The shapes are small, close fitting turbans and smart sailors, of black, navy or brown satin. The becoming tulle overbrim, edged with straw, is shown, some of the sailors having turned-down tulle edging, which has the desired softening effect. The trimmings are modish to a degree, being cleverly wired bows of velvet or corded ribbon, gold or steel ornaments, tulle balls and "feelers," flowers of straw braid, up-standing tulls frills, atc. The New Sleeveless Nightgowns of Mull, Our Own Make, $3 Each

We're hearing all sorts of pretty things about the dainty array of Nightgowns that forms so attractive a part of our display of fine lingerie. The lion's share of the praise goes, perforce, to the garments made in our own workrooms, and it is to the attractive nightgowns of our own make that we want to direct your special attention.

The new Siesveless Nightgown is a most fascinating novelty. It's made in chemise style of white mull, edged at neck and armhole with fold of pink or blue mull, back and front widths ending in points at the shoulders, each pair of points joined and held in place by one of the adorable little ribbon rosettes for which our workrooms are well known. These gowns are made in Empire style, the hemstitched beading run with soft satin ribbon. Price for each
