

EUCLID

"There is no royal road to learning," said Euclid to the indolent Ptolemy, king of Egypt. To the listless, the hopelessly stupid, or the man who will not help himself, no system of teaching is of much avail. But it is just as true for all that, that there is a right and a wrong way of doing everything, from the shovelling of a snow-bank to the counting of the stars. A student in Winnipeg, six weeks before his examinations, began the read- of Cæsar and Virgil. He obtained over 80 per cent. on his papers and stood first among 400 competitors. Could he have done this had he studied in the wrong way? He followed the De Brisay Analytical Method. That road is "royal" enough for anyone. Even King Ptolemy would have found it so.
