

Feast of the Maccabees Is Celebrated By City Jews

Lighting of White Candles Marks Commencement of Festival Akin to Christian Christmas—Continues for Eight Nights—Story of Judah Maccabee.

With a feeling of solemnity, close akin to that which hovers about the celebration of the Christian festival of Christmas, a white candle will be lighted tonight in 150 Jewish homes in the city, marking the commencement of the feast of the Maccabees, or, as it is known in the Hebrew language, the feast of Chanukah.

For eight nights the feast will continue, and each night an extra candle will be lighted. The proceeding is a reminder of the ancient Jewish legend that when Judah Maccabee and his followers entered the temple, which they wrested from the hands of the invaders, they found a quantity of oil in the sacred vessel, sufficient to burn only one night, but through the agency of their prayers the oil was kept alight for eight days and eight nights.

Time of Thanksgiving.
To the Jewish people the feast of the Maccabees, or, as it is sometimes known, the feast of the Dedication, means a time of thanksgiving and rejoicing. It is at this time that they exchange gifts; a practice similar to that carried out by Christians at Christmas time.

Although the offering of additional prayers is inserted in the regular prayers of the synagogue, the feast is more a national festival than a religious observance, and it is considered quite permissible to follow the daily work throughout the celebration.

As with Christmas time, it holds much in store for the children. The lighting of the white candles has for them the same significance as a Christmas tree for Christian children. Presents are given them, and at the commencement of the feast they gather with their parents and are told in simple fashion the historical background of the celebration; the story of the recapture of Jerusalem by Judah Maccabee and his followers from the mad king of Syria.

Story of Tyranny.
Sometimes it is the custom to gather together the children of several families, and they are feasted, and the story is told them. The feast recalls in particular the events of 168 to 165 B. C., in Palestine, when the Jews were driven to the worship of false gods by the tyrannies of Antiochus Epiphanes, or the man man, king of Syria, who had resolved to quench the lamp of religious liberty, and to convert the temple of Mount Moriah, in the city of Jerusalem, was desecrated by his orders, and it seemed as though Israel and his sacred heritage were doomed to be swept away by the rising tide of heathenism.

This enforced obedience to a heathen king was the cause of hatred germinated in the hearts of the Palestinian Jews against Antiochus, which resulted in the revolt that led instantly to war with Syria. The Jewish forces were led by Mattathias, the head of a princely family, who rallied a small band of loyal followers to defy the king and wrest freedom for his countrymen from the tyrannies and blasphemies of the mad emperor.

Triumph of Mattathias.
With the support of his son Judah, to whom tradition has given the name Maccabee, and his four heroic brothers, the Assameonians, he led to triumph the small handful of Palestinian farmers, who, inspired with holy zeal, defeated all the Syrian generals in a campaign which lasted four years.

When victory was complete the temple at Jerusalem was renovated, the idolatrous images removed, and the altar rededicated to the worship of the true God. It is in remembrance of this dedication, and to voice the hope that all men will eventually be banded together in one covenant of righteousness and love, that the festival is celebrated.

GRAYDON DEFENDS ACTIONS IN COURT

Magistrate Replies to Charge of Injustice Made by Aldermen.

When informed that certain members of the city council had been discussing the strict enforcement of the parking bylaws of the city, claiming that drivers were picking up passengers on the wrong side of Queen's avenue, Magistrate Graydon stated: "I never fined a man for picking up passengers on the wrong side of the street. I fined the man in this particular case for parking on the wrong side of the street. He stood in front of the Winter Gardens waiting for passengers to come out. Another man who just picked up a passenger there I allowed to go."

"The parking bylaw is one of the best bylaws we have," he added. "That particular spot on Queen's avenue is one where accidents are very likely to occur."

Queen's avenue is a one-side parking street, a bylaw passed by the council making it an offence to park on the south side of the street. The motorists in question were two taxi men who drove up to the Winter Gardens. In one case, the customer was waiting for the taxi, and in the other the taxi was parked on the south side until the customers came out of the dance hall. The driver in this second instance left his taxi to meet the customers.

THE BANK CLEARINGS for the week amounted to $2,377,387, in contrast to $2,384,144 for the corresponding week last year.

MAY SIFT SCHOOL BOARD'S ACTIONS

That move was the next on the part of the real estate board.

Petition Circulated.
Mr. Palmer was of the opinion that a petition with over 500 names had been sent in, protesting against the erection of the school on the site of the alleged school site. Mr. Palmer was unable to say, but he was firmly convinced that 500 names would not be given to cover the protesting citizens of the city.

