Peter of Serbia Likely to Abdicate in Favor of Son

—Millionaire Knight to Wed—A Matter of Title

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company.)

Despite semi-official details, it seems to be true that King Peter of Serbia is to abdicate between now and Christmas—possibly within the next few weeks—in favor of the younger of his two sons, Crown prince Alexander, now twenty-three years of age, and who has managed to create a most favorable impression at the various courts and in the foreign capitals which he has visited within the last year or so.

It is asserted on excellent authority that Emperor Nicholas insisted on this abdication, as a sine qua non for giving his consent to the marriage of his cousin, Prince John Constantinevitch of Russia to Princess Helen of Serbia.

The czar, like most of his brother sovereigns, cannot overlook the fact that Peter obtained the throne of Serbia through the horribly shocking assassination of his predecessor, King Alexander, and of the latter's consort, Queen Dragsa; murders, the actual perpetrators of which were invested with high office at his court, and in his government, despite the protests of the foreign powers on the court of the foreign powers; either because the assassins were his friends, or else because they were able to terrorize him.

Peter has ever since been more or less boycotted, not merely by his brother monarchs, but even by the French Republic, which has on several occasions postponed, on various pretexts, his self-invited visit. His abdication and retirement to his former home on the Lake of Geneva, with an adequate allowance, would remove the ban placed by the foreign powers on the court of Serbia, which has been a source of humiliation to the nation; while young King Alexander, free from any obligation to the assassins of the ill-fated King Alexander, would be able to dismiss them from his court—and from his government, where their presence constitutes a standing disgrace.

A Millionaire Knight

Sir Abe Bailey, knighted last winter, is the one of the South African multi-millionaires who has managed to achieve the greatest amount of popularity in England, where consequently the news of his engagement to the Hon. Mary Westmoreland, daughter of Lord Rossmore, has been received with interest. He was one of the closest confidants of Cecil Rhodes, through him became acquainted with King Edward, when still Prince of Wales, and thus managed to secure election to the Marlborough Club in Pall Mall. It has been said that Sir Abe Bailey, who is now in London, Sept. 20—Ard. str. Hildawell, Willis, from Dalhousie via Sydney, (C.B.) Steamed 20th—Stm. Shenandoah, Trin. nicks, Halifax and St. John.

Sallow Skin, Bilious Headache and Sour Stomach Indicates You Need Cascarets

You're bilious, you have a throbbing in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow with dark rings under your eyes, your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who live with you, and don't resort to harsh remedies that irritate and injure. Remember, a bilious disorder of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by using gentle, thorough Cascarets. A pleasant, healthy, clean feeling will keep you and the entire family feeling good for days. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing occasionally. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste so good and never gripe or sicken.

THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

WHEN your babies ask you to let them blow soap bubbles, what do you answer? Do you say, "Oh, dear, I hate to have you, because you mess things up so and get yourself all wet?"

Or do you go with willing alacrity and get the clay pipes down from the pantry shelf and fill the basin with nice soapy water?

According to the latest discoveries of health experts that is what you should do.

Say, more than that.

If the babies forget to ask to blow soap bubbles you should instill the desire into them, just as often as you possibly can.

For what do you think? Blowing soap bubbles has been discovered to be a splendid lung developer.

As one of the largest tuberculosis camps in the world, the doctors have given their patients orders to blow soap bubbles an hour every day. At a certain time in the morning all the patients are seen starting out with their clay pipes and their basins.

So if you want your children to have fine healthy lungs you must encourage them in blowing "bubbles soft and fine," as often as possible.

From what I remember of my own delight in the beautiful iridescent things and the fun of competing as to who could blow the biggest, or the one which would last the longest, it seems to me that shouldn't be a very difficult task.

I wonder if there is a family in which the necessity of putting to death some family pet or stray cat or dog does not occasionally arise.

Wherefore, I am going to pass on a little receipt for doing this unpleasant task as kindly as possible, which the cat specialist whom I quoted the other day is anxious to have made public.

"We believe that cats need air to ding cats to sleep" in such a way that they actually go to sleep without a struggle and without suffering.

The heartiest action story you have read lately is to put a little chloroform on cotton and let the cat inhale it. By the way, this is usually done at night when the cat has had a full meal and is ready to sleep. Contrary to the universal opinion that cats will die if it is tried that way. So we give them a little chloroform, and the cat inhales it so gradually that it does not notice it.

