PASTOR'S UTTERANCES AROUSE OPPOSITION

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 1—Because he expressed the opinion that soldiers killed in battle go direct to the realms of the blessed, an Inland Empire pastor has fallen foul of his church administration and is asked to resign. The incident has created widespread controversy, and the weight of the preacher's congregation is with him.

The storm centers about the head of Rev. W. Baldwin, of the First Presbyterian Church at Yakima, formerly of Idaho Falls, Idaho.

The remarks included a statement of belief that soldiers who gave their lives in battle will not suffer damnation, though they died without being affiliated with any church. It is said the pastor, who married a cousin of President Mc-Kinley, and at one time was noted as an orator in England.

At a meeting of the central Washington presbytery held subsequent to the pulpit utterance, Pastor Baldwin was asked to resign immediately. He is past middle age, feels that a change of employment is a difficult problem at his years, but fears that when his pastorate at Yakima is finished he will be unable to secure another charge owing to the attitude of the presbytery.

With the exception of a small area in Northern Ontario, practically all the fires cleaned off the timber crops on lands that are useless for agriculture. Such lands can grow only one crop and that is wood. Once stripped these areas lie profitless for half a century or more. Repeated fires usually kill reproduction.

A GOOD OLD SONG. On Sunday

(Occasional, in Halifax Recorder.)
The author of the following beautiful song is unknown. A traveler writing in Blackwood's Magazine in the eighties of the last century, gives it as it appears in English. He states he heard it played on the pipes and sung in Gaelic on one of the islands of the Hebrides. Like the "Exile of Erin," there are several claimants, but none of the claims have proved authentic. 11 a.m.—"The How of Eternal Life."
