

WAS A WARM IO ROUND GO

The Glove Contest at the Savoy Wednesday Night.

Delay In Starting Causes Spectators to Squirm and Say Naughty Things—It Was a Draw.

The Rafael-Carroll 10-round go was successfully pulled off at the Standard theater Wednesday night before a large number of spectators. Many people, however, who would have purchased tickets were not aware of the meeting as no announcement was made in the columns of the newspapers relative to the match. The go was supposed to start at 11 p. m., but was delayed until nearly 1 o'clock, much to the annoyance of the awaiting spectators, who gave evidence of their impatience in repeated calls for the mitted gentry. Eddie O'Donnell was appointed referee and W. H. B. Lyons timekeeper.

Immediately after the men entered the ring and were introduced to the audience in the regulation style, O'Donnell announced a challenge from the Colorado Kid to the winner of the contest. Vincent White, who is to fight Slavin in the near future was then introduced. In the meantime the onlookers were busy sizing up the two men. Carroll appearing much heavier, some 15 pounds. Rafael looked closer knit and quicker. Both men were in fine condition and stood the rapid pace all through ten rounds of heavy fighting remarkably well.

At the call of time both men came quickly to the center of the ring, Rafael the aggressor, Carroll giving ground until his corner was reached when he rushed, Rafael getting away easily; two more rushes by Carroll followed, ending in clinches. Rafael led with right and drove left in strong on Carroll's wind, Carroll then got in right on jaw a stiff punch, both men coming together in a clinch. Carroll rushed and in the clinch slipped to the floor, where he stayed until the count of seven. Rafael then drove in right swing on jaw followed by a left. Carroll rushed and clinched at call of time.

Rafael in the first round having found Carroll's wind followed it up in all the following rounds when the opportunities came up. Carroll also found a favorite place to land, he driving in his right repeatedly on Rafael's heart.

The second round was almost a duplication of the first, only Carroll here found his opening on the heart which he got in twice. Towards the close of the round after a rush by Carroll, Rafael left an opening with both hands down which, if taken advantage of, might have terminated the go instantly, but Carroll for some unexplained reason did not drive in on his man. At call of time in this round Carroll was strong and a possible winner. In this round Rafael slipped to the floor twice.

Immediately at call of time in the third Carroll rushed Rafael, who slipped and by the impact of Carroll's rush fell heavily to the floor, breaking through the stage with part of his anatomy protruding towards the depths below. Both men were ordered to their corners by O'Donnell until repairs were made, when the round was started anew. Carroll continued his rushing in this and all subsequent rounds, with Rafael doing the leading.

Until the end of the ninth round it was anybody's battle, with both men comparatively strong. In the tenth Rafael went in to finish, swinging lefts and rights and driving in straight jabs, Carroll getting groggy at every punch and an evident loser if the pace continued, but time was called as Carroll was staggering from a heavy right swing. O'Donnell declared the go a draw. The men will probably meet again in the near future. During this round great excitement prevailed owing to the repeated fire alarms from the A. C. Co.'s whistle, many people rushing through the ropes, while the men were fighting, to leave the stage as it was thought that a serious conflagration was in progress.

Wade Has Troubles of His Own.

Although a crown prosecutor has the advantage of being at liberty to tell his troubles to a policeman, which privilege is supposed in a large measure to mitigate the pain of many unpleasant things, still there are things, even in the life of a crown prosecutor, which cannot be laid to rest in this way, and troubles arising from the recently installed telephone in the home of F. C. Wade is the source of one of these troubles.

"When the telephone was new in the house," said Mr. Wade yesterday, after he had been called away some four or five times by the telephone bell, "I waked one morning with the sound of its bell ringing in my ears, and heard Mrs. Wade telling someone over the wire that I was asleep, but that when I got up she would have me ring him up. I got up presently and went to the telephone. I turned the bell handle and waited, and after a time spent in breathless expectation of hearing a hello in response to my ring I rang again and waited some more.

"Then I went away and finished dressing, so as to give the operator in the central station time to decide on whether to answer me or not, and went at the box on the wall once more. "This time I rang and waited till my left ear turned cold from pressing the transmitter against it, and when I rang a wheel of blue sparks marked the radius of the bell handle, but I got no response. No sound came from within the thing I was pressing against my ear, but finally I thought I heard the suspicion of a laugh about the house, and being somewhat anxious to learn just where the fun came in, I turned from the deceitful phone to learn what it was all about.

"The whole family was laughing at me. Why? Because that telephone had only been fastened to the wall the evening before, and had not been connected with the wires."

Harry Edwards' Latest.

The trip of Mr. McLeod and Pilot McKinnon that was never completed to Dominion, and which has been thus far enveloped in that delightful veil of mystery which cover without altogether concealing, bids fair to become the theme of story, song, and art for years to come, if indeed, it does not become a part and parcel of the history of the country.

