FATHER OF PALMERSTON.

Tribute to Thomas McDowell
Who Died in This City.

The Palmerston Spectator has the following sketch of the late Thomas McDowell, who died in this city a week ago.

A Palmerston pioneer in the person of Mr. Thos. McDowell passed away at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Wm. Frost, of Hamilton, on Friday, May 7th, 1909, in his 86th year, after a short illness from the ravages of old age and the general breaking down of the system. The remains were conveyed to Palmerston, the funeral taking place to St. Paul's Church on Monday, May 10th, thence to the Palmerston Cemetery. The deceased had a remarkable career. He was the first resident of the town as well as its first mayor, which position he held for six years. Mr. McDowell has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. C. W. Frost, for the past few years, and up to the last retained a wonderfully bright intellect. When a young lad some 14 years of age he came to this country with his parents, and the family first settled in Tecumseh, Simcoe county, where his boyhood days were spent. In 1852 he moved to Lot 18, con. 11, Wallace, together with his wife, who preceded him several years ago.

The first year Mr. McDowell lived in Palmerston he put in a very enjoyable season hunting partridge and fishing for trout. He built the first log cabin in Palmerston and three months later other settlers began to arrive. Upon the advent of the railway a town site was surveyed by Lewis Bolton, P. L. S., of Listowel, assisted by one of the railway engineers. Mr. McDowell guided the destinies of this town for many years, and may properly be termed the "Father of Palmerston." He was a useful, conscientious citizen, whose memory is honored by the entire town. One by one the brave and sturdy pioneers who heaved out homes in the wilderness and made it blossom as the rose, are passing away—their nearly all sleep beneath the sod. All honor to them. These brave and intrepid men by their early privations and vicissitudes and industry and perseverance laid the foundation of our national greatness, for few countries have made such pronounced advances as Canada. The early pioneers might well be proud of their work, for under the flag of Britain, which is the emblem of power, grandeur and civilization, they subdued the wilderness, and brought to light the arts of civilization. Under these historic conditions the remains of our first pioneer citizens were tenderly and reverently laid to rest by the citizens of Palmerston, to await the glad resurrection morning, when this mortal shall put on immortality and death is swallowed up in victory.

Out of respect for the memory of the deceased, all the business places in the town were closed during the funeral hour, and the Town Council and officials marched in a body to the Palmerston cemetery, where the remains of the first mayor and citizen were interred. Mr. McDowell was the first member of Blair Lodge, A. F. & A. M., who, in common with others, paid a tribute to the memory of the founder of Palmerston. We extend our sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Frost of Hamilton, who so lovingly cared for the deceased for the last few years of his life and during his illness preceding his death. The funeral obsequies were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Smith, pastor of St. Paul's Church, who highly eulogized the work and character of the deceased, for he was a man of sterling integrity and an example to all with whom he came in contact. Honored and loved, he expired at a wonderful age, after a life full of usefulness both to the community and his fellow men.

Windsor Woman Has a Couple Arrested in Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, May 13.—Mrs. Elizabeth Templeton, of Windsor, Ont., to-day had her husband, A. H. Templeton, 37, and Eleanor Walcott, 38, for whom he is said to have deserted his wife, arrested. The Walcott woman claims to have been regularly married to Templeton.

Seventeen years ago Templeton married Elizabeth Dicken in Windsor. After two years of married life he disappeared. She heard nothing further of him until about two months ago, when she received information that he had married again. This morning, accompanied by Attorney Granger, of Cleveland, the first Mrs. Templeton, in company with detectives, went to the Stockton avenue house and arrested Eleanor Walcott Templeton. Her husband was arrested later in the day, when he returned home.

PERJURY CASES.

Trustee of Masonic Fund—Seized Italians' Firearms.

Lively Chase and Capture of Alleged Burglar.

(Special Despatch to the Times.)
Brantford, May 14.—A six-hour session of the Police Court was held yesterday to investigate a charge of perjury against three Indian defendants—two women, Susan Isaac, Jennie Hess and F. Chew. At the conclusion of the case the evidence was so unsatisfactory that Magistrate Livingston remarked there was enough in it to formulate other perjury charges, and the case might go on ad infinitum. The three defendants swore that Jake Lewis, who was recently discharged in the County Court for having liquor in his possession on the reserve, was not present at the alleged time, but was in attendance at a meeting of the Indian Moral Reform Association. Nine other witnesses swore that Lewis was not present at the meeting to uplift and elevate the Indian population. Over two witnesses were examined, but the Magistrate had to dismiss the case.

Richard H. Thomas, of New York, who is visiting his parents here on Wellington street, received word by telegram to-day of his appointment as a trustee of the New York State Masonic fund of four million dollars. The appointment is regarded as a very high honor, and Mr. Thomas is receiving many congratulations.

P. Nyagarias, one of the members of the Italian colony of cement workers at Blue Lake, appeared before Mayor Patterson to-day, charged with killing live stock, and also destroying insectiferous birds. The charge of killing some cattle could not be proven, but the Magistrate ordered that the firearms belonging to the Italians be seized and taken charge of by Mayor Granger, of the Central Yorks. One witness, describing the indiscriminate shooting of the Italians on Sundays, said it was like the continuous roar on a battlefield.

