

"Peggy, you certainly have the best-looking clothes!"

"I don't believe you spend any more money on yours than I do on mine. How do you do it?"

"Sunset Dye," said Peggy laconically.

"Why, you old dear, you don't mean to say you dye things yourself?"

"Yes, I do—it's not hard at all, and I can always count on Sunset for good color. That russet charmeuse you admired last winter was one of my Sunset dresses. The yellow sweater I wore at the Club so often in the fall was the white one I bought in the spring. I'm strong for Sunset—it doubles the wear of my clothes and saves me as much again as I spend."

Sooner with Sunset is certain when you follow the simple directions. By mixing two or more Sunset colors you can have any fashionable shade you want. All Sunset colors are fast for all fabrics. Your hands are not stained, the materials are not harmed by Sunset. Spectacular Scenes

With the entire Pacific battle fleet in action; with the big guns belching fire and shells in the fury of a tremendous bombardment; with swift sea-serps dealing death in a torrent of steel from the skies; with the shore batteries pouring their fire from the very reaches of the coast, Emory Johnson's great production, "The Mail Boat," takes rank as the outstanding play of the year. It will be shown for the first time at the Majestic Theatre on Monday next.

Emory Johnson has produced "The Mail Boat" on a truly lavish and sumptuous scale. Johnson has that happy faculty of knowing what the public wants and doesn't fail to give it to them.

Ralph Lewis, as the veteran letter carrier about whom the rush of events revolves, has one of the greatest roles of his career, according to the star himself. The family life of the mail man is shown in scenes of rare beauty.

The devotion of his wife and the loyalty of the son, layed by Johnnie Walker, and who also enters the service of the mail department, are developed with rare facility. Walker, indeed, has by all odds the most imposing role of his career and he and Mr. Lewis appear in many scenes of gripping drama.

PIMPLES WERE VERY PAINFUL

On Forehead, Cheeks and Chin. Cuticura Heals.

"My face began breaking out with pimples, first my forehead, then cheeks and chin, and it was so awful looking sight. The pimples were hard and red and after a time came to a head and scalded sore. They were very painful at times and the trouble lasted about three months."

"I tried different remedies without any benefit. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I was completely healed after using three boxes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment."

Physical Kinks

CHANGES DUE TO OCCUPATION.

Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, the eminent surgeon, in a recent interview, gave some remarkable instances of changes in the physical frame, showing how the human anatomy bore a simple relation to environment, and that it was possible from alterations in structure to state definitely the occupation that had been followed by a subject coming under the surgeon's observation in the dissecting-room.

"There are definite and simple laws governing these changes," he said. "They may be placed in the following categories: (1) Pressure produces definite changes; (2) strain produces definite changes; and (3) without the presence of pressure or strain an old mechanism may be altered or a new one developed."

"A brewer's drayman, for instance, from the constant carrying of heavy weights on the right shoulder, develops a displacement of the vertebrae and a perfect curve on the spinal column."

"The spinal column of the coalman who carries sacks across his shoulders and tips them over his head develops rigidly, and finally the vertebrae become hardened and joined together."

Another interesting phase of this study was found in the monkey. When a monkey loses its tail it gets into the habit of holding on to a tree with one hand and collecting nuts with the other.

This hanging on with one hand has a tendency to displace the ribs on the other side, and thus in time asymmetrical ribs developed. When he becomes a human being no longer dependent on his arms for locomotion his ribs again become symmetrical.

"There have been reversions," added Sir William, "to the type which, though bridged by millions of years, is still met with."

Army Manoeuvres Again

THE FIRST SINCE 1913.

(Daily Mail)

Tanks that travel at 15 miles an hour, six times the speed of those used in the war;

New methods of mechanical transport that will handle greater armies in less time;

Smoke screens which will save thousands of lives in action;

Devices for intercepting enemy wireless;

These are among the advances in warfare which will be tried in September at the first Army manoeuvres since 1913. Operations will begin in the early hours of September 22 and end late on September 24 or early on September 25.

The two great armies which will meet on the battlefield with, roughly, Reading (Berkshire), Devizes (Wiltshire), Blandford (Dorset), and Petersfield (Hampshire) at the corners, will represent Wessex and Mercia. The headquarters camp will be at Andover.

It has not been possible to hold such manoeuvres since the war, owing to the great expense involved, but the view is taken that they are now necessary in the interests both in efficiency and economy.

"Since the war we have been making important developments in new appliances, and many are very expensive," said a high War Office official. "We felt that unless we tried them on a big scale we should not be able to produce them with confidence."

"We look, therefore, on these manoeuvres as being as much for experiment and research as for training of the troops and the staff."

The new tanks, for example, are a great advance. They will do 15 miles an hour on the road, and 10 to 12 miles an hour over country. With their visors down (observation slits closed) they can do five or six miles an hour.

"We are carrying out further experiments in wireless, not only in transmission and receipt by telegraph and telephone, but also in interception. We are going to try to take a step more in the complicated co-operation of ground and air forces."

"There is going to be one great change from previous manoeuvres. In the old days operations were largely dictated by the umpires, which left insufficient scope for thought to the commanders. We are going to try to make the commanders, not the umpires, fight the battles. The umpires will paint pictures of the effects—not give orders—for the benefit of junior officers."

The chief director of manoeuvres will be Lord Cavan, Chief of the Imperial General Staff.

Firemen Receive Call

An alarm of fire from Box 226, was rung in at 11 o'clock last night by Const. C. Pitcher, calling the fire companies to the house of Mr. James Rogers, Murphy's Range, where a large volume of smoke was found issuing forth. After arrival of the apparatus it was found that the inmates of the house had been burning a quantity of rubbish in the kitchen stove, which soon filled the house with smoke. The services of the firemen were not required.

Tremendous Story at the Nickel Monday

NORMA SHEARER AND JOHN GILBERT IN "THE SNOB."

A most unusual story, directed by the man who made "Broadway After Dark," one of the best pictures of the year, is "The Snob," the Metro-Goldwyn offering which comes to the Nickel Theatre Monday for an engagement.

The story, taken from the novel of the same name by Helen R. Martin, was adapted and directed by Monta Bell, a directorial "discovery" of Harry Kapla, and it is unique in screen plots for its central character, "the snob," played by John Gilbert.

"Decidedly different" is the verdict of those who have seen Mr. Gilbert's portrayal of this unusual role, for though it is an unsympathetic character, it is played with the same magnetic fire and dash which have marked Mr. Gilbert's other screen work in such pictures as "His Hour," "Cameo Kirby," "Monte Cristo" and many other pictures.

The story has its locale in a private academy in a small German town in Pennsylvania and Mr. Bell has developed many interesting characters among the "Pennsylvania Dutch."

Beautiful Norma Shearer plays the leading feminine role opposite Mr. Gilbert, and Conrad Nagel is seen in a character almost as great as that of Mr. Gilbert's.

The large supporting cast includes Phyllis Haver, Hedda Hopper, Jack Curtis, Margaret Seddon, Aileen Manning, Hazel Kennedy and others.

"The Snob" is Bell's first production for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company.
