A LEARNED POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

Sir William Mulock is a distinguished collector of a most modern languages, the founder of a library in mathematics formerly the vice-chancellor of a university, a great patron of learning himself a Doctor of Laws honours causa. And yet very few people think of him in that light. He stands out as a brilliant man of affairs, a statesman of large designs, a shrewd and successful administrator of national interests.

Sir William Mulock's career is a standing argument for the presence of the university man in politics. There are in the House at Ottawa many professional men lawyers, doctors, who are known loosely as educated men; but a distinction should be made between men who have merely mastered the technique of a superior kind of trade and men who have absorbed the ideas and learned the easy postures of mind that go with a liberal education liberally entertained and assiduously applied.
The lawyer who is merely a lawyer may have common sense, but his common sense will get a little commoner every day, that is if he makes a fetish of it, until at last he has no more breadth of view than a hairpin. When a man is a lawyer and a Master of Arts and a Doctor of Laws besides; when to a professional training is added a liberal education, then it is to have the common sense and the outlook in one person. Napoleon said that one had to be a poet to conceive great ideas and a man of business to carry them out. For poet, read a man of liberal education, and you have Sir William. The combination, though not unique, is a rare one in the House of Canada. If it were not too large a question for this article, it could be proved that every one in Canadian politics who possesses it, is either a risen or a rising man.—Christmas Canadian Magazine.

JANUARY MAGAZINES.

Designer.
"A California Calendar of Fruits and Flowers," by Jessie Juliet Knox, beautifies several pages of the January DESIGNER; while of great practical interest is "Learning to be a Dressmaker," by Lillian C. Paschal. A good,

This Boy was Weak and Languid

His parents became alarmed and used Dr.
Chase's Nerve Food with splendid results.

Mrs. GEORGE F. BRISBIN, Lake Street, Petersboro, Ont., states:—"One of my children, a boy of about fifteen years, did not have good health for a year or more. He seemed to have no energy, was weak and languid and suffered from nervousness. The doctors said that he was growing too fast, but we became alarmed about him, and explicit article on "Broad Work," will be highly appreciated by women. I feel of the newest fancy work, and for those who care for more practical handwork the designs for babies' hoods, afghan-and booties will be acceptable.

Three excellent short stories, "Her First Leap Year," by Elizabeth Stark, "Lucinda Edison's Four to Six," by J. L. Harbour, and "The Magie Yeast Cake," by Edwin L.
Sabin, also a little parlor drama, "Grandmother's Sinnet," by Harvey Peake, furnish plenty of good reading matter. Ideas for fancy costumes are most attractively set forth in "A Holiday Merry-making," by Ruth Virginia Sackett, and designs for garments suitable for the season are provided in plenty in the regular fashion department, which is ably seconded by the millinery pages and the lesson on hat making. "The Mather's Advisory Club" is a new department in THE DESIGNER, to which all who have to do with little folks are invited to send questions and suggestions, for the best of which cash remuneration is made. This, with "What Women are Doing," "Helps Along the Way" and "Knots and Whatnots," give THE DESIGNER readers plenty of chance to make pin money, of which chance many are availing themselves, to judge by the clever and interesting items published every month.

New Idea Woman's Magazine.
Teeming with good things adapted to women of various tastes, the January number of the
presents a most attractive appearance. Prominent among its utilitarian articles is one upon "Laundering," the fourth in a series upon "Profitable Industries for Women," from the pen of Sarah Slater.
Frances Wilson has retold the pathetic story of Charlotte Temple in a charming way, and Grace Porter Hopkins writes delightfully of "Prominent Washington Hostesses." There are stories of exceptional merit and examples of verse that are instinct with originality and merit, and the fashions set forth represent the newest of new ideas in the world of costume.

A Word to the Wise.

General Manager Hays, of the Grand Trunk, is of the opinion that something may be learned from every person one meets. In support of this, he relates an adventure which recently occurred to him. He was travelling alone between two small Canadian towns on a local where there were no Pullmans, and happened to get into a seat, the other half of which was occupied by an old farmer.
The verdant one made several overtures at conversation to which Mr. Hays failed to respond very readily.

