

JOHN CATTO & SON
Autumn Garments

SUITS
The stock of Suits we are showing includes all the prescribed styles for autumn, in cut, materials, trimmings, etc. They also bear the stamp of smartness conferred by their New York origin. Another good feature—the prices are adjustable to everyone's circumstances, ranging from $15.00 to $65.00.

JACKETS
In the Coat and Jacket Section our display is adaptable to every purpose of wear. The sturdy Tweeds and Heavy Cloths in Black, Navy Colors for general wear, and the Rich Velvet, Silk and Satin Garments for state occasions.

Through the whole stock the matter of price has received careful consideration, giving the purchaser the best value obtainable anywhere.

TRAVELLING RUGS, WRAP SHAWLS, ETC.

This department has always been a leader with us, and there is constantly on view a really grand display of beautiful, soft, warm Travelling Rugs, a large number of the Scottish Clan and Family Tartans are shown in these.

The prices range from a very moderate figure to fairly high, but the value throughout are right.

WOOL DRESS FABRICS

The hearty endorsement our Dress Goods and Making-up Departments have received this season shows that we are assuredly on the right track with regard to the successful co-working of these branches of the business. Many of the Dress Patterns we show are confined to our own making, and will not be seen elsewhere, thus safeguarding against commonness.

SILKS, VELVETS AND VELVETTES.

This department sustains the reputation of this store for everything up to date and tasteful. Our ranges of beautiful Silks for Shawls, Suits, Evening Wear, Dinner Dresses, etc., etc., was never more profuse.

"ORIENTAL SATIN"

This is the magic word in Silk Materials this season, and a large importation of these received the beginning of this week are already showing the popular inroads.

MAIL ORDERS CAREFULLY FILLED

JOHN CATTO & SON
55-57-59-61 King Street East
(Opposite the Postoffice),
TORONTO.

SOCIALISTS WERE TOLD

JUST WHERE THEY'RE AT

J. G. O'Donoghue Gives Some Plain Information to Disturbers at His Labor Temple Meeting

A socialistic ruffie slightly disturbed of the political meeting of J. G. O'Donoghue, labor candidate in South Toronto, in the Labor Temple last night, and if the candidate lost his temper for a few minutes he did not lose his head.

The assembly hall was blazoned with glaring streamers announcing "J. G. O'Donoghue for 8-hour day and a full dinner pail."

"What's the good of you promising us something you know perfectly well you can't give?" asked a socialist of the candidate.

Mr. O'Donoghue said it was his intention to prevent, if possible, when he was in parliament, indiscriminate immigration and the housing of immigrants, after which it was up to the laboring men themselves to see that they got a full dinner pail.

Not satisfied with one query the interrogator had some other pertinent questions, which the meeting very hotly resented. In the meantime Mr. O'Donoghue was to be seen to be angry.

"These socialists would rather see the labor party go to the dogs than fail in behalf of the man who is trying to do something for them," he said. "These men are not the right kind of socialists, and it took me a long time to tell them that they were fakers."

"Here I am trying to run a campaign in South Toronto to better their living conditions and they are opposing me on every street corner I go to with their cases in police court and who got for them the right of free speech, and this is all the thanks I get!"

He would argue every point with them till they were black in the face, on the street corner or anywhere else, but he was not going to stand for them trying to disturb the harmony of his meeting.

Meanwhile the disturbers, who had remained on their feet, were visited by persons who were dead willing to pay their threats—"If you don't sit down I'll throw you out!"

Into execution, and they sat down.

In his speech Mr. O'Donoghue stood for the abolition of the session, which he styled "a political graveyard." If elected he would be positively independent of either party, and would represent all classes.

25-35 London and Return, C.P.R. Excursion

Return tickets to London only $25, children $12.50, on Canadian Pacific excursion to-morrow, Friday. Tickets good going only on 4:15 p.m. express train, returning regular trains Saturday, Oct. 10. Don't miss this. Tickets at the city office, corner King and Yonge streets.

Lakehurst Sanatorium, Oakville, Ont.
Established 1892. For treatment of Inebriety and drug habit.

THE WEATHER

The sun took all kinds of chances yesterday morning early—yes, long before most people had turned over for their last snooze. He stayed away from work without out leave of absence.

"You say," he couldn't get to the job; was delayed on account of fog, haze, mist, etc." "That's no excuse," replied the manager of the great majority of citizens, "and if you were in the class with the rest of the folks I boss around I'd put another man on your work without a second's warning, but—well—ahem—please don't do it again."

