TO CONSERVE RESOURCES.

Mr. Borden Moves For Committee of the House.

Premier Wants Each Separate Interest to Have a Committee.

House Debate on Question Adjourned-Secret Commissions Bill.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.-The partisan note was conspicuous by its absence from the proceedings of the House to-day. In a compact speech, full of interesting information gleaned from many sources, Mr. Borden submitted a resolution which, if accepted in the form suggested by the Prime Minister, will immeasur which, if accepted in the form suggested by the Prime Minister, will immeasurably extend the sphere of Parliament's usefulness and prove of incalculable benefit to the Dominion.

The motion was in the following terms: "That in the opinion of this House it is advisable to appoint a scleet standing committee on natural resources, who shall have authority to inquire into and consider and report upon all matters appertaining to the conservation and development of the natural resources of Canada, including fisheries, forests, mines, minerals, waterways and water powers, and to whom may be referred, from time to time, any report, document or matter touching the subject which they are appointed to consider."

Last session Mr. Sinclair, Liberal member for Guysboro, moved a resolution in favor of the appointment of a select committee to deal with the subject of fisheries, and in the course of a discussion favorable to the proposal, the leader of the Opposition threw out the suggestion that the scope of such a committee might be extended to forests, minerals and other resources as well. Since then Mr. Borden appears to have devoted special attention to the question, and the resolution he introduced to-day is the result. The leader of the Opposition approached the consideration of the subject in no critical or partisan spirit. His object, frankly expressed, was to urge upon the House the necessity of a step which he regarded as of vast importance and in the interests of the country, and his speech, lucid, comprehensive and informative, was fully in accord with that intention.

And it was in the same spirit that

And it was in the same spirit that his proposal was met by the Government. Indeed, Sir Wilfrid Laurier not only accepted the resolution in substance, but expressed his readiness to earry it several steps farther. In order that the work of the select committee proposed might be properly distributed and thoroughly covered. Mr. Borden suggested that each of the resources appecified in the resolution should be investigated by a sub-committee. The Prime Minister while heartily endorsing the idea underlying the resolution pointed out that a group of sub-committees might be rather cumbrous, and he suggested that it would be more in accounted.

Sir Wilfrid thought it would be in the interests of public business if the select committees of the House were composed of fewer members and were increased in number. The leader of the Opposition eagerly accepted the Prime Minister's suggestion and in order that the form of the resolution might be more fully considered the debate was adjourned.
