

The ADVERTISER'S PICTORIAL PAGE

Billiard playing is becoming a regular rage among women. One of the members of a billiard club for actresses taking a few lessons before a tournament.

Dragomen and boat at Luxor, Egypt, on the Nile.

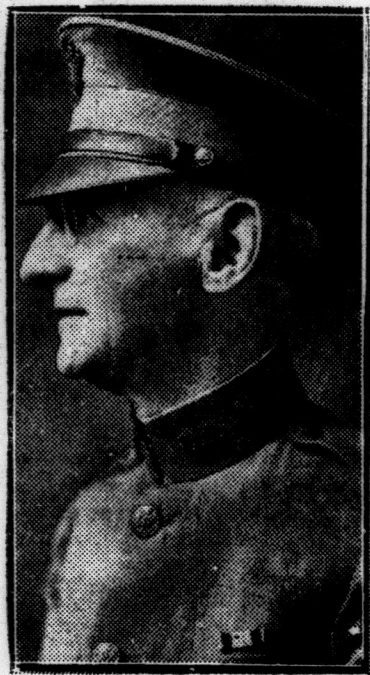

The Crown Prince of Belgium, who is to marry Princess Mafalda of Italy.

The "lady" on the right is the quarter-back of the Dartmouth football team. The photo was taken at a college carnival.

One of the most attractive of the parliamentary women, Mrs. Harry Leader, wife of the M.P. for Portage La Prairie, formerly Hon. Arthur Meighen's seat.

Dr. S. W. Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute, who has just announced the isolation of the flu germ.

Kakabeka Falls, near Fort William, considered one of the beauty spots of the northern part of the province.

Mrs. Grace Ivers Lamb of Denver. Her husband has inherited $5,000,000 which he has made legally inaccessible till he has proven he is worthy of it. Meanwhile she is working to make ends meet.

Chiefs of the International Baseball League at their meeting in New York this week voted against the draft. Third from the right, seated, is Lol Solman, president of the Toronto Club, and third from the left, standing, Dan Howley, manager of the club.

After a considerable time in a variety of countries, Norma Talmadge, movie star, is back in 'Frisco. She is expected to join in the rebellion of big independent stars.

Sir Horace Plunkett's home in Kiltteeragh just after it had been set on fire by armed men.

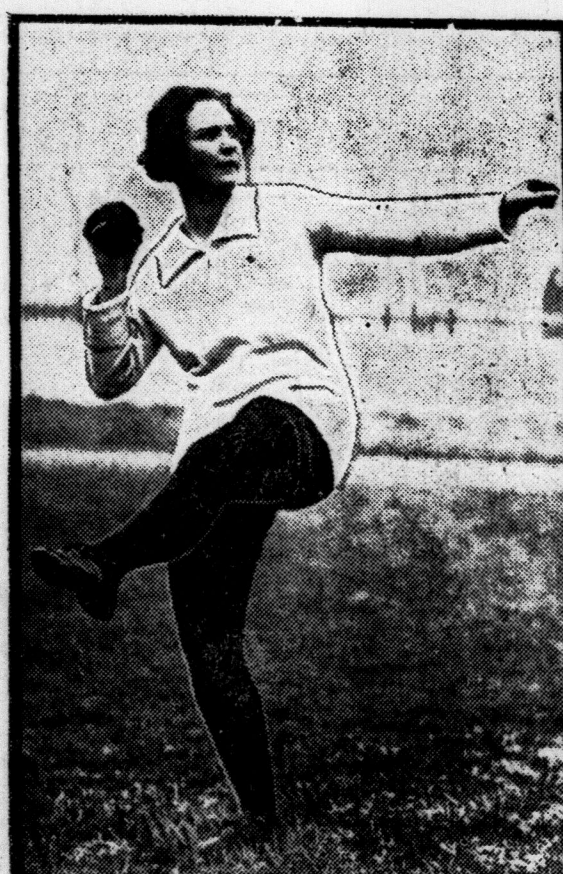

Ned MacLean, known as the "million dollar boy," with his physical instructor at Palm Beach.

A photo of Mayor Hylan of New York which amuses everyone but himself.

Miss Lucille Atcherson has now been made an official secretary of embassy and will go down in history as America's first woman diplomat.

Miss Sybil Hanner, one of England's champions at shot-putting, getting into condition for the international games.

If it isn't one kind of pet it's another. This Cleveland girl has a flair for making friends with storks.