Practically all that is needed now to fulfill the foregoing prediction is for some poet-musician to give it voice. The story, so far as known, has been told and Artist Harry Edwards is at work on a picture commemorating the affair.

The central figure of the canvas is the equine source of much of the trouble which occurred on the memorable occasion depicted, and standing on either side of the noble descendant of the historic steed of Tam O'Shanter, are represented the victims of misplaced confidence, each expressing his views of the proper direction to be taken to arrive at Dominion, by pointing, one towards Whitehorse and the other in the direction of West Dawson.

From the dejected air worn by both gentlemen, and the decided stand of the animal, one has little difficulty in imagining how it happened.

Will Move Sunday.

The government telegraph office will on Sunday be moved from its present quarters, its home since the line first came into Dawson, to the new postoffice building, where it will be permanently located. The new quarters are commodious and much nearer to the business part of the city, on which account the move will be highly appreciated by the patrons of the company.

Notice.

The trip to Pelly river and Selkirk, as advertised by Sonnison & Henry has been postponed about 15 days by order of F. H. Clear, manager of the automobiles at that place. Sonnison & Henry agreeing to await further orders.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

Capt. Scarth was busy in the police court Wednesday afternoon, disposing of cases up for hearing.

The principal case, and the one occupying the most time, was that of Wm. Butler, a dispenser of fire water behind the bar of the Dewey hotel at the Forks, who was accused by one Christopher O'Toole of having despoiled him of $563 in good money of the realm. Mr. O'Toole, according to the tale he unfolded, had gone to the Dewey hotel one afternoon not long since and had two drinks and some conversation with Mr. Butler. Then he had inquired for one of the sprightly soubrettes resident in the hotel, who glories in the name of Marguerite. The obliging Mr. Butler went so far out of his way as to act as the O'Toole escort to the bower of Marguerite, and once there Mr. O'Toole seems to have been so overjoyed at the meeting that he got gay, generous and lastly drunk as a result. Whether it was the brandy which he drank first, or the smiles of the lady which he took in combination with the liquid refreshments which acted upon Mr. O'Toole, deponent sayeth not, but certain it is that the evidence goes to show that he told Marguerite that she could have anything she wanted, and, as her tastes are extravagant, with a strong leaning towards champagne (at the O'Toole expense) she touched the button and Mr. Butler brought wine. Many bottles were carried up to room No. 8, so many in fact that all parties seemed a little hazy in their recollection as to the exact number. At all events, after some time spent in the hilarities which the occasion demanded, and after Mr. O'Toole had done his best to reduce the violent attack of soubrette thirst from which he found the fair Marguerite suffering, he became weary and made known his desire to sleep. It then appears that both Marguerite and the solicitous Butler advised him to put his money away in a place of safety, because the room door could not be fastened. He counted out upon the lap of Marguerite $160, which Butler put away for him and gave him a receipt for. He testified that he knew nothing at all about the receipt or when he went there he had $670 in good chequako money and that was about 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon. When he waked he wondered where he was at; saw that it was 11 o'clock, and that all his wealth had departed from him. He told how he had carried his store of legal tender in a large poke and how a $100 bill had become stained, and gave a fairly good description of it. There were fifties and tens also, and after Attorney McKay had submitted to his honor that there was no evidence strong enough to warrant him in placing his client, Mr. Butler, upon trial, and Attorney McKay had submitted that the evidence was quite strong, Magistrate Scarth decided to have the accused appear before the next sitting of the territorial court for the hearing of criminal cases.

Magistrate Scarth occupied the bench in police court this morning.

Two years have passed since Adolph and Hilda Kruesner linked their destinies and launched that matrimonial bark on matrimony's placid, and otherwise, sea. A little son, in due time, came to gladden the Kruesner home and until the past few days the angel of peace has hovered over them. But on Tuesday of this week a cloud arose over a little matter of money. Hilda accused Adolph of stealing some nuggets from her and Adolph seized her by the neck, choked her, tossed her upon the bed and went out. The next morning the trouble was renewed and Hilda was again choked. This time she became hysterical and Adolph called in a doctor to revive her. Hilda recovered and had Adolph arrested for assault. Her story this morning did not materially differ from that given by his wife through an interpreter. The court explained to him that it is in bad form for a man to lick his wife and gave him seven days in the guard house to reflect and repent his rashness. Hilda smiled benignly when her liege lord was marched over to the "repository."

The complaint against W. Barrett by the proprietor of the Allman bath house was withdrawn at plaintiff's request. Mr. Barrett states that he objected to the accommodations at the bath house and after tendering payment for the bath, which he did not take, prepared to depart. The plaintiff, his wife, endeavored to forcibly restrain him and a struggle ensued which made the basis of the complaint.