Yesterday was one of those days that you remember by the bluest, most lonesome, bleakest days of your existence. When you were a youngster you had to stay in doors and play with Noah's ark and all the other toys you were tired looking at, simply because it was a dreary day; rainy, cold, nasty.

The sun must have received his quietus early, for he never saw his face until evening, and then in a rather shamefaced manner; just a "how-dye-do" and a dodge back again as he had the wish to argue the question.

Raincoats, umbrellas, overcoats, frowns, scowls, looks, etc., were much worn, especially the latter three, which were universally evidenced.

It wasn't a nice day in any particular; business was no good, and there was no pleasure any place except on the sunny side of the warm grate fire, and in the most interesting portion of an appealing story.

But, better luck to-day, even if it is cool.

METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE, Toronto, Oct. 8.—(3 p.m.)—A few scattered showers have occurred to-day in Ontario and Quebec, but otherwise the weather has prevailed throughout the Dominion with warm conditions over the Prairie Provinces and cool elsewhere.

Minimum and maximum temperatures: Victoria, 46-56; Vancouver, 43-53; Kamloops, 42-53; Edmonton, 42-53; Calgary, 42-53; Winnipeg, 42-53; Port Arthur, 42-53; Toronto, 42-53; Ottawa, 42-53; Montreal, 42-53; Quebec, 42-53; St. John, 42-53; Halifax, 42-53.

Probabilities.
Lower Lakes and Georgian Bay: Moderate winds, becoming variable; fine and cool.

Ontario Valley and Upper St. Lawrence: Moderate winds; fine and cool.

Lower St. Lawrence and Gulf: Moderate winds, mostly westerly and northerly; fair and cool.

Atlantic: Moderate variable winds; fair and cooler.

Lake Superior—Fair and cool.

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta: Fair and warm.

THE BAROMETER.

Time. Bar. Wind. Temp.
A.M. 30.0 29.0 53
Noon 30.0 29.0 53
2 p.m. 30.0 29.0 53
4 p.m. 30.0 29.0 53
8 p.m. 30.0 29.0 53

Mean of day, 53; difference from average, above, highest, 53; lowest, 53.

STEAMSHIPS.

Oct. 8. At. From
Campana..... Liverpool..... New York
Westernland..... Liverpool..... Philadelphia
Teutonic..... Southampton..... New York
Saxonia..... Manchester..... Boston
Ryndam..... Rotterdam..... New York

TO-DAY IN TORONTO.

Oct. 8.
National Tax Association, parliament buildings, 10.
Public library board, 5 p.m.
Bristol-Macdonell campaign meeting, Victoria Hall, 8.
McMaster University autumn convocation, Castle Memorial Hall, 8.

MARRIAGES.
ATKINSON—TUTTERPOLE—In Embryo on Wednesday, Oct. 7, 1908, by Rev. F. W. Langford, Annie J., only daughter of the late H. B. Tuttle, of St. Catharines, to H. B. Atkinson of Embro, son of Mr. John Atkinson of Woodbridge, Ont.

DEATHS.
LIENHART—At the residence of A. J. Marrett, 877 King street, J. A. Philip Lienhart, in his 38th year. Funeral will leave the above address Saturday, Oct. 10, at 8 a.m., to St. Peter's Church, thence to Mount Hope Cemetery.

Buffalo papers please copy.
ROBERTSON—Alexander, at his residence, 85 W. Bloor-street, on the 10th inst., at 10:15 a.m.

Funeral from above residence Saturday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Basil's Church, thence to Mount Hope Cemetery.

DEATHS.
GRAHAM—At Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md., Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 8, 1908, at 4:30 p.m., J. B. A. L.L.B., of Halesbury, in his 33rd year. Funeral will take place at Bradford on Saturday, Oct. 10, at 1:30 p.m.

CEMENT VAULTS

Why do people have their relatives' remains interred and placed in our vaults? There is a reason. Call and we will explain.

The Canadian Vault Co.
Rear 505 Queen Street West.
Phone 2978.

ELABORATE "CON" GAME.

Brewery Driver is Tricked by Phone Message and Boy.

Someone sure did put up a con game on William Mercer, 12 Bellsham-avenue, a driver for the Copeland Brewing Co., yesterday afternoon.

