SEVEN-YEAR-OLD BOY IS MISSING FROM HOME

Seen in Brantford, but He Promptly Disappeared

back by a G. T. R. conductor, on whose train he had ridden, but promptly disappeared again, and the gravest fears are enteretained for his safety.

The boy, who appears to be not more than 5, left home yesterday at noon, and, going to the Grand Trunk depot, boarded a train, as he thought, for Port Stanley. However, he was Brantford-bound, and when the conductor appeared was able to tell that he was alone, that his name was Telfer, and that he lived on Clarence street in London.

A message was accordingly sent back that he would be given in charge of the conductor of express No. 5, returning to London last night, but the conductor, who passed through London again this morning on No. 6 explained to The Advertiser that he had heard nothing of the little fellow's difficulties. It is known now what became of him, and the Grand Trunk authorities have now been sked to help in the search. Cuthbert had never been away from

nome before, according to his parents. LOCAL ITEMS
