

ancy England
y served in all
country, with not sufficient
the population,
eclesiastical es-
the genius of
but here, und the spirit of
stitution, traver-
and withering,
ll as domestic

he declaimer,
ad hardly spo-
d a man from
who told the
most expired,
d not engage
aid could be
. The good
stance, and on unlucky that
midst of this
e land. He establishment
new to him,
tion with ob-
oe on eccle-
l his soul the

ica was very ssage. The en days, and
time of em-
aving Newnner, and by
was impossible. I experienced many favours from several Americans, and take this opportunity to acknowledge them.

My impression, whilst in America, was that the higher orders are in advance of the civil institutions of their country.