

as their comparative expense, the percentage of ore recovered, their suitability to general conditions, etc. To go farther into these matters would make the paper unduly long. No references have been consulted, as the data have all been gathered by the writer at first hand. With apologies for an inadequate presentation of a very interesting and almost unlimited subject, this article is respectfully submitted.