spection of cattle there." He considered it an attempt to injure the reputation of the Union Stock Yards. "All the live stock coming to the Junction yards is inspected every market day by a duly qualified veterinary surgeon, appointed by the government." he said, "and no foundation whatever exists for the statement that there is ino inspection at the Junction." Mr. Hodgson considered that the inspection of a duly qualified veterinary surgeon should be as thore as one male by Mr. Awde himself. The Union Stock Yards, from a sanitary standpoint, were unequaled by any yards in the world, every possible provision having been made there for the comfort of both live stock and cattle dealers. The statement that has also been circulated to the effect that "slink" yeal had been brought into the Union Stock Yards in large quantities by the big meat concerns of Toronto, who were afraid to bring it on the City Cattle Market, was also declared to be without foundation. The only concern using cattle of inferior quality at the Junction yards was the German-Canadian Packing Co., whose output was pickled and sent to Germany, and this firm was compelled to go to the City Cattle Market for supplies.

Mr. Awde had based his statement on the fact that he had less diseased cattle coming to the Toronto Cattle Market than he had before the Union Stock Yards were opened, and, therefore, these cattle must be at the Union Stock Yards were opened, and, therefore, these cattle must be at the Union Stock Yards. This, Mr. Hodgson said, was a pretty far-fetched argument.

Mr. Hodgson said that, in addition to the excellent facilities given by the Junction Stock Yards, a large public abattor is being constructed, and nearly ready for operation, to supply slaughtering accommodations of the most scientific class for the butchers, after the style of the noted Dressed Beef Abattor in New York, which, when completed, will be one of the cleanest and most sanitary concerns of its kind in America. The new abattor will be a great advantage to Toronto. jawed cattle arrive at the Junction market, but none of them had been sold to the city butchers, other than such as would have been allowed to pass by Inspector Awde himself.
