The COMMERCIAL COURSE comprises three years. It includes the study of the French and English Languages, Mathematics, Book-Keeping, History. Epistolary Correspondence, in a word, everything required for a commercial education.

The CLASSICAL COURSE follows the commercial course. It embraces Greek, Latin, History, Mathematics, Belles-Lettres, Rhetoric, Elocution, Astronomy, Chemistry, Physics, Intellectual and Moral Philosophy, and all that prepares for the liberal professions.

The Institution is directed by secular priests. The faculty is composed of priests and seminarians.