If good judgment is used in the giving, then the cat lies down and gets ready to sleep, and we give it a little more of the vapor. Soon we hear labored breathing from the unconscious cat, and we put a generous amount of chloroform on cotton, throw it in and close the box.

He is a member of the Marylebone Cricket Club, that premier organization of the cricketing world, and with the object of promoting the game in South Africa, has repeatedly invited crack elevens over to the Cape, as his guests, paying all their expenses, not merely from England and back, but even from Australia and entertaining them in the most princely fashion while in South Africa. He was one of the fellow prisoners of John Hays Hammond after the unsuccessful Jameson raid in 1896, was the Hammonds' personal friend, and was the Transvaal government, but eventually escaped by payment of a heavy fine. Today he is the chief of the diamond mining ring of South Africa, and virtually controls the annual output of diamonds, and in that way the diamond market of the world.

Sir Abe has been previously married, is a widower, has a grown up son, has a beautiful country place at East Grinstead, in Sussex, a big house in London, where he entertains a great deal, has a racing stable at Newmarket, country seats scattered in various parts of South Africa, has been frequently portrayed by novelists who have endeavored to discuss the relations of South Africa mining magnates towards the natives, and is a more than twice the age of his bride, a very handsome girl.

He is not particularly distinguished looking, but his features are of a good type, and his sea-horse which figures in their armoial bearings was bestowed upon them in recognition of the bravery of one of their ancestors, who, at the time of the Spanish invasion of the Netherlands by the Duke of Alba, swam across a stormy arm of the sea with important intelligence to the Dutch army, thereby preventing it from being taken by surprise.

The Westerners crossed from Holland to England with Charles II. on his restoration, and secured from him a grant of land in the Emerald Isle. Warner Westmoreland became a citizen of Ireland by Act of Parliament dated 1602. It was his great-grandson who, through his marriage to the first Lord Rossmore's sister-in-law, became second Lord Rossmore.

In order to explain this, it is necessary to mention that the Barony of Rossmore was originally bestowed upon Sir Robert Cunningham, and as he had no children, he managed to obtain from the government of the day the reversion of his peerage to the husbands of his wife's younger sisters; a unique provision in the history of the British and Irish peerage.

The elder of these two sisters was married to Henry Jones, who predeceased the first Lord Rossmore, and on the latter's death his peerage therefore passed to Warner Westmoreland, who has married Lord Rossmore's youngest sister. From that time forth, the Rossmore Barony has descended in the male line direct.

The present Lord Rossmore was the subject, some years ago, of a most impudent impersonation on the part of an extremely dashing and good looking adventurer at Rome, and the story may possibly be familiar to some of those of my readers who have wintered in the Eternal City. The pseudo Lord Rossmore was received everywhere at Rome, was welcomed with open arms at the English Embassy, was presented by the English ambassador to the king, and by Archbishop Stoner to the Pope, and was in great social demand, until his sensational exposure at the British Embassy, brought about by the presence of a guest newly arrived from England that day, who had spent the previous week shooting with the real Lord Rossmore at the latter's place in County Monaghan, and who at once denounced the bogus peer as a fraud, when the latter was introduced to him.

Lord Rossmore's place is now known as Rossmore Castle, commands a beautiful view of lake woodland, and of the Slievebeg mountain. It was known for many years as Mount Maria, and was in those days a favorite resort for a few centuries it was known as Cortlin Hill; and then had its name changed, for the third and last time, to Rossmore Park.

Has Right to Title

In reply to letters received from several readers concerning the authenticity of the title of the French Duke de Richelieu who is now in this country, I may say that it is rightly borne. The great Cardinal de Richelieu's dukedom of Richelieu was inherited by authority of the crown at his death, by his grand-nephew, Jean de Vic-

DON'T BE BALD

Nearly Anyone May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair

I have a remedy that has cured baldness in 93 out of every 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and I mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put my claims to an actual test. I am so certain that my Remedy will cure dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair and grow new hair, that I personally give my positive guarantee to refund every penny paid for my Remedy in any instance where it does not give entire satisfaction to the user.

Recall "33" Hair Tonic is a pleasant to use as clear spring water, is a delightfully perfumed, and does not grease or gum the hair. Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. With my guarantee back of it, you certainly take no risk. Sold only at my store—The Rexall Store, Chas. R. Wasson, 100 King Street.
