

DEW DROPS

VOL. I.

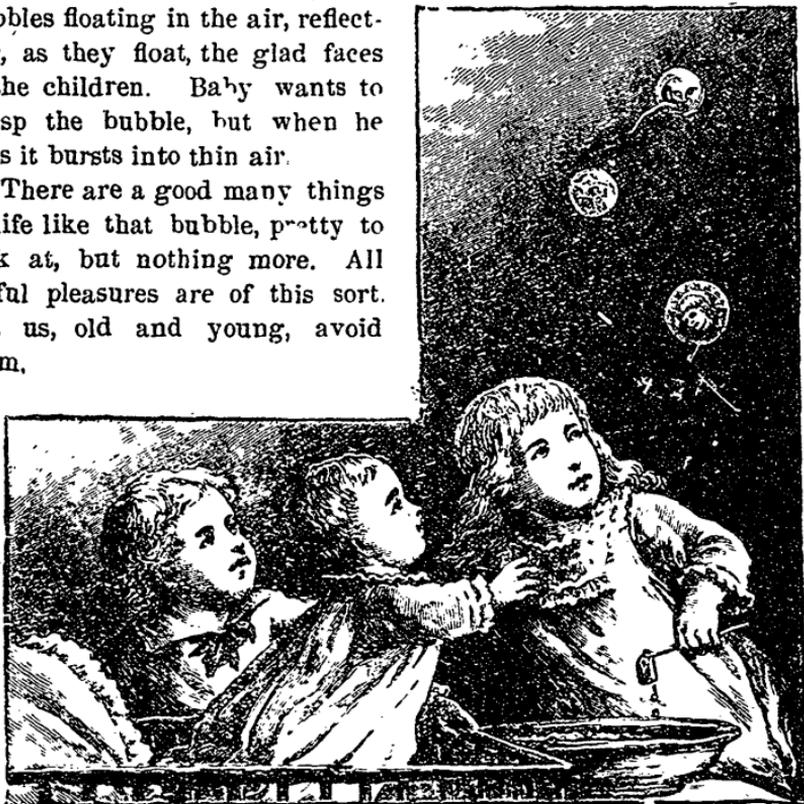

TORONTO, MARCH 27, 1897.

No. 13.

BLOWING BUBBLES.

The little folks in our picture are having a fine time blowing bubbles. Baby in his crib is as eager as his older sister. It is a very pretty sight to watch the fairy-like bubbles floating in the air, reflecting, as they float, the glad faces of the children. Baby wants to grasp the bubble, but when he does it bursts into thin air.

There are a good many things in life like that bubble, pretty to look at, but nothing more. All sinful pleasures are of this sort. Let us, old and young, avoid them.

BLOWING BUBBLES.