"Why in spite of the fact that I was defeated in the ward at the last election," claimed ex-Ald. Palmer, "I headed the petition?"

He is endeavoring to put that school. "The people there know me, and they know of my stand against the 'Red Bird' school site."

Call It a Death Trap.
"The people in that district know that it is nothing short of a crime to build a school on that site. It is a death-trap. Any motorist knows the traffic that is constantly moving at that point, would be an unending menace to young lives. We are not alone in the district, a number of the most prominent businessmen in the city are urging us to see the matter to a finish, and are promising us their support."

"The school board seems to think it a joke," said Mr. Palmer, "but let them go ahead. Some of the answers they may be asked to give on a public stand would make every citizen as well as enlightening reading, particularly in reference to the central college."

Mr. Palmer was of the opinion that the school board was rushing the construction of the school because they were, as he said, aware that the supporters of the Trafalgar site would be in a minority when the new board was inaugurated.

"During the past year Trustees Wright, Rowe and Udy were with us, and opposed the Trafalgar site. From every angle I claimed Mr. Palmer. 'They'll not be in a minority after the new year. I know of other opponents of that frivolous scheme who will be on the board. That's why they are in such a hurry now,' he said."

According to members of the school board interviewed this morning, there is some difference of opinion as to what stand the school board should take. Trustee A. N. Udy stated that the first thought that came to his mind was that the board's solicitor should be consulted before any further action is taken towards erecting the school on the Trafalgar site. The board was spending public money, he said, and it would be the safest plan to act on the advice of a solicitor.

Trustee Edwin Smith, who is chairman of the board of education, however, was emphatic that the school board, and the building committee, was acting within its power in pushing along the work on the site selected.

Operations were begun Saturday, he said, with the turning of the first sod, and today the contractor was on the site making preparations for an early start. He was decided that "swearing" from the real estate board" would not hinder the construction of the Trafalgar school.

"There's where your pencils go," tattled Trustee Silverwood's pencil pocket.

"No! No! This is one of my own, see?" and Trustee Silverwood's nimble fingers brought forth a pencil that was his own. At least it was minus the tell-tale mark "Board of Education."

That ended it, as far as it went last night. Secretary Tanner was ready to take Trustee Silverwood's word, and all made their exit in peace.

But some of the trustees are still somewhat dubious, and attribute Trustee Silverwood's ease in clearing away what might have coupled him with a number of "pencil misdeeds" to a knowledge of slight-of-hand.

It could not be learned how many pencils Secretary Tanner was minus after last night's meeting.

ELECT JAMES GRAY C. OF C. PRESIDENT

Local Chamber Chooses Head for New Year—Port Stanley Harbor Improvements Recommended.

By unanimous vote, James Gray was yesterday afternoon elected to the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting of the directors in the Tecumseh House.

Vice-presidents elected were A. E. Silverwood and Major Gordon Ingram.

In an endeavor to secure improvements badly needed in the harbor at Port Stanley, representatives of the Chamber of Commerce are to consult with the various public bodies of Elgin and Middlesex, acting on the suggestion of Hugh McKillop, M. P. for West Elgin, made at the opening of the London-St. Thomas highway.

Reference was made by three of the members, E. S. Little, John S. Moore and George H. Belton, to the condition of the harbor, and the sand bar, and wreckage, which present a barrier to larger vessels at the harbor mouth.

Asking the support and co-operation of local merchants in their action, the Chamber of Commerce forwarded to Premier King a telegram of protest against the receipt tax, the enforcement of which goes into effect January 1.

Tentative plans on the new building at the Western Fair were submitted by E. S. Little, the chairman of the building committee. The plans, which provided for 50,000 feet of floor space, with two floors, are to be submitted for consideration before the manufacturers of London and Western Ontario.

Reports were received from the committee appointed to report on the desirability of holding a made-in-London show, which will be held for educational purposes.

News From City Churches

CENTENNIAL W. M. S.
The Christmas meeting of the Centennial W. M. S. held yesterday afternoon, was most interesting and inspiring.

With the president, Mrs. Pirie, in the chair, an address on "The Church and Childhood of Jesus" was given by Mrs. Childs, and a presentation of the certificate of life membership was given to Mrs. Francis, an esteemed member of the society.

A Christmas solo was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Page, and the meeting closed with a social half hour under the convensership of Mrs. Lancaster.

BROADCASTING RECORD MADE BY TORONTONIAN

The world's long distance record for radio broadcasting is now held by Jean Anderson Thirde, formerly of Toronto, at present of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who in well-known by many of the music-loving folk of London.

