—Her Boy Is Sick.

Paris, July 26.—A special despatch from Madrid gives the following account of the Queen Regent's daily life during the present crists: "Poor Queen," this is the exclamation so often heard of late, day after day, as matters grow worse and worse, as the Spanish disasters repeat themselves and as the strone of the little King seems slipping from her hands, into which it was given in trust. Her Majesty is looking careworn and anxious. Even her drives are becoming fewer and fewer. It would surely appeal to any mother in the world were she to see theway this Queen mother each day seems to cling closer and closer to her little boy, as though to shield him from the dangers oftening about him, with almost fattle force. It was very touching to withe highest admiration. The Queen weens

Her great hope lay in Senor Moret, the former Minister of the Colonies, and he would have carried his point but for Senor Gullon, the former Minister of Foreign Affairs. To day, and ever since the war began, the great pre-occupation of the Queen is to find the quickest way for its termination. At many of the ocuncils of late held at the place, the Queen has burst into tears, begging and urging her Ministers to find a solution for the terms of peace, which they seem incapable of materializing.

Since the commencement of the war, palace life has altered considerably, and still more since the illness of the little King. Now the Queen takes dinner in her private apartments with the boy King at 7.80 p.m. There is a reason for this, as the Queen inaugines the illness of the King is due to poison. The Queen is very