"Be you goin' fur?" questioned he of the whiskers.
"Not very," was the curt response.

"Where be you goin'?" persisted his interlocutor.

Mr. Hays enlightened him and the other remained silent until the conductor had passed through the car and closed the doors. The General Manager, deep in thought, abstractedly gazed up his passage and the conductor, after glancing at the other occupant of the seat, went on down the line.

Sud a night with any special inquiry, the old farmer turned to Mr.
Hays.

"Well, if I want to put you on something, if you had just taken off your hat and coat as I did and took a kind of for away when that fellow came through, he wouldn't have asked you for no ticket. That's right, he asked noting a look of incredulity on Mr. Hays' face. "That's right. I've been travelling up and down on this here road for goin' on ten years now and I've never been asked for a cent yet!"—Christmas Canadian Magazine.

THE BOY MURDER- ERS.

One Pleads Guilty, the Others Claim Innocence.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—The youthful self-confessed murderers and train-robbers, Peter Neidermeier, Harvey Van Dine, Gustav Mark and Emil Roeski, were arraigned in court tonight. Marx, who made the confession leading to the pursuit of the others, pleaded guilty to all the charges against him, but his three accomplices pleaded not guilty.
Marx confronted his accomplices before the arraignment.

I am willing to hang without the wink of an eye if I see Marks, the squalor, hang first," said Vane.

"The same here," Neidermeier added.

"You fellows got no more than you deserved," Marx said. Then he told how the three had attempted to shoot him, and added: "I got my revenge."

Neidermeier admitted to the police that he and Van Dine had made an attempt to kill Marx.
Roeski also said that he had narrowly escaped murder at the hands of his accomplices.

DOG'S FIVE YEARS' VIGIL.

Faithful Creature Ends His Life on Master's Grave.

A remarkable instance of the faithfulness of the dog to his master—the latest in the long line of recorded acts of fidelity on the part of "man's best friend"—has occurred at Scarborough, England.
Five years ago Mr. Henry Collinson, a local resident, was drowned, and his dog, an Irish terrier, was guarding his clothes on Scarborough sands.

Dr. R. J. Kendall Co., Gentlemen—Some years ago I used your Kendall's Spavin Cure on a horse that had two Bone Spavins, and cured them entirely. There were several other cases of the same kind that were cured by your treatment. I am going to give from his post by force.

Arthur Buzzard there was no more sincere mourner than the dog, and frequently since then he has been found lying on the grave of his old master at Scarborough.

For a week past the faithful creature has been missing. A century workman found him yesterday in a dying condition on his master's grave. It is believed that the dog ate something poisonous and that in his dying hours he turned again to the resting place of the master whom he loved in life and grieved to leave in death.

WEDDSON'S SWEATHEART.

In Three Days Woos, Wins and Marries—Bride Promises to be a "Good Mother."

BLOOMFIELD, Ia., Nov. 30.—J.
W. Buzzard, of Wamago, Kan., aged sixty-one, and Miss Ada M.
Simpson, of Drakesville, Ia., aged twenty-eight, were married at the County Recorder's office on Saturday after three days' acquaintance, in which time the bridegroom's son was killed. The ceremony was the 1,001st performed by Rev. M.
Downing.

The couple had not met until Thursday. Their meeting was brought about through the rash-ness of Mr. Buzzard's son, John, who, while visiting in Drakesville, became infatuated with the young woman and in his enthusiasm wrote his father a description of her charms and invited him to come to their wedding.

Mr. Buzzard appears to have read the account with considerable interest, for he dropped his farm work, drew $75 out of the bank and took the first train to Drakesville. Mr. Buzzard did not spend his time in idle gushing, but proceeded to business, with the result that before the young man returned from a trip in the southern part of the county, the couple were married.

The bride is pretty and popular.
The son returned yesterday and was almost prostrated by grief.
The bride consoled him with with assurance that she would be a good mother, and the son went back to Wamago with them to see.
