and started to the hotel shortly after 8 o'clock. Two boys, G. W. Ramsey and Edward Mahoney, recognized the lad on the car and, taking him in charge, conducted him to his father, who was in waiting, according to a pre-arranged plan, which he had followed at the diotation of the kidnappers. The boy wandered about the hotel lobby unannounced for several minutes, asking bell boys for his father before the latter knew his son was in the big foyer. The moment Mr. Whitla heard that a strange boy was in the hotel, sauntering about in aimless fashion, he rushed across the lobby, grasped him in his arms and smothered his face with kisses.

Tried to Disguise Him

An attempt had been made to dis-guise the lad. He wore a pair of smok-ed glasses and a large tan cap which was pulled down over his ears, and the father said it would have been dif-ficult to have recognized the boy in such a garb had he passed him on the ficult to have recognized the boy in such a garb had he passed him on the street.

Willie is in good health. He says that he has been well treated and ever since his capture has been constantly indoors. He believes he was taken from Sharon to Warren and thence to Newcastle, Pa. It is his opinion, expressed in a happy school-boy way, that he was in Ashtabula on Saturday night at the time his father was to leave his $10,000 in Flat Iron Park.

Mr. Whitla refused to state whether he had paid the ransom or not. He said that he received a letter today from the kidnappers at his home in Sharon, saying that if he called at a confectionery store in the east end of Cleveland he would be told how to secure his boy unharmed and "well fed."

Shortly after noon he left Sharon for Cleveland. He was unacompanied. His immediate family and the private detectives he had in his employ had been apprised by him of the proposed secret meeting, but he insisted that he must take the trip alone, unheralded, and that no attempt at the capture of the kidnappers must then be made. Mr. Whitla was certain that if he spoiled the plans of his son's captors tonight he would never see the lad again. His experience at Ashtabula served as a warning.

Went te a Candy Stere

About two o'clock this afternon he went to a candy store in the east end. With him he carried the $10,000, expecting that it would be demanded of him there. He was met by a woman who detailed to him the terms of the kidnappers. With distracted eageraess Mr. Whitla agreed to them immediately. Detectives in his employ say that he paid the money, but on this point the father declines to commit himself. Half an hour later he returned to the Hollenden Hotel and awaited developments.

His entrance to the hotel was surrounded by secrecy. By a previous arrangement made with the hotel management, he did not register. Detective G. B. Perkins, who had superintended the search for the boy in Mr. Whithe's behalf, was in the lobby of the hotel. The agent of the kidnappers promised that the boy would be started toward the hotel shortly after nightfall. As the hour for the appearance of the child's return approached Mr. Whitla became very nervous. He disregarded the advice of the detectives who had told him to keep out of sight of the newspaper men and the crowds of curious people who had learned that he was in the city. Emerging from his room, he walked up and down the hall on the second floor with his hands clasped across his breast. Then, unable to stand the suspense longer, he went into the lobby and seated himself in a chair.
