THE COUNTRY LIVES BECAUSE THEY DIED

By James A. Garfield

From oration at the soldiers' cemetery, Arlington, Va., May 30, 1868. From oration at the soldiers' cemetery, Arlington, Va., May 30, 1868.

I LOVE to believe that no heroic sacrifice is ever lost; that the characters of men are molded and inspired by what their fathers have done; that treasured up in American souls are all the unconscious influences of the great deeds of the Anglo-Saxon race, from Agincourt to Bunker Hill. It was such an influence that led a young Greek, two thousand years ago, when musing on the battle of Marathon, to exclaim, "The trophies of Miltiades will not let me sleep!" Could those men be silent whose ancestors had left the inspiration of battle on every field where civilization had fought in the last thousand years? Read their answers in this green turf. Each for himself gathered up the cherished purposes of life—its aims and ambitions, its dearest affections—and flung all, with life itself, into the scale of battle.

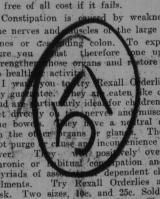

Fortunate men! Your country lives because you died! Your fame is placed where the breath of calumny can never reach it; where the mistakes of a weary life can never dim its brightness! Coming generations will rise up to call you blessed! If each grave had a voice to tell us what its silent tenant last saw and heard life can never dim its brightness! Coming generations will rise up to call you blessed! If each grave had a voice to tell us what its allent tenant last aw and heard on earth, we might stand, with uncovered heads, and hear the vhole story of the war. The voices of these dead will forever fill the Jand his holy benedictions, or of the capitol saved by their valor! Here where the earlier edge of battle join ed—here where all the hope and fear and agony of their country centered—here let them rest, askep on the nation's heart, entombed in the nation's heart entombed in the nation's hear

In the Portland Methodist church last evening the services were of an interesting character. The pastor, Rev. H. D. Marr, took for his subject the Great Hymns of the Church, and at certain points the sermon was illustrated by a special choir of sixty voices, under the leadership of W. H. Broomfield.

The speaker referred to the extraordinary circumstances which had given so many of these great hymns birth. He will preach again next Sunday evening on the same subject. During the service last night a quartette consisting of Misses White and Corbett and Messrs. McEachern and Nobles sang Rock of Ages. R. A. Sinclair sang as a solo Jesus Lover of My Soul, aided by Miss Sinclair and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Powers. The same choir will sing next Sunday evening.

Rev. J. D. Wetmore, of East Florence-ville, occupied the pulpit of the Tabernacle Baptist church at the morning and evening-services yesterday, and preached to large congregations on both occasions. The seventy-fifth anniversary of Centenary church Sunday school was celebrated yesterday by special services. There was a pleasing programme of music, including a clarionet solo by Mr. Stratton, and a violin duet by Mrs. Dempster and M. L. Harrison, besides several selections by the choir. The election of officers will be held Wednesday night.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH

The annual Easter service for the young people was held in St. Mary's church last evening. Carols were sung by the children and a special sermon preached by the rector, Archdeacon Raymond. The Easter offering was presented, amounting to about $75, for missions. There was a very large congregation.
