Those who have attended the performance readily concede that Miss Zelma Rawlston is one of the brightest soubrettes on the stage. Sae is a clever musician and a charming singer, and as an impersonator shows a talent iderably above the average. She has winning ways, a mischievous twinkle in her upon the market. eye, and a captivating manner. Her magnetism for drawing large audiences is not alone confined to the stage, as she is possessed of a character which is pleasing to come in conqualities, and a charm that endears her to all those who have been so fortunate as to have made her acquaintance. A Telegraph representative had the pleasure of an interview with Miss Rawlston which resulted in a biowith Miss Rawlston which resulted in a biographical sketch of her life being published in these columns on Saturday. During the course of the interview, Miss Rawlston let out a secret, which she consented to allow the Telegraph to make public. The Rousehold.

In dangerous illness, when the hospital surse has control of the sick room, a well nurse has control of the sick room, a well ordered routine is quickly established, but in less serious cases, where trained help is not sought, and during convalescence, a few practical hints on the home nursing of children may be offered. To begin with, food or medicine should never be prepared or discussed before the little patient, nor should the dector's opinion or the children was a succeed warw well and the superintendent of schools in one of the big cities of the Bay State. earance, or even in name, will remove. Highly flavored dishes are seldom liked y children, and are quite unsuitable for them, but a pretty appearance will make simple, nourishing forms of diet inviting. The portion of custard or milk pudding which would have no attraction if sent from the nursery table becomes quite desirable if baked in a tiny dish, and the joy of helping oneself will possibly lead to a second supply being consumed. The bread and butter or bread and jam at tea time, made into thin sandwiches, then cut into narrow fingers and built up crosswise on the child's plate, lend out the languid appetite. A child's dislike to beef tea, soup, or beaten-up egg and milk, may sometimes be overcome if the novelty of taking it through a tube or straw be adopted. What matter if returning energy suggests the blowing of a few bubbles, when the nourishing compound has gone to build up tissue and muscle.

Rules Adopted by a Wise Girl.

As she was coming out of a theatre at last Wednesday's matinee a young woman, in getting something out of her pocket, dropped a slip of paper to the ground. A rude male person picked it up, intending perhaps to return it, but a glance at the clean-cut, angular hand-writing induced him to read it through. It was good enough, he thought, for publication, and here it is: 1. I don't let a man smoke when he walks r drives with me. If he knows no better than to do it I promptly tell him what I 2. I don't give any photographs to men. I used to occasionally, but 1 am wise now. I should hate by and-by to know that my face might be hanging up in Tom, Dick or Harry's room.

3. I don't let a man take my arm when he walks with me. If he does I tell him I prefer him to give me his arm.

4. I don't go out with a man just because he asks me. I like it better if he asks another to go, too-his sister for instance. 5. I don't let any man "see me home" from church. If he hasn't got gumption services with me, he can stay away alto- said:

6. I don't let any man give me presents, unless it is something of a trifling cost—like fruit or flowers. And I always gauge a man by his taste in this respect. 7. I don't encourage any man who is not perfectly polite and agreeable to my mother. Whoever calls on me sees a great deal of her. 8. I don't allow a caller to stay later than 10 o'clock. If he does not go at that time I and a delusion, Amen. Thank you for the tell him politely that this is my custom.

Care of Plants. Turn the plants frequently to prevent their coming one sided. Keep the soil loose by frequent stirrings. Liquid fertilizers may be given every week after buds appear. Plants do better where they have plenty of breathing space, therefore, do not crowd

Put cuttings in small pots. When the pots are filled with roots, remove to those a size larger. Keep repotting until the plants are in as large pots as desired. Most flowering plants require rather small pots, as they bloom best if root bound. Foliage plants should have an unchecked growth, never becoming root bound. Keep the plants well pinched back all summer, letting no branches get the start of others. Remove all buds which form before November.

Hot Milk Beneficial. Hot milk is a recognized drink in some of the German cafes. It is served in a cup with a saucer, and two lumps of sugar a ways accompany it. The drink has several things to commend it, since it has none of the dangerous qualities of tea, coffee or alcoholic drinks, and is declared by the doctors to be an excellent remedy for disorders of the stomach arising from certain forms of indigestion.

How an Irish Priest Explained a Miracle. A man asked an Irish priest what a mira cle was. He gave him a full explanation which did not satisfy the man, who said: "Now, won't your riverence give me an example of a miracle?"

"Well," said the priest, "Step before me and I'll see what I can do." As the man did so he gave him a treme dous kick behind.

"Begorra, I did feel it, sure enough." "Well," said the priest, "it would be s miracle if you didn't."

He got along swimmingly until a little urchin in one of the back seats squeaked out, "Why did the angels have to have a ladder when they had wings?" Beecher replied, "Well, that is a fair question. Who can answer it?" There was a pause, and then up went a pudgy fist. "Well, my little man, why was it?"

"Your majesty," said the chief of the King of the Cannibal lalands, "we have in the larder to day a couple of fine fat captives who say they are twins. What is your royal pleasure?"
"Twins?" replied the potenate. "That
