I guess the Aus-irians have had about as much as they want, and, if between us and the armies in France, we can only pinch dear William a bit more, I hope we shall bring it to a successful close, but it is difficult to guess how long it will take.

"Once we drive them into their fortresses, etc., it will become a question. I should think, of how long the German people can stand a shortness of supplies and a plenitude of ites. At present they are getting lots of the latter anyhow.
