STEWART.

Fellow countrymen, note the unknown quantity!—Erastus Wiman—the sphinx of America, whose secret purpose is as yet unfathomed:—In view of a mirage of misery, he stands bestride the St. Lawrence, with the sunny side of his face coquetting with the republican goddess, while with the shady side, in Presbyterian mien, he invites Canada to her doom; wherein, she will of her great wealth afford a balsam to the disappointed hopes of democracy.

An answer let me make for you Canadians, and let that answer resound from Prince Edward's Isle to Columbia's mountain's steep—No! From Mexico's Gulf to Hudson's Bay, re-echoed a thousand times—No!—is the blast from the corner of Yonge and Gould Streets.

STEWART.

Ye men of note what would ye that we do? Ally yourselves to a people who, till brought to book, but yesterday maintained a piratical condition of affairs in the North-Pacific Seas; who boast of the retention of the moneys of a friendly power, obtained through the over-requited fraudulent claims of the Alabama; who, on the floor of their legislative house, have made the spoliation of our fisheries their determined purpose; who yearly, apparently unknown to Canada, steal of our natural wealth of the coast of Labrador and Hudson's Bay by the shipload? No! No! No! until possessed of common honesty, and accept as their own the lesson the unsanctified heathen Chinese taught the other day in a case analogous to the above. The curse of Ismael be on those that would advocate such an unholy affiliation. Christlized Canadian sentiment given bent from the corner of Yonge and Gould Streets.
