North Sydney, June 28 .- L. W. Parsons, vice president of the French Candian Company for Fish and Cold orage, was a passenger on the S.S. ro Patria when she sailed for St. erre vesterday at noon.

The company which Mr. Parsons reesents has taken over the gigantic old storage plant erected at St. Pierduring the war by the Turner Conuction Company of New York for French Government. They purpose use it to store fresh fish caught by thirty five or forty French trawlers shich operate on the fishing banks on his side of the Atlantic for about ten onths of the year. All the fish now aught is salted and shipped to France salt from St. Pierre where the trawlers and their fares. The new company will take the fish from the boats fresh, tore it in the cold storage plant until eady for shipment and then send it o France, fresh, in two specially conition to shipping fresh fish to France the company will also supply bait, ice and water to all vessels desiring it. They will start freezing squid and her ring immediately. It is also possible that a canning plant may be opened to repare the large quantities of caplin hat are landed annually at St. Pierre or the market.

The plant which cost three million ollars when it was built has never een operated except for the twenty ay trial required in the builder's conact. It is a concrete structure of six toreys and there are concrete docks at form part of it that have a low de depth of twenty-eight feet. It is said to have a capacity of two million ons of fish a year. During the war the rench Government planned a great old storage system to consist of three nits, one at Bologne, one at St. Nazaire and one at St. Pierre to be used whelp the food situation in France by ransporting large quantities of fresh fish from St. Pierre to the plants at logne and St. Nazaire and to be disited from there to the people of country. The plant at St. Pierre not completed until shortly after end of the war and the plan was er put into operation. Cold Storengineers and experts who have aspected the plant pronounce it as being as well equipped as any in the world. A cold storage engineer is now St. Pierre working out details for operation, Mr. Parsons will be genral manager of the plant. He states hat refrigerating engineers and fish experts have been engaged and they expect to have the plant in operation thirty days. It is in excellent condiion at present and it could be put in peration in twenty four hours if necssary. The company has a five year ease of the plant.

The Company has its head office in aris and while it was formed primarto operate in conjunction with the rench trawlers in supplying France with fish, it will also cater to the fishng interests of both Canada and the nited States.

Mr. Parsons was formerly connectwith the Anderson Company of Canda which disposed of a fleet of trawers in this country for the British adniralty. Later he was connected with he Anderson Overseas Corporation of rance.—Sydney Post.

King in Disguise Listens to Trials.

King and Queen Often Travel Abroad as the Earl and Countess of Chester.

Royalties delight to travel incognito whenever they can do so, to escape for a time from the artificial atnosphere in which they live, and from the rigid etiquette which always surrounds them.

But apart from the pleasurable sense of freedom royal personages can enjoy when emancipated from the trammels of their high position, it is only by concealing their identity that they can make themselves acquainted with many phases of life with which it is necessary for them to be familiar.

Queen Mary, for example, has visited from time to time the poprest quarters of London and many other English cities in the guise of a district visitor, her guide on several occasions being the Bishop of London.

Pages might be filled with her experiences in the poor quarters of London. A clergyman who has worked for many years in the East-end remarked recently that theere were few district visitors who knew the poor quarters of London better than Queen Mary, and the number or persons she had aided in their distress will never be known outside the few through whom Her Majesty carries on these charitable works.

The King has had many interesting adventures in disguise. On one occasion he spent a whole day at the London Hospital as a medical student, a fact that only became known to the hospital authorities several years later.

He has spent the best part of a night in a busy railway goods clearing yard, and has often listened to trials at the Old Bailey in the public gallery.

On one occasion, as the King was coming out of court, a boy standing near him shouted out to his companion, "Why, I'm blowed if that gent ain't the Prince of Wales!"

"Run and tell the gent that," exclaimed his companion, "an 'e'll give yer 'arf a crown."

But the Prince, as he was then, had driven off before the boy could reach

The King and Queen have often travelled abroad incognito, usually as the Earl and Countess of Chester. On one occasion a rather amusing experience awaited them. A suite of rooms at a hotel had been engaged for them, but by some error the rooms were booked in the names of

Mr. and Mrs. Chester. Curiously enough (writes R. C. Reed in the Daily Express,) the proprietor of the hotel had patrons of that name who were very well-to-do and he concluded that they were the onle who had engaged the rooms

When their Majesties, with whose identity he was quite familiar, arrived, he rushed forward in despair to inform a member of their suite that he had no rooms available; but a little explanation soon put the proprietor at his ease, and the names in his register were quickly altered.
