

Children should always increase in weight. Not to grow, not to increase in flesh, belongs to old age.

Present and future health demands that this increase in weight should be steady and never failing.

To delicate children, Scott's Emulsion brings richer blood and firmer flesh. Better color comes to the cheeks and stronger muscles to the limbs.

The gain in weight is substantial; it comes to stay.

"JESU AMOR NOSTER."

G. A. C. IN SACRED SERVICE.

Over the winter wastes of sin...

Then comes to us, Jesu, at eve-tide...

Boiling on Thy breast...

And then willst give if we fall asleep...

Young Doctor Felton, famous, rich and admired by the circle he moved in...

A retrospective mood, in which memories of the past welled up in his heart...

Under the influence this busy young doctor, the astonishment of the profession...

After a short walk he arrived and was admitted into the parlor of the pastoral residence by the neat, elderly housekeeper...

The doctor was still full of memories, and of those he appeared desirous of talking...

He thought his light and passed out through the garden...

Nothing like it to drive away care. If you think you cannot afford it, why come in and see us...

When they come back to you? The other nodded again. "Then I may venture to say that by then you will be led back to the faith in which you were born."

The doctor was now getting merry, as he saw his friend becoming so earnest, and called him by declaring that no power on earth could make him believe otherwise than he did, unless it was the proof based on scientific data he had before mentioned.

"If ever it does come to pass our wives," answered the doctor, "I'll devote myself more than ever to your poor, Father."

A knock at the door interrupted their conversation. Opening it, Father Ryan was handed a letter wrapped specially to hasten its delivery.

The rather unaccounted glance he at first cast on the envelope suddenly vanished, and a look of interest and great anticipation succeeded.

Excusing himself, he broke the seal and found his interest justified, for it was from an old priest who had been a great friend of his, and whom he had not heard from in years.

The letter informed him that his friend had a parish in a little New England town, and the reason of his writing was to request a favor.

Evidently Father Ryan thought the doctor might like to hear what the letter contained, for, asking him to listen, he read the following excerpt:—

"Knowing that your circumstances bring you into daily contact with the best medical men in the city, I beg of you by any means possible to persuade some specialist in brain diseases to come up here immediately."

The patient is a young lady, the only child left a widowed mother. The local physicians are mystified at the case, and declare a cure impossible.

But I would not accept that decision without making a great effort to secure some one who could speak more authoritatively. Let no fear of expense retard you.

"If you can do this favor for me you will secure my lasting gratitude, besides a mother's blessing. Believe me,

"Yours sincerely in Christ, "THOMAS BASKERVILLE."

Turning to the doctor, the young priest inquired if he had not deeply investigated disorders affecting the brain.

"It has been my favorite study," he replied.

"Well, then, would you not be willing to take up this case which so puzzles the village doctors?"

"If you wish it, I can accomplish the journey so as to return to-morrow morning, I am willing. But you have not mentioned where you wish me to go, have you?"

"True! The name of the town is Brassville, in Connecticut, on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railway, not far distant from Hartford, I believe."

"Brassville is a name I never heard of in Connecticut, which is my own home, Father, and I was born in the vicinity of Hartford; but I suppose, since I've forgotten so many things, I've also let slip the names of towns; but if you say I can get there and return in the limited time at my disposal, I shall be very glad to do whatever lies in my power for the young lady."

"Then, doctor, it's settled, and I'll telegraph to Father Berkeley to meet you tonight at the station. Now you must hurry your preparations, for your train will leave in about an hour. Good-bye, and on your journey reflect upon the things I've said to you this afternoon."

This parting shot brought a smile to the doctor's face as he left the house and hastened towards his own home. Arriving here he selected the necessary articles, and was off directly for the Grand Central Station. And as he went along he was once again plunged into the thoughts that had possessed him all the afternoon. How singular it was that after the hours he had given to his childhood's home that day he should now be on his way to the vicinity in which those hours were so happily passed.

He thought his light and passed out through the garden...

Nothing like it to drive away care. If you think you cannot afford it, why come in and see us...