A rumor here yesterday, to the effect that the Beaver Oil & Gas Company was to be sold out, was denied by E. L. Carson, one of the directors of the company.

The T. H. & B. Railway has commenced work here in fixing up a park around the station.

A LIVELY CHASE.
One of the liveliest chases on record was indulged in here last night by the local police when practically every member of the force was out in an endeavor to catch one, Joe Smith. No less than five residences in the north ward were entered last night. It was 2:30 this morning when Smith was captured. He was finally discovered by P. C. Borthwick at 45 Lawrence street, and when the officer reached for him in a back shed a scuffle followed, Smith getting away and jumping through the plate glass window, out of the parlor, with Borthwick following suit. Smith was captured after a hot chase down the street. When arrested he wore no shoes and was coatless. Sixty-five dollars was found in his possession. In going through the window his back was hurt and he was badly cut up with glass. He said he came originally from Montreal, having been in Hamilton recently. The police do not believe Smith is his right name.

FIVE KILLED.

Manila, May 14.—Capt. Rhodes, commanding two troops of the Sixth Cavalry struck a portion of the band of outlaws, headed by Jikiri, near Banno last Wednesday and in a fight that followed five of the natives were killed. One of these was Jamming, noted as a trusted lieutenant of Jikiri.

The trouble about hitching your wagon to a star is that you have to get up before the sun rises.
You can't expect people always to avoid quarrels when even the hairs of our head occasionally have a falling-out.

The Feud of Tears

(By Stuart B. Stone.)

When the patient, long-suffering teacher announced recess, the mountain children scampered out upon the playground and fell to at their noisy games. There were tops and marbles, but the greatest interest hung about the twirling tops. Elsie Latham, the slim, dark, solemn, elf-child, had the brightest top and lost it. Sammy Grant, who was fair, blue-eyed and curly-headed, found the gaudy top and restored it to Elsie, while the girl was still weeping for the loss. Elsie's big brother, Tom, thinking Sammy had caused the tears, struck the lad. Then a still larger Grant struck back—and the Latham-Grant feud was on, a thing grim and fearful. And that night Elsie Latham, who was given over to tears, cried her little heart out, around the bend in the stairway pretty soon, and I don't want you to hear the language he will use.

In a month the feud had accounted for two—Elsie's long, lanky brother, Simon, and Sammy's sullen father, Jonas.

Grant. And Mr. Sammy wrote this note to Elsie Latham, so that there might be no more misunderstanding on his account:

Dear Elsie: Me and you ain't in enny feud no more. I love you like sixty your true heart. SAMMY.

Elsie splashed the pencil scrawl terribly with her bitter-sweet tears.

At the end of the month two more green monies showed in the tangle-grown New Harmony cemetery; at the end of a year two more were dug amid the claspings and the eternal crests. Then the blood-feud lagged for a while, and Elsie and Sammy, when the older guardians were not looking, held sweet communion at recess, exchanging gingerbread and parched corn, while the heedless others huddled and capered about the playground.

But one of the house of Grant, riding home in the dusk and hilarious from too much of the white, hot moonshine from Moccasin Bend, yelled defiance as he passed the cabin home of the Lathams, and reeled in his saddle when the revenging bullet came.

Then, a few days later, in six years a dozen men had gone to their account. Then they sent Elsie away to the mission boarding school at the edge of the hill country, and Sammy wrote her long, impassioned letters, and, having become of maturer years, winned in the great blazon of clans. But Elsie at the mission school learned that these things should not be, and wrote home to that effect. The Lathams laughed at the letters and fought all the harder—the Grant gang could not lick them.

And Elsie learned Latin, Greek, a little French and a smattering of music and returned in time to the hills, a beautiful, budding woman, with strange ideas of peace and amity in her head.

When the train pulled in at the station in the Moccasin Valley, what was left of the Latham faction was there to greet Elsie; also the remnants of the Grants were on hand because the Lathams were present, and it was a good time for trouble. Sammy, in the background, saw the radiant glory of Elsie, and realized his own miserable lack of charm.

The Lathams came forward, guns in hand, to greet Elsie; and the Grants, taking shelter behind barrels and boxes, let loose a volley of aimless defiance. Sammy Grant wished that he was dead.

But Elsie tripped straight up to Sammy and, before the astonished clansmen could interfere, they were treated to the spectacle of a Latham girl hugging and kissing a youth of the Grants, who did his best at returning the favors.

"Sammy, oh, Sammy!" cried Elsie Latham, "let's get married and settle this terrible feud. I know you are dying to, but would never dare to ask me now; and I can't wait on a proposal while the old cemetery fills up."

"All right," assented Sammy Grant, with startled eagerness. "We started it—let's end it."

And the hillmen, creeping cautiously

Grant. And Mr. Sammy wrote this note to Elsie Latham, so that there might be no more misunderstanding on his account:
