Twenty-One Long Days.

It is now 21 days since a word has come directly from any of the unfortunates be-sleged in the legations at Pekin. The last message from there was from Sir Robert Hart, the Englishman, in charge of the Chinese customs service, and was of undoubted authenticity. It represented the situation of the legationers as desperate and implored help. The last word from Minister Conger came to the State Department from Pekin, under date of June 18. At that time he asked that Seymour's international relief column, which was even then doomed to fall, should signal its approach when near Pekin. That was just one month and three days ago, and it would be an unprecedented defense for such linadequate and ill-fitted, and provisioned force as was at the command of the Foreign Ministers to hold out that length of time.
