He leads us on By paths we did not know. Upward he leads us, the 1gh our steps be slow Though oft we faint and falter by the way. Though storms and diriness, oft obscure the way. Yet, when the clouds are gone, We know He leads us on.

He leads us on Through all the unquiet years; Past all our dreamland hopes, and doubts at fears, He guides our steps. Through all the tangled maze, Of sin, of sorrow, and o'erclouded days,

We know His will is done : And still he leads us on. And He at last,

After the weary strife After the restless fever we call lite-After the dreariness, the aching pain-The wayward straggles which have proved in vain. After the toils are past

Will give ns rest at last. What Mother Says.

Now here's a hand-glass, let me try If I can this time see – Just one of all those funny things My mother sees in me. She says my eyes are violet-And what she says is true-But I think they are just two eyes; Don't they look so to you?

She says my lips are cherries red, And makes blieve take a bite; They never look like that to me-But mother's always right. She says each check is like a rose; And this I surely know; I never would believe it—but What mother says is 89.

She says my tee'h are shining parla; Now that's so very queer. If some folks said it why I'd think-But then, 'twas mother dear.

I only see a little girl,
With hair that's rather wild,
Who has two eyes, a nose and mouth,
Like any other child.

Only a Brief Interruption

From The New York Sun. It was in one of the stately mansions of Beacon-street, Boston, that our story opens. He was declaring his love in language that only a Boston youth can use, and even he must "Dearest Penelope,"he said, "if I had loved "Dearest Penelope, "he said, "if I had loved you less I could have told you that I loved you long ago. If——" But he suddenly stopped. A far-away, whither-am-I-drifting look had come over the girl's face and his heart sank within him. "If my words are displeasing to you, Miss Penelope," he went on in his broken tones, "if I have said what I ought not to say or you ought not to hear; if I—" "Not at all," interrupted Penelope, looking wildly about her, "but I have certainly lost my spectacles. O, there they are. Thanks. As you were saying, Mr. Waldo——."

In 1884 convict labor was But Green's August Flower has done wonderful work in reforming this sad abolished in New York by law. There are now 1300 convicts unemployed, and soon the existing contracts will expire, when all will be idle. There are legislators and newspapers found to openly approve of this condition of affairs. New York has a prison population of 12,800 people, of whom there are available for productive labor about 6000, whose industry, if availed of, would come in competition with the wage-earning classes. In manufacturing alone there are 700,000 free workers engaged in this state. The proposition then is that 6000 convicts should be kept idle for fear that their labor would reduce the average wages of 700,000 who are free, supposing that all the convicts even are engaged in manufacturing. These 6000 con-victs were engaged in actual competition before, and will be again, after their incarceration, with those who object to their employment under confinement. The cost of maintaining these 12,800 covicts is over a million and a quarter of dollars a year; and it is a grave emergency that would justify a state in wast-ing so much a year. But the cost in dollars and cents is the least serious feature of the pro-blem. These convicts are nearly all destined to be returned to society. Their average age is under 25. The average term of im-prisonment is five years, which is about the gap and term of study of a eollege graduato. The speaker advocated the eurolyment to be employed in any industry should bear a fixed proportion to the number engaged in that in-dustry. Outside the prison walls, and that pro-portion should be so low as to preclude any genuine complaint of competition. abolished in New York by law. The frauds that have been perpetrated on the spectacle wearing public by most spectacle dealers and peddlars by giving assumed and fancy names to ordinary glass, speaks for the ignorance of the public generally, in the all-important subject of the preservation of sight. there are only two articles from which the spectacles lenses can be manufactured. viz : Pebble and glass—call glass by any other name, it still remains glass. Pebble, on the other hand, is from nature's own manufactory. It is a natural crystal found generally in freestone formation, and is harder than the ruby and emerald, and near-ly as hardas the diamond. The Pebble is not more or less than a transparent stone, cut by aid of diamond dust, and the greatest amount of power is placed immediately over the centre of the grain found in all pebble. It will give to the spectacle wearer the coolness, freshness and a pleasant feeling that the ordinary spectacle lenses cannot by any possibility impart. All spectacles and eyeglasses are stamped B.
