DEUTSCHMAN ACQUITTED

Charged With Stealing a $12 Nugget

an Employee of Kirkpatrick & Monroe on 19 Below on Hunker.

Deutschman was arraigned before Mr. Justice Craig this morning upon the charge of having stolen a nugget valued at $12 from the store of Kirkpatrick & Monroe on 19 Below. The accusation was made in a fellow employee, the prisoner...

to Paris in five hours" may be realized within two years, thanks to a syndicate of Americans whose representatives are now here consulting with the authorities of the French Northern railway.

The correspondent, though requested to withhold names for the present, is assured that a practical plan has been devised.

The Northern Railway, whose superb Calais branch boasts of having the fastest trains in the world, has been trying for years to stir up the two English London-to-Dover lines to shorten the time of the trip.

The English argument always has been, "We hold the shortest route anyhow; why go to the expense of this quickening of the service?"

The American syndicate mentioned has secured the support of powerful English politicians, and at the next session of the British parliament a bill will be introduced authorizing a new electric line from London to Dover.

The estimated cost of the new road is $25,000,000, on which amount the enormous traffic expected will pay 20 per cent, it is calculated, from the first.

MAN FROM GLENGARY

Col. Macgregor Knows All About Him

The Writer in the London Paper is Not Posted as Well as He Should be.

Editor Nugget: Oftentimes people who are disposed to be hypercritical would do well to look better to their own laurels. When Lord Baconfield wrote "Loathair," he was charged by a critic of using ungrammatical terms.

In your issue of the 23rd inst. appears a review taken from the London Chronicle of Ralph Connor's new book, entitled "The Man From Glengary." The critic in this article, in his endeavor to make out that portions of the book are misleading, says:

"The Man From Glengary" is described on the title page as a "Tale of Western Canada," but, as a matter of fact, only the last eighty pages of the book, which contains in all 440, have anything to say regarding Western Canada—and by that term Mr. Connor means British Columbia. The main interest of the story lies in the pictures given us of Glengary itself.

As a matter of fact, the writer in the Chronicle proves himself to be rather ignorant regarding the subject matter which he makes bold to criticize. And, Mr. Editor, for the benefit of the critic and in justice to the gifted author, your correspondent begs leave to submit the following statement of facts:

Glengary is not "a strip of country running back from the St. Lawrence." It was never known as the "Indian Lands," and was never an "Indian reservation." Glengary is a county in the province of Ontario, fronting on the St. Lawrence. The "Indian lands" referred to, is a strip of country about two miles in width running back from the St. Lawrence, and adjoining Glengary on the west, which was reserved for Indians in the early part of the last century, but subsequently was included in the municipality of Glengary and peopled, principally, by Scottish Highlanders, immediately after the close of the revolutionary war.

The life and character so masterly portrayed by the novelist, pertains to a period of time—before Confederation—when Ontario was known as "Canada West," and the ground of the plot in the story is centered about the hamlet of St. Elmo, in the said Indian Lands, about forty miles from Ottawa. Kept by a Woman.

Vienna, March 25.—"That it is an affair that must be settled in Pietsch's shop," is what Vienna students say when they mean a duel, perhaps to the death.

"Pietsch's shop" is an apartment kept by Caroline Pietsch, a tailor's wife, for the express purpose of providing a place for students to fight in.

Duels with serious, sometimes fatal, results are of daily occurrence here, notwithstanding the earnest efforts being made to suppress the custom.

Frau Pietsch was arrested this week for the fourth time, detectives having surprised two students fighting with sharp swords in her apartment.

A duel in which a student of medicine named Cokorac was mortally wounded caused a sensation less than a year ago, and she was arrested and sent to prison for three months.

As soon as she gets out of prison she takes rooms in a different part of the town and carries on the same business again.

Riot in Church.

Chicago, March 29.—Muscular Christianity asserted itself here today at a meeting in the Seventh Day Adventist Church and kept it up until the police arrived in a patrol wagon and quieted the riot.

Mrs. Anna White, prophetic, of Battle Creek, Mich., was speaking in the well-filled church prophesying all sorts of things when a man in the congregation arose and said she did not know what she was talking about. He asserted that her prophecies were ridiculous.

"That man must leave the church at once," cried Mrs. White, and this time at any rate she prophesied truly.

The man left, but not before four other men and three women rallied about him and helped him resist eviction. J. E. Woodward, a trustee of the church, led the bouncing party, and for a while there was a strenuous time. Pews were overturned, clothing torn, faces scratched, hair pulled and noses punched.

Mail Progressing.

Word was received today from the inbound mail to the effect that it had left Wilson's, 25 miles below Five Fingers, yesterday noon and was expected at Selkirk this evening. It is thought the run from Selkirk here can be made in three days, which will land the consignment here Tuesday night.

