It Is to Laugh!

The report of President Wilson's Speech on Peace reads like a farce. "The United States must be reckoned with in the setreckoned with in the settlement of the Great European War."
Why? What has the United States done which gives her standing in the settlement? She has mouthed much about what she would do if American lives and limbs were imperilled by German submarines, and afterwards did nothing when such outrages were perpetrated. The President prates about protecting small states, and yet was too proud to fight when Belgium was invaded and desolated. He talks too of stopping future wars begun in violation of treaties. He remained silent when Germany tore up its slient when Germany tore up its treaty with Belgium. One wonders how he proposes to stop wars. The American Navy has never been put on about what she would do if American a war footing and the American army is much more contemptibly small than was the British army in July, 1914, as compared with the big continental armies. President Wilson also proposes to maintain the Freedom of the seas. Having failed absolutely to do anything in these directions in the present war, his talk about what the United States will do in future is a mere beating of the air. The United States would be willing to join a Lea-

God, the great Potter, cannot mak a perfect vessel unless his materials are perfect. We are His material and unless a nation, or an individual, purges itself of sin, it cannot be blessed. So Rev. Mr. Mhitemarsh gave us his Empire lesson yesterday at Cochrane Street Church. We have been following after Mammon too much. The love of money and the gathering of riches without any thought of moral issues have lowered our standards of living. Mr. Whitemarsh araigned the Government in no uncertain manner for not protect ing the volunteers from the saloon Many a broken-hearted mother in the outports to-day is hearing that her boy of 18 has been taken up for being drunk and disorderly. Even England refuses liquor to its men in uniform.
Why cannot the Government consider these things instead of ignoring the scenes which have been witnessed lately? The music was a special fea ture of the service, and included a remarkably fine rendering of "Newfoundland" (Mr. A. H. Allen's setting).

Back From the North.

The S.S. Prospero, Capt. A. Kean, returned from the northward at 1 o'clock this afternoon. She got as far north as St. Anthony, but could not reach beyond that point, owing to ice conditions, though a couple of at-tempts were made to get to Griquet. Besides several intervening ports in White Bay had to be omitted on account of ice and the ship went from plumbing concern, his crippled wife Tilt Cove to St. Anthony direct, taking an outside cut. The Prospero found the ice very heavy and cemented tightly together, owing to the prefound the ice very heavy and cemented tightly together, owing to the prevailing E.N.E. winds. A change of wind will quickly made the ice disappear and it is thought that the steamer on her next trip north will get to her terminus.

There is much activity in fishing circles around Twillingate and daily fishermen get as high as 20 qtis. each in their nets. Caplin have not yet made their appearance north. A successful codfishery is looked forward to on the whole.

An effort is being made to sail the Prospero for the northward again on Wednesday.

The War Week by Week.

May 29th, 1916.

Perhaps at no time since the different theatres of war became clearly defined has the military situation as a whole been more interesting, or more fraught with possibilities, than now. Not only are the conditions dily beaming more favourable to see the conditions of the structure of their ability to hold the Germans in check, and at present their energies seem to be directed farther south, against the Austrians and to the prosecution of the war in Asia Minor. It is here, and in Italy, that the situation has the greatnow. Not only are the conditions daily becoming more favourable to active operations and the movement of large bodies of troops, but many considerations point to the probability of fighting in the near future of such intensity that something in the nature of a decision may be reached at one or more vital places in the vast battle-line.

Italy, that the situation has the greater grace. It is nicely per the goes a long way.

After reaching what appears to have been a very complete understanding with Roumania, Austria has been enabled to withdraw the greater part, if not all, of the troops guarding that frontier, and to hurl them in a sudden and formidable attack upon the Italian army. The point of the at-striking power at any point chosen by themselves, and before the increasing numerical superiority of their opponnts begins to make itself felt, they nust find some spot or other more vulnerable than the rest and break it—or be themselves ultimately broken. Hence Verdun; hence the Trentino; hence other great offensives to which we may look forward with certainty. For a precisely similar reason, that the contracting pressure of their nar-rowing steel line (for it is narrowing) may prevent such concentration, the Entente Powers will find it sound policy to adopt the same offensive tactics. The position grows daily in importance. Great things may, and probably will, happen this summer. They may happen slowly, step by step; it is more likely that they will happen with dramatic swiftness.

strated of effectually piercing a lin which extends over a distance of four hundred miles or more. But the position is a critical one for Italy, and she will have need of all her strength and courage in the next few weeks. Mr. A. E. Hickman appeared in ourt this morning and pleaded not guilty to the indictment against him. Howley, K.C., for the Crown; Mr. J. A. W. McNeily and Mr. W. F. Lloyd

On the West front, the renewed in-ensity of the German onslaught upon till 'the further hearing of the case which commences at 10 o'clock on Monday morning when a special jury will be sworn.

