

How that befell no mortal knew
From Marlbury Downs to Exon Moor ;
No mortal knew that deed undue

 But he who schemed the crime,
Which night still covers. . . . But in dream
Those ropes of hair upon the stream
He sees, and he will hear that scream
 Until his judgment-time.