The Man In Overalls

I shall be glad to hear that Dundas made a pot of money out of his Fair.

There is no denying the fact that there are quite a few idle men in the city. I wonder how they have got things fixed for the winter.

If the Atlantic steamship companies keep on cutting the fares it may yet be cheaper to travel than to stay at home. The Tories, I notice, are not issuing any challenges to Mr. Pugsley. They know he knows too much.

MAY NOT STRIKE.

Railway Strike in Britain Would be a Terrible Calamity.

London, Sept. 22.—The indications yesterday rather favored the idea that a strike of the railway employees will be averted. Mr. Bell, M. P., the leader of the strike movement, addressing a large body of railway men at Cardiff yesterday, adopted a very moderate tone. He explained that even if a ballot of the working men favored a strike the men would not be called immediately, but renewed efforts would be made to induce the railway directors to reconsider their decision not to grant the demands of the men.

HOLDING SCENERY.

"A Desperate Chance" Co. May Not be Able to Play London.

Although there were three desperadoes and as many detectives in "A Desperate Chance," which played at the Grand on Saturday afternoon, the outfit was not strong enough to get away. The scenery used in the production of the thriller, which tells of the life of the notorious Biddle brothers, was being successfully held by a couple of stage hands at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and the prospects of the play being presented at London to-night are slim. The scenery is being held by the management till a claim for damages for breach of contract is settled. The company was to have given a matinee on Saturday. It arrived in time, but the scenery did not come till 4 o'clock. Consequently the house had to turn away many good dollars. The manager of the company claimed it was not his fault that the scenery did not arrive, and declined to settle for the loss.
