

Sai Wan Bay Memorial in Hong Kong honours the Allied troops, including John Osborn, who died defending the Colony and who have no known grave. The cemetery there contains the graves of 283 Canadians, some of whom are unidentified. Twenty Canadians are buried in Stanley Military Cemetery in Hong Kong, and 137 Canadians are buried at the Yokohama British Commonwealth War Cemetery, the only Commonwealth cemetery in Japan.