Under-Currents By The Duchess

"I didn't expect you until tomorrow," says Griselda, also in the tone of a conspirator. "Well, what did she say? Was she mad with you—does she hate me—do you think she will help us?"

"How can I answer all that here? I've such a lot to say to you, and I feel as if there was an eye in every window over there." They are within range of the entire western side of the house. "Do you know the old ruin at the end of the vegetable garden? Could you manage to get up there? If so I could follow, and we should at least be out of sight and hearing."

"I'll try," says Griselda, who is audaciously plucking the dead roses from a bush near her and looking at anything but Peyton. To her every window in the western wing is peopled with Grunches. As she speaks she slides away in a cautious manner towards the little green iron gateway that leads to the upper garden, and once out of sight of the windows, takes to her heels and runs with light steps to the old ruin Peyton had suggested to her.

It is an ancient edifice that once might have been a private chapel, but now is purposeless. The four walls still remain and the roof stands trembling over it, but the windows are as eyes socketless and the door a gaping mouth. Tender, straggling, trailing wreaths of ivy, as if in pity for it, have flung themselves from crumbling roof to rotten walls, and hang daintily over the apertures in the latter that time has made.

Griselda has hardly had time to mark all these signs of death and life commingled when Peyton joins her.

"I feel as if I was suffocating here," says she, bringing up from a stone resting-place in one of the rooms and hastening towards him in the sunlight outside, where he stands looking in at the doorway.

"What a dreary spot! They say the old monks lived here long ago. I thought you would never come to rid me of the fancies that caught and held me—as if some ghostly abbot would arise and question my right like the bears of old to sit in his chair." Well, well, now tell me everything.

"Come and sit here then," says he, drawing her towards a small cock of hay that has evidently been drawn in for some time and left here forgotten. It gives them a comfortable rest, and Mr. Peyton, with Griselda's hand in his, proceeds to give her a graphic description of his visit to his sister.

"At the last she seemed dangerously desirous of coming to pay her respects to you in person. She seemed quite bent on seeing you face to face, but I flatter myself I vanquished that troublesome craving. I nipped it in the bud! Just consider were she to come and find me enfolded in these vile garments! ha, ha, ha!" roars Mrs. Peyton, shamelessly enchanted at the vision his imagination has at the vision his imagination has apparently conjured up. "She'd have a fit," says he, still shaking with mirth.

"Does it amuse you to think of your sister having a fit?" says Griselda severely, who is so terrified at the picture he has drawn and which has so delighted him, that anger wakes within her breast.

"Oh, if she could come, what on earth would become of us?" "She won't come. I tell you I have provided against that."

"She may think it over and come after all, Oh, Tom, I feel frightened about it. Yesterday there was only fear of my uncle's finding us out, now there is added to that the certainty that your sister will pounce down upon us one of these days."

"Nonsense," says Mr. Peyton. "I never saw anyone who so loved to torture herself. Why anticipate the bad?"

"Why think you should say so? Do you imagine I really want to make myself miserable? Nature has given me a mind—I must use it." "Be abuse it."

"Surely there is no occasion to be rude," says Griselda with crushing force. "Because I am un-luckily alive to the fact that evil may befall us, am I then to be dubbed a fool? There are those who— you have read it perhaps?" with ominous sweetness, "it is Dryden. I think, who says, 'It is those who think too little, and who talk too much.'"

"Who is rud now?" dman (Mr. Peyton gloomily, sticking the end of his moustache into his mouth with a plain determination to make an end of it.

Dead silence ensues. It might have lasted until noon, so entirely have both belligerents made up their minds never again to address the other, when a sound falling

HEART FLUTTERING EASILY CORRECTED

Good Advice to Folks Bothered With Palpitation, Weakness, Etc.

If your heart flutters, be careful. An attack is liable to come one at any time. Excitement, over-exertion or emotion may cause it.

If blood rushes to the head, if palpitation and short breath are noticeable, there's cause for alarm.

If you want a good honest remedy try Ferrozone. We recommend Ferrozone because we know it's just right for heart trouble. It cured A.F. Beattie who lives at Allen Hotel, Bay City, Mich. See if your symptoms resemble these:

Some Symptoms of Weak Heart
Nervousness, Palpitation, Trembling, Dizziness, Sinking Feeling, Heart Pain, Short Breath, Weakness.

Mr. Beattie says:
"I was weak and miserable. I was subject to heart palpitation and dizziness."

"As I grew worse I began to have trembling and sinking sensations. Ferrozone strengthened my heart, gave vigor to my nerves, soon made me well. It's a great builder."

By strengthening the muscles of the heart, giving proper circulation and causing a general rebuilding of the whole system, Ferrozone is bound to do grand work in heart trouble; try it 50c per box or as for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from The Catarothzone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the bowels, which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, cold, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can't get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to bathe on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

With Fingers! Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus right off. Try It!

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic drug freezone recently discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn or callus and instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

upon the stillness with which they have providentially, if ill-temperely, surrounded themselves, rouses them to instant action, and a tacit forgetfulness of all 'spices'.

It is the old tap-tap of a stick upon the gravel path; it is a tap-tap familiar to both—it is the tap-tap of Gregory Dysart's stick.

"Ye gods," says Mr. Peyton below his breath, and without further hesitation he hauls the pan-stricken Griselda up from her seat on the small haycock, and flinging himself on his stomach, actually swings under that haycock, arms and legs playing their part manfully until his whole figure is completely hidden beneath the scented mound.

Griselda lost at first in admiration of this manoeuvre, has barely time to turn her attention to a huge bush of flaming fuchsia near her when Mr. Dysart, stick in hand, turns the corner of the hedge and marches down upon her.
