Home Reached.

It is no longer "Going Home,"
For home is reached at last;
The weary thoughts, thank God!
Is now for ever past!

I've bid the world a glad farewell,

For home with suffering now,

And never more can passing grief

Shall shade my peaceful bower.

I've reached at length my native land,
The place I truly love;

Clo'd in Heaven's spotless robe,

I've joined the hosts above:

But, oh! no mortal tongue may tell

The glories of this place,

Where every ransomed soul rejoices,

His loving Father's face.

I've reached my home! that home so dear
To every pilgrim's heart;

And never shall my feet again

From its glad walls depart.

I've joined that blessed band above

Of brethren, kindred dear;

But better far, my Lord I see,

And His loved voice I hear.

My Savior's glory I behold,

And on His bosom rest,

And joy to know that I am now

Of endless life possessed.

The hope that cheered my soul awhile

Is now exchanged for sight,

The clouds and dreary gloom of earth

For "everlasting light."

I've reached my home, my happy home!

So holy, and so pure!

And, blessed thought! I know it shall Eternally endure.

For, since when Jesus died to save,

He loves us to the death,

Those numbers which His love prepares,

His children shall possess.

LONDON.—MIDNIGHT MEETINGS IN THE CITY.

The following we extract from the London Revival:—

A deeply interesting midnight meeting of the poor was held surrounding the streets of the city, held in Shaftesbury Hall, Albermarle-street, on Friday night, 9th inst.

The first hymn was that in which is so well condensed

the story of the cross:

"Not all the blood of beasts

Could give the guilty conscience peace,

Or wash away the stain.

"But Christ the heavenly Lamb,

Takes all my sins away;

A sacrifice of nobler name,

That stabs blood than they do."

The singing, one poor girl, remained by the fire, while the larger girls, burst into loud and bitter cries.

Several sisters present tried their utmost to soothe and quiet her, and she was removed to an adjoining room.

Her distress was quieted, and when another fainted and had to be carried off, and this went on through the night.

At last, however, when another fainted and had to be carried off, and this went on through the night.
