CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS.

ONTARIO.

The lumber trade has lost no ground during the past week, as there has been an average movement and prices have been well maintained. There are no signs of weakness, and it is believed that when the elections in this country and the United States are over there will be a revival in the demand for lumber and a stiffening of prices. While the quantity of unsold lumber at the mills will be larger than at the close of navigation last year, it will not be more than enough to supply the demand until the new cut is ready next year. Several of the largest firms will operate conservatively in the woods this winter and will figure upon stocking their mills for days runs only next season. In the face of a restricted production, there is no good reason for a decline in pine lumber prices.

The factory demand for hardwoods is more lively, which is taken to indicate that consumers have been running along with light stocks and are now willing to purchase for their winter requirements at present prices. Interior finish stock is experiencing a good movement, and there has been some improvement in the call for basswood.

QUEBEC AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

Increased activity is reported from some of the spruce districts, although the volume of trade is still small for this season of the year. There is a better feeling in respect to British business, the general opinion being that prices are likely to improve between now and the end of the year. Merchable spruce deals are worth about $12 at St. John. Dullness prevails in logging circles on account of the contemplated contraction in operations. It is estimated that the coming winter's cut on the Upper St. John river will not be more than 65,000,000 feet, as compared with an average cut of about 120,000,000 feet. Operations on the Miramichi and Restigouche rivers will also be restricted, and in Nova Scotia a policy of curtailment will be followed to a lesser extent. There is an improved demand for lath, but shingles are still weak, with a larger number of sales of Extras at $1.10 for Boston delivery.

UNITED STATES.

Reports from the United States are not so universally favorable as last week, trade in the east in particular being somewhat dull. In Philadelphia and New York the volume of business is by no means satisfactory. In Chicago and district there is a vast amount of building under way and lumber dealers are doing a steady trade, with prices well maintained. The manufacturers in the Lake Superior district make no complaint as to business. The bulk of their output has been disposed of and the small balance is almost certain to be held at firm prices. Dealers are buying southern pine quite liberally and prices have advanced from $1 to $2 per thousand. There is less strength shown by spruce, random cargoes at Boston having sold at slightly lower prices. Hardwoods generally are in good demand. Much of the southern production has passed into the hands of dealers, who are endeavoring to keep up prices. It is predicted that there will be a liberal production of Wisconsin and Michigan hardwood logs the coming winter and
