My Mending-Basket.

It is made of the stoutest of willow; It is deep and capacious and wide; At the Gulf Stream that flows through the bowler, Sees always to stand at foot-boards!

Dispersed by a Whip-lash.

One of the dangers which menaced travellers in the early history of California was an attack by highwaymen.

Camels in America.

It is not generally known that there are wild camels on the Colorado Desert, and these are the only wild camels to be found in the United States.

She Had Enough of Them.

His was too modest to be a success; He had been led for forty years of his life to go on without ever coming to an emotional point.

Multiplication of the Typewriter.

"The coming man will not write nearly so much as the man of this age," said Professor Charles Whiteford, of Philadelphia, at the Normandy, and yet it must not be inferred that the art of penmanship is going to drop in to early desuetude.

For the Cure of Diphtheria.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The official of the Marine Hospital service were yesterday notified that a leading firm of manufacturing chemists at Detroit, Mich., is making preparations for the manufacture of anti-toxine, the new remedy for diphtheria, which has created such widespread interest in Europe.

Squaring the Doctor.

"I can't pay this bill, doctor. I'm exorbitant. I'm no better than I was, either."

FINE LAUNDRY WORK.

How a Great Saving of Time and Strength May Be Made.

"There are women in this world who seem to think that they are never really accomplishing anything unless they make hard work of it. They scorn all easy ways, changes of method, 'black-walnut' and 'shirky' and take to themselves great credit for getting through an enormous amount of hard work."

Desert Sand-storms.

The storm generally lasts from ten to thirty minutes, and is frequently accompanied by a very heavy rain fall.

First Use of Potatoes in Ireland.

In the garden adjoining his house at Youghal, Hugh planted his first potato ever grown in Ireland.

Star Beams.

The vegetable was brought to him from the little colony which he endeavored to establish in Virginia. The colonists started in April, 1685, and Thomas Harriot, one of their number, wrote a description of the country in 1587. He describes a root which must have been the potato.

Star Beams.

"Openank are a kind of roots of round form, some of the biggest of walnuts, some farre greater, which are found in moist & marsh grounds growing many together one by another in ropes, some of them were fastened with a string. Being boiled they are very good meat."

Star Beams.

The Spaniards first brought potatoes to Europe, but Raleigh was undoubtedly the first to introduce the plant into Ireland.

POPE LEO'S ENGLISH.

Understands the Language but Does not Speak it—Splendor of his Public Appearances.

The favorite pastime of Leo XIII, as it has been of many of his predecessors, is the composition of Latin poems, but of late his strength has been equal only to the official demands upon it.

In January last he composed an ode in honor of the 50th birthday of Cesare Cantu, an eminent Italian historian who has been his friend from youth, in which he compares his hero to the setting sun.

During his formal audiences which he continues to give with great regularity several times a week, he sits in an antique, high-backed chair with leather upholstery, under a scarlet canopy, clad in a white, with a scarlet cloak thrown over his shoulders, but wears no crown but his silver hair. His hand trembles with age and nervousness when he extends it in blessing, and the pallor of his face is painful, but the brilliancy of his eyes, and his clear, deep voice, furnish a striking contrast.

He uses French, Italian or Latin habitually, and can understand some English, although he does not speak it.

Not long ago a beautiful American girl, whose Protestantism was stronger than her sense of propriety was among the visitors of the Pope's audience chamber, and to her surprise found herself expected to kneel and kiss his ring. Instinctively she resisted.

Not a motion or even a thought of the girl seemed to escape his notice, who addressed her with a pleasant smile and said:

"Come, come, my dear, an old man's blessing cannot possibly harm a beautiful heretic as you are."

The Pope appears in public very infrequently, and then only to participate in some magnificent ceremonial at St. Peter's.

On these occasions politics are generally forgotten, and even the most rigid adherents of the civil authorities are willing to resort to any resource to attend tickets to the tribunes from which the spectacle may be witnessed.

No man is admitted to the tribunes unless he comes in evening dress. Even a black cravat is sufficient to exclude him, although he may have a card of admission, and all women must wear somber black without bonnets.

The foreign ambassadors accredited to the Vatican, however, appear in their splendid medieval costumes and regalia, and the military officers of the papal guards wear their gorgeous uniforms, and the dignitaries of the church their robes of scarlet and purple, their chains of gold, their jeweled decorations and other insignia that indicate their honors and their rank, but among the crowd that fill the remainder of the temple one finds soldiers and priests and peasants, men, women and children of all ages and colors and castes, mingled indiscriminately, who can hear the sublime music, but see nothing.

The holy father enters from the Vatican in the centre of a procession. A passage is cleared for him by the guards of police, as it is called, an escort of nobles and nobles, who accompany him on all ceremonies and are appointed to that honor as a reward for gifts or some service performed for the church.

Following them come a band of musicians sounding silver trumpets, and next the college of cardinals, with their long scarlet trains borne by pages in livery.

The famous triple crown, with its jewels worth millions of dollars, is now too heavy for the slender strength of the pope's bear, so it is carried before him upon a scarlet cushion by some chamberlain of the palace.

The holy father is seated upon the Sedes Gestatoria or pontifical throne, of scarlet and gold, which stands upon a platform carried by long poles upon the shoulders of stalwart guards, while over his head is a canopy of white and grey silk supported by the 16 chief canons of the church.

The Devil's Tower.

The Devil's Tower, a geological wonder that stands on the Belle Fouchere river, in the Black Hills region, and of which a geologist of international reputation said, "It is a remarkable freak of nature and appears not to have been repeated elsewhere on the earth's surface, but stands alone, unique and mysterious," is believed to be the cone of a cooled volcano.

At a distance it looks like a huge cask or barrel made of gigantic timbers, the sides being roughly furrowed with crystals of trachyte. Its height is 625 feet, and the walls on all sides are so nearly smooth and perpendicular that no human being has ever been able to climb to the top. Its diameter at the base is 796 feet and at the summit (estimated) 350 feet.

The Tendency.

The orchestra was playing the overture. The gallery was already much festing impatiently.

"I suppose," remarked the sonnette as she stood before the mirror, "that everybody in the audience will be happy in this costume."

The leading lady inquired, "You certainly can't be surprised, she rejoined, "if they look down on you."

The sonnette merely glanced at her gause skirt and shivered.
