

WASTE OF GOLD MONEY

The fuss started in a most unusual and unprecedented way, a way that I really am reluctant to set down, it was so contrary to all that is natural and ordinary in domestic life. Mrs. Reddington had asked for some money and Reddington had grumbled.

Hence the row. Charges of extravagance were met by counter charges of stinginess; charges of foolish wastefulness were replied to with charges of meanness; and so it grew warm and torrid and fulminating. And it ended, as all such discussions do, by Reddington's throwing a ten-dollar bill violently into his wife's lap.

"There that leaves me with only a paltry quarter in my pocket," he exclaimed tragically. "But it's enough. It will be enough arsenic to put an end to my miserable life."

That's just like your wicked selfishness, retorted Mrs. Reddington indignantly, at the same time gathering in the ten-spot. "You talk about my wastefulness, and then you waste a lot of money on yourself without the least necessity for it."

Reddington glowered more gloomily.

"Now," continued Mrs. Reddington, placidly, "why can't you give me that quarter, and go out and sit on the elevated's third rail?"

And This is Life.

A little bit of springtime,
 A little bit of snow,
 A little bit of summer,
 Teen wintry winds that blow,
 And thus the changing seasons
 In swift procession go.
 A little bit of sunshine,
 A little bit of rain,
 A little bit of sowing,
 The field is with golden grain,
 A little bit of harvest,
 Of loss and dress and grain,
 A little bit of sorrow,
 A little bit of glee,
 A little bit of failure,
 A little victory,
 And that is all of living,
 For you, my dear, and me.

The Charm.

By Clara Marshall.

When I took for my wife the young lady who had done my type writing so well, And made Miss Deven Mrs. Grady, They said I was bound by a spell.

But it's only the truth I am telling,
 When I say of the late Miss Deven
 That it was not a spell but her spelling,
 That made my type writer my queen.

Willing to Sell Out.

The mayor of New York walked down the steps of the city hall the other evening and bought a paper from a newsboy. While waiting his change he said, Well, my little man how is business today? The little merchant looked up and answered, (m dehum!) The mayor thought for a moment and finally said: Keep at it, my little man. You have a chance to become the president some day. The little fellow answered immediately, Dat might be so, but I will sell me chances for a nickel right now!

An Admirable Liar.

I admire a liar, said Morgan Robertson, the writer of sea stories, even when his pravaications strain my credulity. A friend of mine, who objects to efforts to pry into his personal affairs, recently limped into my workshop.

What is the matter with your foot? I asked, more to be polite than because I cared what was the trouble.

Then he gained my everlasting admiration by a display of nerve and mendacity I never saw equalled. An eel stepped on it, he said.

Lecturer's Street Parade.

Strickland W. Gillilan, the "off ag'in on ag'in, gone a'in, Finnigin" man, president of the American Press Humorists, who has been out on the lecture circuit, tells the following story at his own expense:

"I had to fill an engagement at a town in South Dakota. When I got there a blizzard was blowing, and I barely had time to reach the opera-house by the hour set for the lecture to begin. I took my dress-suit out of the case and put it under my arm, intending to change my clothes in a dressing-room at the opera-house.

The wind was blowing furiously, and I was all bumped up as I passed the post-office, where several citizens were congregated. The tails of my dress-coat, under my arm, flopped in the wind, and otherwise I suppose I didn't make a very dignified figure. One of the natives looked at me, and recognizing me from a lithograph in the window remarked to his friends—but I heard it too:

Well, that there feller may have a good show, but I do not think much of his street parade.

Foresighted Philanthropy

President Angell of the University of Michigan told this story to a class in international law.

Some years ago, when I was United States Minister to Turkey, Greece was visited by a severe famine. A great wave of sympathy and pity swept over the United States, affecting the women particularly. They raised hundreds of dollars for the relief of the sufferers. With true Yankee husbandry they did not send the money in cash, but spent it in buying vast quantities of cloth which they made into dresses for the Grecian women. One entire ship, I believe, was loaded by this outpouring of charity. I never was tired referring in diplomatic circles to the generosity of my countrywomen, and for a time was the envy of the representatives of the other governments.

Shortly after the ship arrived and its cargo had been distributed I had occasion to make a trip through Greece. It was in the days when our ladies wore extremely large sleeves; but the style in Greece was not the same. You may imagine my surprise and humiliation when I saw that the Grecian women had not known what the American garments were and had put them on their husbands for trousers.

Had To Return The Frame.

Nat C. Goodwin attended a story-telling party not long ago, when he was reminded of the following.

There was a young fellow in Chicago, the owner of a photographic business, who at Christmas presented a fine photo of himself with a magnificent frame to a young woman whom he much admired.

When he next saw her, the young man inquired how she liked the work.

Oh, she exclaimed, I am afraid I shall have to send you back the frame; you know mother does not believe in a girl accepting valuable presents from young men.

Her Astral Spouse

An unmarried woman of my acquaintance was drawing dangerously near the threshold of that age where the unmarried must abandon every matrimonial hope.

Belonging as she did to that large contingent of women to whom marriage represents the possible career, her anxiety, as she saw her chances of achieving it dwindling to the vanishing point, became keen, and in her distress she began to seek for comforting reassurances among that fraternity who, for a suitable consideration obligingly offer to reveal the secrets of the future.

In the course of an interview with one of these 'wise women she was told: My dear, you already are married on the astral plane, and it is your astral husband who is keeping the earth men away from you.

Oh, cried the ungrateful bride, please tell him not to!

MORE THAN CLERGYMEN

(Halifax Chronicle.)
 What is true of Principal Falconer, as set forth in the preceding article, is true of most of the clergy of our country. Nearly all of them are paid today on a scale of salaries established years ago. Since that scale was fixed, the cost of the necessities of life has increased at least from twenty-five to thirty per cent. What is still more important, the number of modern necessities has increased in still greater proportion. A salary of a thousand dollars can be made to go little if any further now, in ordinary circumstances, than five or six hundred went a quarter of a century ago.

OPERATION AVOIDED

EXPERIENCE OF MRS. GLENN
 She Was Told That an Operation Was Inevitable. How She Escaped It

When a physician tells a woman suffering with ovarian or womb trouble that an operation is necessary, the very thought of the knife and the operating table strikes terror to her heart, and our hospitals are full of women coming for ovarian or womb operations.

There are cases where an operation is the only resource, but when one considers the great number of cases of ovarian and womb trouble cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after physicians have advised operations, no woman should submit to one without first trying the Vegetable Compound and writing Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice, which is free.

Mrs. Robert Glenn, of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:
 Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
 "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has so well and wisely known that it does not need my recommendation; but I am pleased to add it to the many which you have in its favor. I suffered untold agonies from ovarian troubles for nearly three years, and the doctors told me that I must undergo an operation; but as I was unwilling to do this, I tried your Vegetable Compound, and I am only too pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saving me the pain of an operation and the immense bills attending the same."
 Ovarian and womb troubles are steady on the increase among women. If the monthly periods are very painful, or too frequent and excessive—if you have pain or swelling low down in the left side, bearing down pains, leucorrhoea, don't neglect yourself; try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