As Mercer was delivering beer at the Clarendon Hotel, West King-street, he was called to the phone. A voice explained that Mr. Davies of the brewery company was speaking and told him to go to the C. Charles Hotel on Yonge-street, and there receive a C.O.D. parcel from Dunlop, the Yonge-street florist, for which he should pay $20.

He went to the St. Charles and asked one of the bartenders if such a parcel had been left. He was told that it had not. On the street outside he met a 16-year-old lad, who said he had the parcel. Mercer took the parcel and gave the boy $20, for which the boy signed a receipt in the bar of the hotel. The lad signed the name George Davidson.

Then when the lad had disappeared up Yonge-street, Mercer became suspicious. He went to the Dunlop store to enquire if all was right. There they knew nothing of the matter. He called up the brewery office and was given a like reply.

The matter was reported to the police.

CITY OF TORONTO TAXES.

Ratepayers are reminded that after Saturday, Oct. 10, the five per cent return tickets will be added to all unpaid items of the second instalment of taxes for 1908.

Mrs. Scott, southwest corner of Bloor and Shaw-streets, has been granted a permit to erect a three-story apartment house on the west side of Shaw-street, a short distance south of Bloor.

FOSTER AND BRISTOL DRAW CROWDED HOUSE

Former Challenges J.A. Macdonald to Produce Garbled Letter—Latter Refers to Labor Matters.

The joint mass meeting of the Conservative candidates in North Toronto and Centre Toronto at Broadway Hall last night attracted an audience which filled every seat, and many late comers had to stand.

Among those on the platform were: E. B. Osler, Geo. H. Gooderham, M.L.A.; John Shaw, M.L.A.; Dr. Wallace Secombe, ex-Ald. Thomas Dunn, Dr. G. S. Ryerson, J. N. McKendry, Fred Dane, Frank Somers and George A. Kingston.

Steve Burns presided. The chairman expressed satisfaction that the electors of the Dominion now had an opportunity to replace the Laurier government with a more capable and honest man.

W. K. McNaught, M.L.A., North Toronto, described the opposition to Hon. George E. Foster, North Toronto, as simply "a still hunt of slander."

In the last election it would be remembered that a telegram from Ottawa was read respecting the much-talked-of Yonge-street bridge by Mr. Foster's then opponent. After the election nothing further was heard of the matter from Ottawa.

The opponents to Mr. Foster were now resorting to forgery by issuing a circular, the use of the stamp upon which was practically a forgery, Mr. McNaught said, when he was a young fellow and did not know as much about politics as he does now.

He was a Liberal. But the old Liberalism of the school of George Brown used first to ask respecting each new bill was it right? Second, was it best for the country? Third, was it best for the party?

But the Laurier government have reversed this order of measurement. The London Advertiser was giving a sample of new Liberalism in its editorial attacks on the cheap power movement of the Whitney government. He prophesied that R. J. Borden would be the premier of Canada within the next sixty days.

"The battle in Toronto is to be fought in three central divisions. Let the Conservatives see that their representatives be men of high character and integrity," he said.

A storm of prolonged cheering greeted Edmund Bristol, who has been the representative of Centre Toronto, and who is appealing for a renewal of confidence. Mr. Bristol expressed his great pleasure in meeting such a magnificent audience. So far as he and his opponent were concerned the campaign would be free from personal attacks. No less than three times the Conservative party during the past session had successfully asserted the rights of an opposition. For seven days and seven nights the opposition had fought for the right to examine records in the original documents. This had won for Mr. Borden and his supporters the respect of the people of Canada. He did not exactly understand on what Mr. Robinette based his claim to having secured the harbor improvements. Seven lives were lost in a wreck near the harbor caused by the criminal negligence of the government. Mr. Robinette was not present when the Board of Harbour Commissioners of Toronto placed the situation before the Dominion Government.

The interests of labor. The claim was being made by the Liberal candidate that the Laurier government had done all that amounted to anything in way of legislation in the interests of labor. He reminded the labor voters of Centre Toronto that when the printers attempted to organize a labor union, and these printers were given charters by the complaint of The Globe and Hon. George Brown for organizing, these printers were released, and the basic right of labor to organize was secured. He referred to the letter written and centered by Sir John A. Macdonald and a Conservative government in 1875.

The administration of the emigration department under Mr. Preston was a disgrace to the Laurier government. The Conservative party believed that there should be no immigration at the present time into Canada, but the Laurier government raised the bonus on each emigrant from $5 to $10, and men from Toronto were eagerly looking for work.

