

economic unions and common markets should be studied as to their applicability to the Canadian governmental system and society.

A. PHASING OF REMOVAL

The onus for funding these programs should not rest exclusively with the federal government but be shared with the governments of those regions that secure greater relative benefits from the removal of the barriers. Transitional policies should also be included as part of any U.S.-Canada trade agreement.

Transitional policies should be direct, transparent and market-oriented. These policies should be developed and implemented in a co-ordinated and co-operative manner among all governments.

The onus for funding these programs should not rest exclusively with the federal government but be shared with the governments of those regions that secure greater relative benefits from the removal of the barriers. Transitional policies should also be included as part of any U.S.-Canada trade agreement.

Transitional policies should be direct, transparent and market-oriented. These policies should be developed and implemented in a co-ordinated and co-operative manner among all governments.

The onus for funding these programs should not rest exclusively with the federal government but be shared with the governments of those regions that secure greater relative benefits from the removal of the barriers. Transitional policies should also be included as part of any U.S.-Canada trade agreement.

Transitional policies should be direct, transparent and market-oriented. These policies should be developed and implemented in a co-ordinated and co-operative manner among all governments.

The onus for funding these programs should not rest exclusively with the federal government but be shared with the governments of those regions that secure greater relative benefits from the removal of the barriers. Transitional policies should also be included as part of any U.S.-Canada trade agreement.

B. TRANSITIONAL POLICIES

The onus for funding these programs should not rest exclusively with the federal government but be shared with the governments of those regions that secure greater relative benefits from the removal of the barriers. Transitional policies should also be included as part of any U.S.-Canada trade agreement.

Transitional policies should be direct, transparent and market-oriented. These policies should be developed and implemented in a co-ordinated and co-operative manner among all governments.