The former record was 2,400 miles, but this noted Scottish singer was clearly heard at 2,750 miles.

Mrs. Thirde is returning to Canada in the near future, after a successful year of concert work in many of the leading American cities.

TALK IN FRENCH PASSES, BUT BANNED IN ENGLISH

The "no politics" sign was placed before the U. E. O. speakers at this afternoon's session by popular vote. The question arose during an address by Alphonse G. Tisdelle, M.P.P., of North Essex, who was brought to time by President Burnaby when he touched on politics.

The humorous side of the ruling was that the man who caused the discussion in the afternoon had been delivered with impunity by the same speaker in French in the morning.

Six New Cardinals Invested at Great Rome Ceremonial

Insignia of Elevation Bestowed on Princes of Church by Pope Pius.

Rome, Dec. 14.—Public investiture by Pope Pius of six of the eight new cardinals took place in St. Peter's this morning, when at the first public consistory of the pontificate the recently created princes of the church received from the pontiff the red hat and the rochet insignia of their elevation.

Cardinal Locatelli and Cardinal Casanova were absent, the former being in Lisbon and the latter in Toledo. They will be invested by the hands of their respective states.

Today's consistory was the first held for many years in the hall of beatifications, which has been closed during the restoration of the ceiling. This work, however, was completed several months ago.

From almost the break of day carriages, motors and cabs streamed along the road leading from the center of the city to the ancient borgo, where stand the apostolic palaces. In the throng that hastened thus to St. Peter's were men in formal attire, women in black dresses and lace mantillas, papal diplomats, members of the Roman aristocracy and the more plainly-dressed monks and nuns.

TRAIN COLLISION TAKES BIG TOLL

Ten Dead and Thirty Injured as Result of Accident in Houston, Texas.

Special to The Advertiser.
Houston, Texas, Dec. 14.—Ten persons are known to be dead and thirty injured are in hospitals today, as result of a collision of a Houston East and West Texas passenger train and a switch engine at Humble, near here last night. Four of the known dead are white and others negroes.

The negro coach, which was crowded to capacity, those who escaped being cooked by the vapor of live steam.

The other dead or injured were found in the smoking compartment, but the presence of mind of a railroad fireman saved many lives there. Rushing through the compartment he smashed the door open, thus allowing fresh air to neutralize the hissing clouds.

STILL FIGHT BITTERLY TO WIN OVER RHODESIA
Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's.
Cape Town, S. A., Dec. 14.—J. McDonald, a prominent member of the Rhodesia Union Association, in an interview yesterday stated that the association intended to contest every seat at the next election in Rhodesia.

He declared that fully two-fifths of the voters in the recent referendum in favor of Rhodesia entering the South African Union or assuming local responsible government, were in favor of Rhodesia entering the union. Notwithstanding the majority vote in favor of local responsible government, Mr. McDonald said, the unionists were growing in strength.

HEADS SWISS CONFEDERATION.
Bern, Dec. 14.—Karl Scheurer, vice-president of the Swiss confederation during the last year, elected president for 1933 today. He received 156 votes out of the 210 in the federal assembly. Ernest Coudenhove-Kalergi, a federal councillor, was elected vice-president, receiving 151 votes. The assembly also chose next year's federal council.

President-Elect Scheurer lives in Gamplan, canton of Bern.

TRAFFIC SYSTEM TO BE IMPROVED
Ald.-Elect William Wilson Expects Better Regulations at Main Thoroughfares.

"Let's have better traffic regulation at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets," urges Ald.-Elect William Wilson.

The ex-chairman of the board of works reminded The Advertiser today that he was the undisputed "father of the silent policeman scheme."

"Other people have been urging improved service at the main intersection," he asserted confidently, "but I am the man who always fought in the city council for the installation of a semaphore."

Mr. Wilson is quite agreed that this proposal would meet with every success. He relates that he has noted a similar arrangement in other cities and that considerable time was saved and the handling of traffic was rendered less difficult.

With members of the new council already interesting themselves in this phase of the city's traffic problems, it is reasonably safe to assume that 1933 will witness a sweeping change for the better at the intersection of the two main thoroughfares.

A recent survey of the street railway service, undertaken by The Advertiser, revealed that unsatisfactory delays are occasioned at these corners, most of which can be attributed to the system now in vogue.

The remainder of the responsibility must be shouldered by those citizens who unconsciously enough, perhaps, take their time in getting on and off cars, unless they happen to be in a desperate hurry.

