throw their fate into the same hat and then mutually guarantee the hat against being upset by any combination of "lesser breeds without the law."

The American who wants an understanding of this character covering the whole world are relatively few. Here and there exists an adventurous soul who would guarantee the safety of English-speaking people from London in Egypt, Malta, Cyprus, Gibraltar, Palestine, Mesopotamia and all points south and east; but for the overwhelming mass of Americans there is not sufficient of an understanding of the safety of English-speaking people from Washington at Guam and Manila.

The British have many possessions to protect. We have but few. It is simply politically unthinkable that they should give them a guaranty of safety in exchange for their guaranty of our few. Whatever "Anglo-American understanding" is ever brought into more than an after-dinner existence will be an understanding calculated to bring an approximately equal advantage to both sides. Therefore, it must be an understanding not in general but in particular and not throughout the world but at specific spots for specific purposes. And such a co-operation the English-speaking people alone are competent to lead—and therefore should lead.—Chicago News (Ind.).

Why We Sometimes Turn Against our Comrades. Some months ago I wrote about the way people who poured out their hearts to a friend in time of trouble, sometimes turn against their confidantes when the trouble is over, for fault on the latter's part, but merely because with the inevitable reaction, they regret their confidences. In writing the article I described an individual case of this sort. A few weeks ago a friend of mine told me of a friend who had come to her in time of trouble and who had suddenly become cold to her. She could not think what the reason was. I turned to my files and sent her this article, which she had not seen before. When she wrote back she said: "If the date were not on that article, I could hardly have believed that you were not describing my own case."

Thought His Fiancee Had Told Me. Some years ago I had a fervid correspondence with a previously unknown woman, who said her fiancee threatened to break their engagement because I had described in my column certain things that had happened between them, and he did not like her telling me about these intimate personal matters. She wanted me to write and tell him that she had not told me.

So much for the universality of human experience. In some ways it is a disconcerting thought, perhaps because it makes us seem less important, less individual. But, at least, it is a comfort to know that our frailties, our meanness, our black thoughts are not peculiar to us. It lightens the burden of our self-distaste a bit. Not too much, I hope.

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT.

Do you sometimes have a v a thoughts that you are thoroughly a s h a m e d of thoughts of envy and jealousy and unfounded hate—as for instance, a moment of poignant regret when good fortune far surpassing anything that has ever happened to you, comes to some friend? The instant you recognize the feeling you are ashamed of it, but you cannot deny, if you are honest, that you did feel it!

And do you wonder when you discover yourself in such a shameful thought if anyone else in the world was ever so alone? There are millions and billions of them.

No Thought That Hasn't Been Thought Before. The older I grow, the more proof I find of the universality of human hearts and human experience. You cannot think a thought, however ignoble, however fine, that has not been thought millions of times before.

You can hardly be placed in an experience that thousands of people are not passing through with you.

An editor of a certain magazine told me that after publishing a semi-biographical story telling how an unconsciously selfish woman ruined a man's life by making too great demands upon him, he received more than 200 letters from people who thought the story was taken from their experience, and asked how the author had known about their particular cases.

British Protectorate Over Egypt May be Abandoned.

Negotiations Between Governments Temporarily Collapse—Powers Desire Emancipation of China—Labor Deprecates Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

EGYPTIAN NEGOTIATIONS FAIL. LONDON, Nov. 21. Negotiations between the British Government and Egyptian officials regarding the abandonment of the British protectorate over Egypt have temporarily collapsed. After presenting a note stating they were unable to agree with the British draft of the Treaty designed to make Egypt an independent, though Allied power, the delegation left for Cairo.

LABOR'S MANIFESTO. LONDON, Nov. 21. A manifesto issued by the Labor Party on behalf of the whole Labor movement of Great Britain, promises support to any steps that may be necessary to make the proposal for naval disarmament reduction effective, and calls for extension of the proposals to all forms of armament. The manifesto also calls for non-renewal of the Alliance between Great Britain and Japan. "British Labor," it says, "recognizes the existence of widespread hostility in the United States against a continuance of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance. Under no circumstances could labor contemplate being dragged into war with the United States. Labor holds that since both Japan and Great Britain are members of the existing League of Nations, the Treaty of Alliance should not be renewed."

CHINA. WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. Japan joined with other powers on Saturday in expressing sympathy for the national aspirations of China, but added a postscript regretting any tendency towards detailed examination by the Disarmament Conference into innumerable minor matters in the Far East. In a statement, omitting mention of specific points of controversy between the two countries, Japanese delegates informed the Conference that their Government claimed no specific rights and privileges in the procuring of raw material from China, harbored no policy of territorial aggrandizement at China's expense, and was ready to join in any readjustment of extra territorial rights, which appeared fair and satisfactory. To enter into an examination of details, the delegation said, would be an attempt likely to result in undue pro-traction of discussions. In turn Great Britain, France, Italy, Holland and Belgium expressed in broad terms their desires for the emancipation of China through commercial liberty and preserved territorial integrity, a position which has the adherence of the United States. Baron Kato, Japan's spokesman, said China's troubles were largely due to internal causes with which the Tokio Government had no desire to interfere, much as it desired China's peace and unity firmly established. Arthur J. Balfour, for Great Britain, reaffirmed adherence to the open door and the policy of Chinese territorial integrity, and said his Government was ready to consider relinquishment of extra territorial rights in China, when circumstances warranted.