Further hearing of the case of Walter Crosbie vs. The Downing Cook Co. occupied the Court till recess, ed by the German commanders, though it is possible that they ima-gine the defence will at last break under the stress of repeated blows, as happened so often in Russia last summer. The reason for the fierce resumption of the attack is rather to be seen in the brilliant recapture of Douaumont by General Nivelle. To permit this fort, won at the expense man to the ground and smashing the hind wheel and axle of the waggon. No damage was done the horse. The old man was picked up and brought to Mr. Ben. Squires' home. Dr. to Mr. Ben. Squires' home. elling effect.

Military criticis agree that another and perhaps greater, offensive may soon be looked for on the British soon be looked for on the British front, but they differ on the important point of the initiative—whether it will come from the British or German States would be willing to join a League to carry out these objects. What would be the good of that? The real question is: Will the United States do anything in the way of policing the world? Will the President set to work to put up an army of a million men, ready for the field, and put the American Navy on a war footing? Poverty in deeds and impotence in warfare render the mouthing of the President about peace in future purely farcical.

Cochrane St. Church.

At 1.40 p.m. to-day a horse owned by Mr. Phil. Butler, Torbay Road, attached to a Victoria, took fright and dashed along Duckworth St., down Prescott St. to Water St., where the top-heavy vehicle collided with the sidewalk and almost dashed through the Royal Stores window, breaking the shafts and otherwise damaging the shafts and otherwise damaging the harness. The frightened animal broke loose from the Victoria and dashed up town, and turning down Baird's Cove was captured by some cabmen who were standing opposite the Court House. Mr. Butler, Torbay Road, attached to Avictoria, took fright and dashed through the German troops are ranged against the British or German side. We are inclined to favour the opinion that it will be the latter, as at Verdun. It is known that the pick of the German troops are ranged against the British, particularly in the region of Arras. In the case of the Teutonic allies tack was well chosen; the attack it-military necessity, to which they are self in the direct-and effective manfar from blind, demands that now, while they still possess the strategic advantage of rapid concentration and Trent, where Austria projects an apex between the Italian provinces of Lomself in the direct and effective manner with which the Teuton armies have made us familiar. Southeast of Trent, where Austria projects an apex between the Italian provinces of Lombardy and Venice, the Austrians have driven the Italians across their own border with a heavy loss in men and material. If the advance were carried much further it would seriously threaten the flank of the great Italian armies operating to the east in the districts of Belluno and Udine; as it is, it seems to have paralysed their efdistricts of Belluno and Udine; as it is, it seems to have paralysed their efforts temporarily. But Rome reports that the Austrians are being held, and their massed attacks repulsed. The lesson of the fighting in Russia

The lesson of the fighting in Russia last year may be re-emphasised here, when the impossibility was demonstrated of effectually piercing a line which extends over a distance of four hundred miles or more. But the position is a critical one for Italy, and she will have need of all her strength and courage in the next few weeks.

The remaining battle-front, that in the far East, is perhaps the most in-teresting of all. It differs radically from the other theatres in that the Russians are advancing in successive and disconnected waves, and not in a continuous line. All eyes are centred upon Baghdad. The movements of the Grand Duke, since he passed that at 7.30 p.m., Tue the Caucasus mountains, have been remarkably swift and silent. Erzerum and Trebizond fell almost before the world at large was aware that the world at large was aware that they were seriously threatened. The Russians are moving from the region northeast of Bagdad and their object seems to be to effect a juncture with the English forces at Kut-el-Amara. From Mosul to Bagdad there will shortly be waged a conflict that may determine not merely the fate of Mesopotamia but of all Turkey, and possibly the issue of the whole war. There are more remote possibilities than that Turkey may be liminated from the contest before the end of the summer. We need not application of a small stream of water speculate upon the consequences of the blaze was extinguished. such an event; they would be immediate and tremendous.
