Across Atlantic and Back in One Week

DESTROYER OF LATEST TYPE CLEAVES THE WAVES AT TERRIFIC SPEED

Toronto, June 27.—In a special cable to The Evening Telegram from London, England, Douglas Robertson says:

"According to a rumor (and therefore to be taken for what a rumor is worth), the world's record for a fast voyage across the Atlantic and back has been shattered into fragments by a recent performance. And it was not a liner Leviathan either which eclipsed all previous events."

"It is said that not long ago a destroyer of the latest type, which at her maximum cleaves the waves at the terrific speed of over forty miles an hour, had occasion to make the round journey from the British Isles to the United States and back at full pressure."

"The weather was of the very best, a sea of comparative glass stretching out before, both going and coming. The machinery worked faultlessly and nothing occurred to interfere with progress. Under such conditions, including, it is understood, several hours in which to replenish her oil-fuel tanks on the other side, the round trip was made within one week."

Big Beaver Dam in Verulam

Bobcaygeon, June 19.—News comes to town about beavers building dams on Hawke's Creek and flooding the fields and roads up the stream. It appears that for some time beavers have been working in this creek, and had built a dam just above Tier's cement bridge north of the Cedar Tree road, North Verulam.

The dam built, so reports say, is perfect for while there was a head of seven feet on the one side the other side was so dry you could walk across in your stockings, feet without getting them wet. The creek for a mile or so back was flooded with about two feet or so of water on the concession road crossing the creek north of Joseph McGee's. The dam was then broken, but it is said the beavers have started again. It is said to be built upon the site of an old beaver dam built many years ago. There are also signs of one being built farther down the stream. This is the first signs of beaver in this creek, or dam building at any rate, for many years and quite an interest has been manifested in them and their work. Port Hope Guide.

He was one of the oldest graduates of Queen's and her greatest benefactor. Designed for the ministry, through force of circumstances he drifted into another great calling—that of metallurgy and mining—and not only amassed millions but became one of the world's greatest experts in these fields. Dr. Douglas used his wealth for the benefit of his fellowmen and his endowments in various universities will stand as a lasting memorial. He died full of years and greatly honored.

Other Editor's Opinions

JOURNALISM UNDER DIFFICULTIES

The Union Republicaine de la Marne in a recent issue contained the following:

"To our readers: We have no need to make excuses to our readers for the issue which we are publishing. They know and they understand. Our object in publishing our paper, despite everything, is not to furnish them with a newspaper, even incomplete, but to avoid interrupting relations between them and us, and, in so far as we are able, to maintain a little life and activity in our premises. Our prints are working in a room which is covered with debris; we are writing on a corner of a table in a room which is open to the four winds, and as we pen these lines rapidly, we are not certain whether or not the printer will be able to set even one of our machines in movement! We do not know. We hope, just the same, that it will reach our readers and carry to them, together with our affectionate greeting, the assurance that, despite the increasing difficulties, we shall continue publication."—European Edition of New York Herald.

RUSSIAN DEMOCRATS APPEAL FOR HELP

Conditions in Russia almost baffle description. As soon as one attempts to size up the situation his head gets in a whirl. We know that the Allies still have friends in Russia, some of them in the most unlikely quarters. Our former friends, the intellectuals and aristocrats, have been so oppressed by the Bolsheviks that many of them would co-operate with Germany in restoring order in Russia. Scores of thousands of Austrian prisoners of war in Russia, however, are Czech-Slavs, and supporters of the Entente. Large numbers, really deserted from the Austrian army. They refuse to allow the Bolsheviks to turn them over to Austria for punishment or for fighting against the Entente, and having armed themselves, have secured considerable numbers of arms and ammunition. They are shutting central Russia off from her food supply in the Ukraine and Don region. From Cheliabinsk to Tomsk these prisoners of war, for the time being, dominate western Siberia. They also occupy Samara in Russia proper and are marching on Ufa. This movement holds out magnificent opportunities if the Allies only would seize them. These prisoners are in the opposite camp to the German prisoners of war, and some Austrians who are co-operating with the Bolsheviks in Siberia, between Tomsk and Chita, and who have driven back General Semenov, the friend of the Allies. Allied friends temporarily dominate most of the 1,500 miles of western Siberia and eastern Russia, and more than 1,000 of eastern Siberia, while the Bolsheviks control central Russia and central Siberia, but recognize that without fawning on Germany they cannot expect to retain power much longer. Japan is contemplating action in Siberia, and some Allied move if possible in co-operation with the Kerenky faction, is urgently needed.

THE KAISERITES OF BIGOTRY

A press circular issued by the National Committee on Public Information at Washington calls timely attention to the pro-German nature of the anti-Catholic propaganda now being carried on against the Catholics.

Church. America has often adverted to this fact, and public-spirited citizens cannot fail to realize it. Governor Catts was rightly prevented from continuing his recent harangue against his fellow American citizens if the Catholic faith with cries of "Pro-German!" Whether these attacks are fomented by German agents, as the Committee of Public Information believes, or whether they are simply the outcroppings of religious bigotry and the intrigues of a petty and despicable political ambition, is immaterial. It is difficult to see how they can be regarded otherwise than treasonable, since they are most effectively aiding and abetting the enemy. The same is doubtless true of all similar attacks made upon any law-abiding body of American citizens, whether Jews or Protestants.

Special mention is made in the Committee's circular of the rumor, circulated at our very entrance into the war, that President Wilson's Catholic secretary had been executed for treason. In the same manner the mails have been filled with the alleged "bloody oath of the Knights of Columbus." A pro-German agent, we are told, had been caught distributing copies of it in New Jersey and was forthwith sent to prison. The Washington circular, written by an associate chairman of the Committee on Public Information and officially issued for press notice throughout the country, thus expresses its further views upon the subject:

"In Spain and the Catholic countries of South America the Kaiser poses as 'the champion of Catholicism' and 'the champion of the Vatican.' He does not preserve the peace in Catholic Belgium or Catholic Poland. And in America the Kaiserite uses this very claim of the Kaiser to arouse animosity against the Catholics, just as in Italy the German agent used it in an unsuccessful attempt to seduce the Italian Catholics, and now in America accuses the Italian Catholics of having succumbed to the seduction. As a matter of fact, the Catholic chaplains in the Italian army were among the first to discover this propaganda, among the soldiers, reported it to the officers, and combated it diligently."

These last words are particularly notable and should forever silence the mouth of calumny. Whether or not we attribute the present anti-Catholic propaganda to the agents of the Kaiser, it is certainly doing his work. The men who before the war had been making "a living out of sectarian animosities" are engaged, unconsciously perhaps, in his service today.

"They are representing the trouble in Ireland as a purely religious trouble and the opposition to conscription in Quebec as the same sort of thing. Even Rudyard Kipling recently fell into the trap and denounced the Pope and the Kaiser and the neutrals in one breath. Such denunciations overlook the fact that Cardinal Mercier, the Catholic prelate of Belgium, has been the most effective popular opponent of the Kaiser that Europe has produced. This is a war of nations, not of creeds. Prussia is as Protestant a nation as England is, and Belgium and Poland as Catholic as Austria."

Anyone, therefore, as the public circular concludes, who seeks to involve religious issues with the present war is serving Germany as effectively as if he were exclusively devoting his attention to disabling our transports or blowing up munition plants.—America.
