This figure was estimated by adding the additions to the rolls and the total registration for the last provincial vote. Many of the old names are now "dead," perhaps 25 per cent having removed from the city or become disenfranchised.

Complete revision of lists has not yet been completed. W. C. Fitzgerald, chief returning officer for London, said today that there are some names to be struck off the lists, where it is definitely known that records have removed from the city people have removed from the city or have died.

Work of the revision court for the city of London ended last night, after 27 sittings on voters' applications.

Yesterday 201 appeals were entered from the annex.

Rush Is Over.

Though the city's share in the revising of lists is not yet completed, the rush is over, and the city clerk's staff will now have an opportunity to get back to much municipal busi-vess that had to be laid aside during the past two weeks.

Much trouble was given the clerk's staff by the entering of nearly 2,500 applications which were not followed up by appearance before the judge. Almost everyone who appeared in court secured enfranchisement, but well a before these who entered and the secured those who entered and the secured the secured and the secured the secured and only half of those who entered appeals followed them up.

"I would make a number of recommendations," said Sam Baker, city clerk, this morning. Mr. Baker has been working overtime for three weeks on voter's list cevision and has been every angle of it.

Revising in Court.

"Why not have all the revising officers in place of just one. Have certain days for the different wards. The people would go direct to court, have their appeals entered and names put on or left off according to evidence, all at the same time. There would be less danger of error and the lisis could be revised more quickly and time would be saved all record."

Double the Drunks

Edmonton official police records show more than one hundred per cent increase in drunkenness during first two months of government sale.—See Page Two.

Opinions in Alberta are not yet final as to the wisdom of government sale after four months of trial.

But certain facts of the situation are definite and are accepted by veryone as a direct result of government sale.

Drunkenness has increased. The city of Edmonton more than doubled her number of police court drunks in the first two months of the new system. The police figures show the following: For June and July, 1923, under prohibition, 63 drunks; same two months, 1924, under government sale, 133 drunks; increase in drunks, 111 per cent.