Thomas H. Gregory passed away at his home, 24 Renwick avenue, city, last night in his 42nd year. Mr. Gregory was in good health earlier in the day and had been down town attending to some business. On returning home he was stricken suddenly and died in a short time.

SAYS BUSINESS WOMEN CAN BE GOOD MOTHERS
New York, Dec. 14.—The Rev. Percy Stickney Grand, D.D., of the Church of the Ascension, talked of married women and careers in his address. His address was based on "This Freedom." A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel, in which the author pictures disaster in the lives of children of his heroine, a talented woman who chose to continue her career after marriage.

Dr. Grand said he had not read the novel, but he scoffed at the idea that the children of business or artistic mothers do not turn out well. A good business woman, he declared, can also be a successful mother, and he added that he knows of many instances where business women have children who are exceptions to the fictional examples chosen by the author.

Dr. Grand said girls who can marry only with the prospect of continuing in business careers should do so rather than remain single. He said he knew of many cases where children have turned out badly even with good home training.

SOUTHERN TOWN IS SWEEPED BY FIRE

Business Block in Ruins and Flames Demolishing Another Before Water Procured.

Special to The Advertiser.
Alton, Pa., Dec. 14.—With one entire business block in ruins, and flames demolishing another, the little town of Juniata was threatened with destruction today. The borough reservoir is dry and there is practically no water with which to fight the conflagration.

The fire started in a barber shop at 4:30 a.m. and spread unchecked while fire fighters sought desperately for some means to get water to the zone. The Pennsylvania Railway gave thousands of gallons from its reservoir but the flames continued to gain headway.

"An acute water shortage has existed for some time, Juniata shops of the Pennsylvania railway being closed on this account."

After the fire had raged for five hours and more than twenty buildings had been destroyed at a loss of a quarter of a million dollars, dynamite was resorted to today, and the Pennsylvania railway gave thousands of gallons from its reservoir but the flames continued to gain headway.

The fire was quickly put under control.

HANGS FROM DOOR OF WELLAND JAIL

Charles Beckett, Awaiting Trial for Murder, Defeats Course of Law.

Welland, Ont., Dec. 14.—Charles Beckett, awaiting trial for the murder of Dwight Ditts, Pelham Center farmer, committed suicide in the county jail some time early this morning. It was just three weeks after the Thursday when Beckett clubbed Ditts to death in the Ditts' barn, that Beckett took his own life.

Guard Abel Miller discovered the dead body of Beckett in his cell early this morning.

Beckett, had twisted together some bed clothes, fastened them to the ceiling of the door, and evidently allowed his body to sag down until strangulation occurred. Although two prisoners slept in the same cell with Beckett, they knew nothing of what had happened. Beckett had apparently gone about in silence, and must have exhibited iron will in refraining from struggling or in some manner making noise enough to arouse his cell mates. When he discovered some time before 5 o'clock he had apparently been dead for some time.

Dr. J. H. Howell was telephoned by the jail authorities and viewed the body, but nothing could be done. A jury was empaneled which viewed the body. The inquest will be resumed tomorrow night. Beckett was merely awaiting trial for medical examination to test his sanity he could only be treated as an ordinary prisoner. He received the attention as the others, and in most respects was a model prisoner. While he had exhibited signs of not being quite normal, he was never at any time been violent since being taken to the jail. As a rule he had slept soundly and had readily submitted to jail discipline.

QUEBEC HOUSE FIGHTS OVER UPKEEP OF ROADS

Quebec, Dec. 14.—The government highways bill, which held the attention of the legislative assembly in the resolution stage practically all day Tuesday, was again at the heart of contention in the house yesterday, when the bill was under study in committee of the house.

The bill, which provides for the government taking over the cost of the maintenance of main highways and regional, aggregating in all 725 miles of roads, was passed in committee of the house, and third reading deferred until Thursday.

The house gave third reading to the Ouellet bill to amend the municipal code to permit municipal corporations to expropriate sand and gravel pits or stone quarries for the construction of roads.

"LET GEORGE DO IT," CHORUS COUNCIL

Registry Office Project Will Be Left to Incoming Council to Deal With.

"On to '33" is the city hall slogan for the registry office project. The site has been selected and approved. Plans have been prepared and approved. Tenders have been received and opened. Twice the provincial authorities have been apprised of the true facts of the case. Still no movement is discernible at Toronto.

"Let George do it," chorused the councillors last night, and Mayor Wilson concurred. "We have got the proposition all ready. They can build it next year."

A vote of appreciation passed unanimously will be forwarded to the Middlesex County council, at the suggestion of the mayor, thanking the members of that body for their ready and continued co-operation towards the selection of the site on county land.