Wire Down Today.

The telegraph wire went down and out early this morning and has been out of business all day. As the break is between Selkirk and Five Fingers it is not considered serious and is likely to be repaired and in working order again almost any moment.

Fresh eggs just arrived at Barrett & Hull's.

DUMBILL'S ADMISSION

He Pleads Guilty to Attempting Suicide

Will Again be Brought Into Court May 1st When He Will be Sentenced.

Joseph Dumbill, the confessed defaulter of the Pacific Cold Storage Company, who attempted suicide some weeks ago by blowing his brains out with a revolver, was arraigned before Mr. Justice Craig this morning upon the charge of intended self destruction.

George Dick was before Judge Macaulay in the police court this morning on the charge of breaking into the store and tailor shop of John McDonald last Sunday evening about eight o'clock. The prosecution asked for a continuation of the Sad News.

Druggist W. M. Cribbs yesterday received the sad news of the death of his sister, Miss Anna M. Cribbs, at Bellaire, Ohio, from Bright's disease. The young lady had been sick for some time but was thought to be improving. The news of her death came both as a surprise and shock to her brother.

BECKWITH DISMISSED

On Testimony of the Crown's Witness

His Honor Deciding Dumbill's Unsupported Story Not Worthy of Credence.

The case of Andrew Beckwith, one of the men named by Joseph Dumbill the self-confessed thief and would-be destroyer of his own life, as an accomplice with him in the theft of meat from the Pacific Cold Storage Company, was this morning dismissed by Judge Macaulay without a word of evidence having been submitted by the defence. Not only was the charge dismissed but Beckwith was assured by his honor from the bench that he did not consider a tittle of evidence to sustain the charge against him had been introduced by the crown, whose only witness, Dumbill, was, his honor believed, mentally incapacitated for giving evidence in which credence could be placed.

The defence had come prepared with half a score or more reliable witnesses to counteract the testimony of Dumbill, but his honor said it was useless to call them—as he considered that there was no evidence before him to be offset.

The case against Arthur E. Borden will be called Monday morning when, as the same evidence as was used against Beckwith will supposedly be all the prosecution will have, it is supposed it also will be dismissed by consent of the prosecution without the taking of Dumbill's evidence.

GEO. DICK IN TROUBLE

Arrested Last Night and Now in Jail

Charged With Having Forcibly Entered John McDonald's Store.

George Dick was before Judge Macaulay in the police court this morning on the charge of breaking into the store and tailor shop of John McDonald last Sunday evening about eight o'clock. The prosecution asked for a continuation of the case until Monday, which was granted. Dick asked if he could be admitted to bail but, owing to the seriousness of the charge, the request was denied and Dick was remanded to jail until Monday morning at 10 o'clock, when he will be given a preliminary hearing.

The story of the charge against Dick is that last Sunday evening, about 8 o'clock and while Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald were at church, Jack McPhate, Mrs. McDonald's brother, was passing the store which is on First avenue near the ferry tower, when, glancing through the window, he noticed a man in the rear part of the room. McPhate hastened around to the back door and entered, that door and a middle door opening into the store, both being found by him to have been forced and broken open. He found Dick in the store and on asking what he was doing there, was informed by the intruder that he had come to see Mr. McDonald on business relating to the opening of the Milne concession.

Thinking it rather a fishy story McPhate herded Dick in the store until the McDonalds' return from church, when he was allowed to go. The matter was not reported to the police but an account of it leaked out yesterday and Dick's arrest last night at his home near the corner of Sixth avenue and Duke street was the result.

It is said that Dick last October forcibly entered the millinery store of Mrs. Lehman on Duke street and, when suddenly confronted by Mrs. Lehman who came in and found him there, said he was looking for Dolly Mitchell. This affair was not reported to the police and as it was some time before knowledge of it leaked out it was allowed to pass.

George Dick's family is said to be prominent in Winnipeg, his father being an extensive mill owner and lumber dealer. He came to the Yukon in '98 as a member of the Northwest Mounted Police, with which force he remained until his time expired late in '99 or early in 1900, since when he has spent much of his time around theaters and dance halls in minor capacities and just how he has managed to live, wear good clothes and patronize first class restaurants has been more or less of a conjecture, unless he has been receiving remittances. Only last December he was married to Miss May Robins, a most estimable young lady of this city. The marriage was a clandestine one, the young lady's uncle and aunt with whom she came to the country not wishing their niece to marry the good-looking young ex-policeman.

Bubonic Plague in Dawson.

A man in a cabin near the foot of the hill was taken violently ill today. For a time there was great excitement, as someone pronounced it bubonic plague, but upon investigation it was found his sickness was caused by eating some of the cheap canned goods so extensively advertised.