John Shaw, M.L.A., expressed his gratitude to Edmund Bristol and Hon. George E. Foster for their splendid championship of provincial rights on the floor of the Dominion parliament.

As regards the Shaw Shaw campaign, Hon. George E. Foster was warmly welcomed. He called attention to the development of a movement of the Dominion Government during the past few sessions of granting charters to promoters in violation of provincial rights. This movement had been wretchedly handled by the editor of Edmund Bristol and Claude Macdonell.

Since this campaign began he had been working over time, and he was out what the policy and principles which his opponent, W. H. Shaw, stood for. He found that Mr. Shaw stood for the position of the Laurier government as "unassailable."

The "unassailable record" contained the sale of 13,000 acres of land at $3 along the Grand Trunk Pacific to a town site syndicate at a total of $5,000, which they are selling now at $5,000.

The distinguishing feature of the Laurier government had been concealment. It was also the characteristic feature of Mr. Shaw's campaign. The character of a candidate was a matter for fair and reasonable consideration, but it was a matter which could safely be left to the good sense of the electors. But Mr. Shaw attempted to shelve the record of the government and to make his (Mr. Foster's) private character the issue in the campaign.

As to the editor of The Globe, Rev. James A. Macdonald did not believe in the resurrection of Dr. Orono, but he would pray for eternal oblivion, for if he ever is resurrected he would get into a hotter place than in this campaign.

He produced certain letters which he obtained in no legitimate way and which are not perfect letters, alleged to have been written by Dr. Orono, by me. I challenge the editor of The Globe to produce these letters at my Saturday meeting at Cumberland Hall.

The insurance commission report at a cost of $96,000 had been aimed at himself, said Mr. Foster, and had lain for two years without any improvement of the insurance law. But the issue of the electorate was the honest

HOW WE HAVE GROWN

Continued From Page 1.

Canada. The western provinces had nearly one million acres more under crops than all the older provinces of Canada put together.

Much of the expenditure he indicated was simply paying out of one pocket into another as for example, the post office, railway and provincial subsidy outside.

"If there is graft," said Sir Richard, "then let the grafters be punished. No honest comparison, however, be drawn between the conditions before and during the period of Liberal administration." In twelve years the increase in trade had been six times as much as under thirteen years of Conservative rule. The increase in population had quadrupled.

He would not say how bad conditions had previously been, but placing the Conservative usefulness at zero the increase was one hundred per cent. (Laughter.)

Two or three years of economy may be needed because of the exigencies of the financial situation," he said, "but it will be necessary to keep down expenditure and to avoid new engagements and unproductive expenditure until conditions change."

Profitless Wrangle.
Sir Richard attacked the opposition for taking up the time of the house and ministers which had been taken in the eighth month of session. The whole time of the administration was taken up with profitless wrangle, he complained. The speakers instead of being badgered and baited day and night.

Some restriction would have to be placed on the members. More discretion for curbing debate might have to be given the speaker.

Some of the speakers referred to the possibilities of the markets of the Orient. Great Britain was more than half an Oriental power. The weight of diplomatic responsibility in Canada was growing.

"Canada needs statesmen as well as politicians and wire pullers," he said. The federal government must face world politics."

The New Secretary.
Hon. Charles Murphy was received with cheering which was prolonged for some moments. He referred to Sir Richard Cartwright as the man who carried the banner of Liberalism into the lines of the enemy when Liberalism had fewer friends than it had to-day.

He had had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

He said that he had seen a picture of Mr. Borden under which were the words, "Canada's Coming Premier." Had the party managers thought he was going to be victorious they would have used the words, "Canada's Next Premier."

"We'll keep him coming and we'll keep the premier who is already on the ground," assured Mr. Murphy. He commented on the fact that Mr. Roblin had gone home, "with his voice in bad repair." Hon. Mr. Bowser "had gone home," too.

Mr. Murphy had not come to say an unkind word of Mr. Foster. He knew him as an amateur gardener and won't be a weak man, but he said that a man had kicked up such a rumpus during the last few weeks.

ELECTION NOTICES.

SOUTH TORONTO—DOMINION ELECTIONS—1908

YOUR VOTE AND INFLUENCE Are Respectfully Requested for the Re-election of

A. C. Macdonell

Liberal-Conservative Candidate