Following Miss Mickle, Miss E. Yates Farmer read a companion paper upon "Str David Kirke," whose name is so closely associated with Sir William Alexander's in the history of our land. The taking of Quebec by Kirke in 1629 was graphically told, while the action of the British in relinquishing their conquests to France was soundly scored. The diplomatic intrigues of this period were clearly elucidated, exhibiting considerable historical analysis on the part of the writer of the paper.

Miss Farmer's paper was interestingly illustrated by a large crayon drawing of the citadel of Quebec as it stood in 1629 when wrested from Champlain.
